Happy
New Year

NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS may require a lot of paper for some people, but for Julie Schelling, Miss Thief River Falls, the scroll is just a convenient method to wish everyone in the community a Happy New Year! For Julie, who is now attending a Bible college near the Twin Cities, 1979 will be an interesting year as she competes in the Miss Minnesota pageant at Austin late this spring, representing Thief River Falls. Julie's wish is that everyone in the Thief River Falls area will have a new year filled with happiness and success and fulfillment.

Harold Kalsnes

Reelect Kalsnes To Head County ASC Committee

Harold Kalsnes of rural Thief River Falls was reelected chairman of the Pennington county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) committee at the county convention held recently in Thief River Falls.

Olaf Olson, who serves as the third regular member of the county committee, was reelected to a three-year term as county committeeman. Kermit Finstad was reelected vice chairman of the committee.

The county convention, attended by members and alternates from community committees in the county, heard a summary of anticipated 1979 farm programs from Phillip L. Bergland, county executive director. Few changes are anticipated in the program in which approximately 80 per cent of Pennington county farmers participated last year.

Sign-up for the 1979 program is scheduled to begin on February 15 and end on April 16.

Kindergarten To Change Over January 23rd

Although classes for Thief River Falls public schools will begin on January 3, the change-over from half-day kindergarten to full days every other day will not take place until Tuesday, January 23, according to Dr. William Corliss, superintendent of schools.

The change-over, adopted by the board of education in a compromise to save a substantial amount in noon bus costs, coincides with the start of a new semester in the school system on January 23. Monday, January 22, will be an in-service day for the faculty and no classes will be held.

Babson Forecast Predicts Mild Recession For 1979

By Babson's Reports Inc., Wellesley Hills, Mass., December 28, 1978. A year ago, our forecast for 1978 anticipated further progress on the business front. Despite a long coal strike, an advance to peak levels of interest rates, and the appalling decline in the value of the U.S. dollar against the stronger currencies of the world, general business did actually display more staying power than had seemed attainable. Unfortunately, the specter of inflation — about which we had warned — also made its presence felt during the past year. This cruel "hidden tax" proved to be a dual-edged sword: On the one hand, the inflation psychology prompted buying of durable goods and homes in expectation of higher prices, thus helping to sustain the powerful business pace; on the other hand, inflation was instrumental in generating the flight from the dollar and the consequent poor performance of the stock market. So, 1978 saw public confidence undermined by anxiety over the twin forces of inflation and soaring interest rates even while there were healthy advances in industrial activity, employment, personal income, and corporate profits.

1979 — Some Letdown For Business

As 1979 makes its debut, the present uptrend in the business cycle is already considerably longer than the average life span of this nation's expansion phases. This does not automatically — and of itself — mean that a trend reversal is immiment, but a cyclical upturn which has lasted 44 months is obviously vulnerable. After careful consideration of all relevant factors, the staff of Babson's Reports predicts that the American economy will slip into a recession in 1979. Until early fall, it appeared that enough business vitality existed to sustain the economic upslant through the better part of 1979, or at least to avert a recessionary setback in the course of the year.

The situation was changed, however, when the Administration and the Federal Reserve took radical measures to dampen the forces of inflation and to arrest the weakness of the dollar. The chief steps were the further boost in interest rates and the tightening of credit, plus the implication there might be further moves if necessary. With interest rates extremely high, prospects are obviously unfavorable for such economic barometers as inventory accumulation, home building and general construction, business capital expenditures, and consumer purchases of automobiles and other high-priced items.

Deep, Prolonged Recession Unlikely

Though a recession is now more a distinct likelihood than a mere possibility, its probable severity is a matter of debate. A good deal will depend not only on how much additional pressure the nation's leadership will bring to bear upon inflationary forces but also on its degree of determination. To back off too soon or to fail to administer enough pressure could allow inflation to regain momentum quickly, perhaps necessitating subsequent measures far more harmful to the economy than a job properly done at this time.

With the economy at its present extremely high level, the anti-inflation game plan will not produce traumatic consequences. Babson's foresees, instead, a winding down in the business tempo of sufficient intensity and duration to qualify technically as a recession — that is, at least two successive calendar quarters of backtracking in national output. We look for the real gross national product (output of goods and services (ex inflation) to record slippages in the second and third quarters of 1979 after a fairly decent opening quarter, with a recovery beginning sometime in the final three months. Should the scenario work out this way, the 1979 recession could as well be described as a "no growth" period, mild in comparison with other recessions in our past history. Of course, there is bound to be some disruption, but this would be a small price to pay compared with what might happen if inflation were allowed to run unchecked.

Plenty of Worries— Hopes Too

There may be as many reasons for public uneasiness in 1979 as there were in 1978. Prices will rise further — though not as sharply as in the past year — and there will naturally be concern about the effectiveness of the battle against inflation. Also, the diminution of business vitality will spawn fears about possible layoffs, reduced job openings, and less hefty pay checks because of curtailments in overtime and shorter workweeks. In a year chock-full of key labor contract bargainings, the threat of strikes will be much in evidence. There could, of course, be some optimistic influences. If anti-inflation efforts make some headway, for example, the status of the dollar could improve, lifting the confidence of investors and businessmen.

Gross National Product

Gross national product — on the basis of current dollars — will undoubtedly trend higher, owing principally to inflation. But the gain will be substantially less than that of 1978. Activity in the credit-dependent sectors of the economy will slow, and government spending for most of the twelve months ahead will be more restrained than in past recessions, reflecting the new-found concern of the electorate with paring public spending and achieving tax relief. How long this attitude will last, under recession pressures remains to be seen . . and especially the effects upon the country's legislators at all levels. Though the economy may stutter during some of 1979, the real GNP (with inflation factored out) still ought to be able to manage a sliver of an increase of about 2 per cent for the year as a whole.

Industrial Production

Despite price inflation along a broad front and the sequence of step-ups in borrowing costs in 1978, the urge to act before prices advanced even further brought sales of cars and houses last year to a higher level than one would have thought likely. Since con-

C of C Directors Elected

Jerry Hendrickson | Bill Hogan | Roger Worth

NEW DIRECTORS of the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce were declared elected following nomination by a nominating committee and mailing of the nominations to the chamber membership. Members in good standing were given about two weeks to submit other nominations for consideration as members of the board. Since no other nominations were received, according to the by-laws of the organization, the nominees were declared elected and will take office at a meeting of the board to take place late in January. At that time new officers will also be elected. New directors are Jerry Hendrickson of Poppler's, Bill Hogan of Simplot, Roger Worth of Arctic Enterprises and Jerry Bolin of Kordel Furniture. (The Times was unable to obtain a photo of Bolin who is vacationing with his family in New Zealand.) They succeed Arnold Narverud, Stan Upham, Jack LaSalle and Ev Ault. Narverud will continue as an ex-officio member of the board as past president when the new officers are elected.

12,000 Boarding Mark Surpassed

Boarding of the 12,000th passenger of the year on a North Central airlines flight leaving Thief River Falls Friday afternoon marks a quarter century of growth in commercial airline service for this community.

Mrs. Kermit Bensen, the former Ruby Waale of Thief River Falls, and her three children took the North Central flight to Minneapolis Friday afternoon and Mrs. Bensen became the airline's 12,000th passenger of 1978. The Bensens live in Monticello and had been visiting friends and relatives in this community during the Christmas holidays.

In a special ceremony at the regional airport terminal prior to flight time Friday, Mayor Bob Carlson of Thief River Falls presented Mrs. Bensen with a bottle of champagne and basket of fruit in observance of the local commercial airline service milestone.

Commercial airline service out of Thief River Falls has developed from a point where local organizations and individuals were subsidizing boardings to retain air service to a situation where potential passengers seeking flights out of Thief River Falls sometimes find flights already filled. In early days of the airline service here, business groups and individual businessmen paid the fares of scout troops and others to fly to Grand Forks to maintain an acceptable level of boardings. The people who made the flight were then picked up and returned home with bus or cars.

It was in the early 1960's when the last locally subsidized boardings took place and the airline was able to maintain an average of five or more boardings a day on its own. The history of boardings here has been on a general rise although there were peak periods in 1960 and again in 1972 that were followed by several years of lower boarding totals.

In the first year of operation in 1953, North Central had 420 passengers board planes at Thief River Falls. This dropped to 347 in 1954, then increased each year to 743 in 1955, 856 in 1956, 1,233 in 1957, 1,374 in 1958, 1,567 in 1959 and a high of 1,785 in 1960.

In 1961 the total dipped to 1,648, recovered to 1,664 in 1962 and 1,766 in 1963 before setting a new high mark of 1,911 in 1964. Growth then seemed to accelerate as the boardings moved consistently upward to

MEETING THE CREW of the North Central airlines flight which would provide their first airplane ride are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Bensen of Monticello. Mrs. Bensen, the former Ruby Waale of Thief River Falls, was the 12,000th passenger to board a North Central flight at the Thief River Falls regional airport in 1978. She and her family had spent the Christmas holidays with her mother, Mrs. Tom Waale, and other relatives in this area. Her husband drove home earlier in the week and Ruby and the youngsters — Mark, 4; Jana, 5; and Julie, 7 — took North Central's 3 p.m. flight to the Twin Cities Friday. Crew members in the photo are Richard Falan (kneeling), captain; Earl Sundin, first officer; and Sue Christ, flight attendant.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Zehlians Taste Traditional Yule Holiday Dishes

Following their 1978-79 program theme emphasizing good will and gourmet cooking, the Zehlian club of the Thief River Falls Federated Women's clubs, held a 5:30 p.m. Christmas tasting dinner on December 20 at the home of Si and Marge Hanson. Hostesses were Mrs. Hanson, Ina Thorsgard and Darleen Mortenson.

Both aspects of the theme were represented as club members contributed traditional family holiday dishes as well as traditional dishes of foreign countries. Providing a duet of Christmas carols were Ruth and Billy Saetre.

To begin the festivities the traditional English Wassail Bowl, a hot spicy punch, was served. Gretchen Beito, wearing authentic Guatemalan attire, served a salad native to that country which featured fresh vegetables combined with a spicy dressing.

Crackers and smoked fish were served by Elaine Kayser after which Zoni Easton, in Swiss costume, presented knipflies", a traditional Austrian peasant casserole, featuring dumplings baked in a cheese sauce.

Serving a meat pie seasoned with allspice was Lynn Turenne, whose recipe dates back to her husband's family of French Canadian descent.

A Slovic Christmas dish, "pirvgies", was made by Mary Evans and consisted of rounds of dough enclosed with mashed potatoes which had been steamed and lightly browned in a skillet.

Carol Tranby contributed a French casserole made of pork, apples and special seasonings, while Jodie Williamson, a native of Arizona, prepared a Mexican casserole with mole sauce and lettuce greens. Wearing a heavily embroidered dress, she told of the true Mexican cookery she grew up with, which included corn meal as the basic ingredient in nearly all main dishes.

Marge Hanson served a Norwegian "cold tray" to the tasters which featured various traditionally prepared seafoods, cheeses and fruits.

Traditional family recipe of round cracked wheat bread was prepared and served by Margaret Saetre, while Sam Rasmussen, out of character in her authentic Norwegian attire, served Italian bread sticks.

Featured on the dessert table were the Scandinavian Kransekaka, prepared and served by Ina Thorsgard, an English yule log which consisted of a chocolate roll with cream filling made by Ann Duckworth, Swedish rice pudding with meringue topping contributed by Maxine McEwen and krum kake made by Mim Penn.

The dinner was completed with Irish coffee, topped with whipped cream and chocolate shavings, served by Darleen Mortenson and Jean Henrichs.

Julie Vad-Gene Arveson Marriage Vows Spoken

Julie Ann Vad became the bride of Gene Ross Arveson at a recent ceremony at the Ebenezer Lutheran church of rural Oklee.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Lester Vad of rural Oklee and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Arveson of rural Trail.

Rev. Clifford Randall officiated at the 2:30 p.m. double ring ceremony which was attended by approximately 300 friends and relatives. Organist Glenda Rustan, a friend, played the traditional wedding marches and also accompanied Mrs. John Bronken as she sang "Wedding Song" and "The Lord's Prayer" and Vernon Iverson as he sang "For Baby (For Bobbie)".

Marking the pews were orange flocked bows.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was attired in a floor-length organza gown styled with a stand-up collar and an empire bodice traced in lace. The sheer yoke featured a cameo motif enhanced by lace and seed pearl trim. Accenting the long, sheer bishop sleeves were lace panels. Lace also circled the cuffs. Beginning at the shoulders and continuing down the full length of the gown to the double-flounced chapel-length train were panels of lace.

Her fingertip veil of bridal illusion edged in matching lace was secured by a bonnet headpiece etched with seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white Fuji mums and orange roses, accented with ivy, babies' breath and white ribbon.

Maid of honor was Jodi Stolaas of Oklee, a cousin of the bride, who wore a princess-styled gown of orange flocked voile with orange underlay, topped by a matching cape. Wearing identical attire were bridesmaids Anita Hanson, Gelene Lundeen and Sandra Nelson, cousins of the bride, all of Oklee, and flower girl, Jill Radniecki. Each wore an orange-tinted cushion mum with white ribbon and a spray of babies' breath in her hair and carried a bouquet of white cushion mums, orange-tinted carnations and bronze ribbon.

Carrying the rings was Jerod Kolden.

Attending his cousin as best man was Lonnie Olson of Keewatin. Groomsmen were Dale Arveson, a brother of the groom, Loren Arveson, the groom's cousin, and Gary Vad, a brother of the bride. Ushering the guests were Luane Tasa, a friend of the couple, and Joel Stolaas, the bride's cousin. Men of the wedding party wore toast vested tuxedoes with apricot shirts and single orange-tinted mum boutonnieres. The groom wore a white tuxedo with a white shirt and bowtie. His boutonniere was a single orange rosebud.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Vad chose a sea green gown accented by silver accessories. Her corsage consisted of white Fuji mums and orange roses.

Wearing an identical corsage was the groom's mother who was attired in a light blue gown complemented by black accessories.

Honored guests included Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Stolaas and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Vad, grandparents of the bride, and Mrs. Hannah Arveson, the groom's grandmother.

A reception followed in the church parlors. Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Orlan Stolaas and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Arveson, uncle and aunt of the bride and groom, respectively.

Highlighting the serving table was a three-tiered wedding cake, iced in white and decorated with orange roses with green leaves. Separating the layers were lace pillars, while topping the cake was an ornament consisting of three satin bells with white flowered centers connected by a heart-bordered archway perched on a petal-edged stand. Surrounding the cake at its base were fresh cut greens and orange rosebuds. Cutting and serving the cake were Mrs. Audrey Hanson of Gary and Mrs. Corrine Haugen, Crookston, while Mrs. Nora Hanson of Trail and Mrs. Carol Fazio, Hoyt Lakes, poured.

Ladling the punch and distributing the groom's cake were Jan Swanson of Thief River Falls, Sandy Fazio, Hoyt Lakes, and Tracy Orhen, Hibbing. Mrs. Bev Torgerson, Warren, registered the guests. Gift bearers were Nancy and Darby Osbjornson and waitresses included Lori Swanson of Thief River Falls, Wendy Hanson, Oklee, and Roberta Olson, Keewatin.

Following a wedding trip to Florida, the couple is now making their home in rural Trail where the groom farms. Both are graduates of Oklee high school. Photo, Chuck Agnew, Mahnomen.

FOUR SEASONS REALTY

THE IMPORTANCE OF LOCATION

Any Realtor will tell you that the three most important factors concerning the value of a house are: "Location, Location, and Location." Unfortunately, most home buyers ignore this important advice.

Location is especially vital when buying a house for maximum resale value. Statistics say that you will be reselling your home long before the final mortgage payment is in the mail. Therefore, take a long, hard look, not only at the present, but the future prospects for the community and immediate neighborhood.

Select a location where raw land and house values have an increasing price trend. Especially check into the zoning laws for any unfavorable change which could cause a depreciation in the value of the neighborhood and the resale price of your home in the future.

Remember — you can remove or remodel a house, but you can never change the location. So choose carefully.

Babson Predicts Mild Recession To Hit In 1979

sumer demand in these — and a number of other — fields represented at least to some degree an advance siphoning from 1979 markets and the incurring of debt in the process, the task of duplicating last year's results seems formidable. With interest rates now even higher and credit supplies tighter, the task for the next twelve months will be even more arduous. Babson's forecast for industrial production in 1979, therefore, is for a moderate — around two per cent — backslide from 1978 levels. Strong showings in output of transportation equipment, military goods, and computer equipment — plus a rebound in coal mining — should help to prevent a more painful slump in total industrial production.

Business Inventories

The economy will not receive any upward impetus from business inventory accumulation during much of 1979. Management's thinking on this matter will reflect the high cost of borrowed money, while the need to stockpile will diminish as industrial activity slackens. There are, of course, bound to be sporadic inventory build-ups owing to possible labor disputes, but these will give way to liquidations once the danger is over. For the coming year, the key consideration is that the country will not be confronted with an economic adjustment either caused by or intensified by top-heavy inventory positions. The need to liquidate redundant inventory holdings has spawned many a cyclical business down-phase in the past. But during the last three and a half years, businessmen have by and large kept their inventory positions lean. So, while inventory policies will not impart much stimulus to business in '79, neither will they drag it down.

Business Capital Expenditures

Business outlays for new plant and equipment lagged markedly in the early stages of the economic advance that began in the spring of 1975. This was perfectly normal since there was an abundance of productive capacity at that time. Over the past two years, however, capital expenditures have gained momentum as climbing production rates have increasingly strained plant facilities. Rising operating costs and the exigencies of complying with environmental quality regulations have also spurred spending for more efficient equipment. But the upspurt in the cost of borrowed funds has adverse implications for capital investments. For 1979, the staff of Babson's Reports expects only a modest increment instead of another smart increase — perhaps amounting to three per cent in real terms and about 10 per cent with inflation included. Yet, outlays will still run at a brisk tempo, sustained by hefty backlogs.

The Labor Front

1979 faces a busy schedule of labor negotiations involving a number of important industries such as petroleum, trucking, auto, electric products, and rubber. The voluntary wage-price restraints will undergo stern tests in these bargaining sessions. Labor groups have expressed disapproval of the seven per cent ceiling on wage hikes and fringe gains combined. They will acquiesce only if the lid is applied to direct wage increments alone and if living costs are restrained. It is too early to rule out formal controls on pay rates and prices.

Building And Construction

Residential building enjoyed a banner year in 1978. Generally available mortgage credit — though at costly rates — kept housing starts extremely high. Added to the need for shelter dictated by population pressures was the impetus to home building stemming from the inflation psychology. Now that mortgage rates have reached levels making home ownership more difficult, and tighter bank credit has adversely impacted mortgage money supplies, home building faces a slower year. Babson's is forecasting a decline from around two million units in the private sector for 1978 to some 1.6 million for 1979.

In heavy construction there will be little real growth. Government and corporate budgets are under stress, and building costs have risen significantly. A sharp letdown, however, is not anticipated.

Corporate Profits — Dividends

Business profits recovered from an opening-quarter loss owing principally to the effects of the coal strike, and the balance of 1978 experienced excellent operating results. But 1979 will not see a repeat of the past year's outstanding achievement in corporate profits. Militating against it will be further cost advances, slower business conditions, the restraints on price boosts, and the widespread repercussions of the seemingly unavoidable OPEC hike in oil prices. Babson's is projecting for 1979 as a whole only a slight upshading in corporate profits after taxes, and even this will be mostly the result of the slight paring of federal corporate income taxes. Still, by historical comparisons, the 1979 profit level will look good.

Strengthening corporate financial positions over the past three years will permit well-maintained dividend payments, and there can still be a goodly sprinkling of rate step-ups.

Employment — Joblessness

After three successive years of healthy employment gains, easing conditions in a number of large job sources will restrict 1979's increment to only token proportions. During the recession we expect, the number of jobholders could shade off, but the frightening rash of layoffs which occurred in late 1974 and early 1975 is not in the cards for 1979. Nevertheless, there will be some gain in the number of jobless workers as well as in the unemployment rate. The latter will, in fact, work its way back up over the seven per cent mark of the civilian labor force, even though it was pushed back to 5.7 per cent in mid-1978. The real problem will not be layoffs but rather not enough job openings to absorb the additions to the nation's labor force.

Personal Income

With no massive employment dislocations expected, the uptrend in personal income should continue next year. On the plus side will be the hike in the minimum wage, automatic pay increases under existing multi-year labor pacts, and fresh pay raises won in 1979 union settlements. Income from dividends and interest will post good gains, as will earnings in the farm sector. Hence, even though personal income will not climb as rapidly as it has in recent years, consumers will still have a heartening volume of purchasing power.

Consumer Spending

Uneasiness over a less sparkling business climate and the specter of labor tie-ups and some job cutbacks will moderate consumers' buying intentions over a good portion of the new year. There will be a greater emphasis on reducing installment debt and on building up savings. This will, naturally, tend to strengthen the economy beyond the months immediately ahead, but the short-run impact will be to hold unit sales and gross dollar volume of retail trade somewhat below desired levels. But Babson's still does not foresee any radical curtailment of consumer eagerness to buy in the approaching twelve months.

Agricultural Prospects

1978 was another bumper crop year for American farmers, with incomes posting a good increase over 1977. Many in the agricultural sector feel, however, that farm prices have been laggard relative to the inflation in operating costs and the cost of living. Prospects do favor additional firming of crop prices, but huge carryovers are deterrents to any runaway price advances. As for livestock prices, the uptrend of the past year will progress further in 1979.

Domestic Political Scene

The anti-inflation battle and the related wage-price restraint program of the Carter Administration will command much attention as the new year progresses. On Capitol Hill, though, there will be no dearth of issues. Making a big push in the coming session of Congress will be proponents of a comprehensive National Health Insurance program, as will advocates of increased funding for seeking alternative fuel and energy sources. There will be, too, attempts to redress the energy and tax measures passed by the last Congress, both of which were compromised to the point of multilateral dissatisfaction. Also problematic for the Administration will be the drive to shape a less inflationary federal budget for fiscal 1980.

Foreign Affairs

The international arena remains loaded with anxiety-producing issues. The stop-and-go peace negotiations between Egypt and Israel — still with important points of disagreement at this writing — offer a possible beacon of hope. But the areas of sharply divided views do underscore the vast complexities of Mideast problems. The situation in Lebanon has yet to be resolved, and the turmoil in Iran has even more significant ramifications for the Western World. After all, Iran is a heavy exporter of petroleum; it borders Russia; and it is strategically located in terms of the shipping lanes for Mideast oil. In Africa, continued tensions are likely. Even in Asia, there are deep-rooted conflicts along with contemporary power-struggle connotations. It should be noted, however, that an accord on the second phase of the strategic arms limitation talks could improve U.S.-Soviet ties.

Money Supplies — Interest Rates

The tightening of credit will not let up for some months, and the rise in interest rates seems destined to persist well into this winter or even into the spring of 1979. Right now, we look for the prime lending rate of the nation's leading commercial banks to peak around the 12 per cent mark, but a rapid and sharp subsequent turnaround is not likely. We do not, however, anticipate the awesome economic disruptions caused by credit crunches of the past dozen years or so.

Stock and Bond Outlook

Concern over the U.S. dollar's poor showing against stronger foreign currencies and the frightening climb in money rates in 1978 frustrated the stock market's attempts to sustain its upward drives. At present, with the economy seemingly fated to slip into a recession, the 1979 stock market outlook appears discouraging to many investors. Yet Babson's Reports expects improvement in the status of the dollar and in the nation's balance of trade to revitalize investment sentiment. And at some point the stock market will likely commence to discount economic recovery after the recession. So, with many stocks trading at very low multiples of their latest twelve-month earnings and even relative to their probable profits for the year ahead, forward-looking investors will find a wide selection of opportunities in common stocks and convertible securities. The Babson Staff expects the Dow Jones Industrial Average in 1979 to hold in the same range as in 1978. But if headway is made toward curbing inflation, bolstering the dollar, and improving our trade balance, the DJIA could well launch a drive which would carry it into new high ground.

With interest rates nearing a peak, the bond market should also give a better account of itself in the year ahead. In coming months, investors in need of strengthening their position in fixed-income investments will have ample opportunity to acquire bonds and preferred stocks that provide attractive yields.

12,000 Board North Central Here In 1978

2,079 in 1965; 2,554 in 1966; 3,268 in 1967; 4,812 in 1968; 5,741 in 1969; 7,667 in 1970; 8,668 in 1971; n and 9,579 in 1972.

Three years of declining boarding numbers then followed with 9,183 in 1973; 8,997 in 1974; and 8,659 in 1975. New records were then set with 9,701 boardings in 1976, 9,989 in 1977 and approximately 12,200 this year. (At this writing a day and one-half of boardings remained and the year-end total was estimated. All statistics above are unofficial totals from records maintained by North Central personnel at the airport here.)

Totalling the numbers of boardings through the quarter century of commercial air service indicates that 119,411 passengers have boarded planes out of Thief River Falls in the past 25 years. The period has spanned use of 26-passenger DC-3 aircraft, 48-passenger Convair 440 aircraft with reciprocating engines and the present Convair 580 aircraft with turbo-prop engines. The Convair 580 also carries 48 passengers and a three-member crew.

Resolution On Drunk Driving

At the request of Mayor Bob Carlson and the Minnesota department of public safety, Thief River Falls city council on Tuesday adopted a resolution endorsing awareness of the consequences of driving while intoxicated and urging Thief River Falls citizens to become personally responsible for keeping drinkers from driving.

The resolution introduced by the mayor cites statistics showing that 60 per cent of all traffic fatalities in Minnesota involve a drinking driver and at least half of the drivers in fatal accidents may be legally classified as intoxicated.

FSR Real Estate

What Goes With House?

Real estate is usually defined as the land and everything attached to it, such as: buildings, trees, shrubs, etc. The buyer normally gets all of the real estate, but none of the owner's personal property. The problem arises when personal property has become a part of the real estate. This is called a fixture and does pass with the real estate.

There are three usual tests which must be satisfied. Has the personal property been permanently annexed to the real estate? Is it intended to become part of the real estate? And finally, what is the local custom? Usual fixtures might include: shades, heaters, ranges, screens, storm windows, lighting fixtures, etc.

It is important that the seller spell out specifically in his sales agreement exactly what he intends to give to the buyer as part of real estate. This will save misunderstanding at the closing, and sometimes save a sale.

Two Juveniles Charged With Area Burglaries

FIRST WOMAN OFFICER of the Pennington county sportsmen's club is LeAnn Leinhoff, a legal secretarial student at the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute. Recently elected treasurer of the club, she is pictured with Hardy Hodge, new club president succeeding Gary Haugen. Other officers elected were Roger Schaffer, vice president succeeding Duane Holland and Irving Swanson, secretary succeeding Gay Warnecke. Miss Leinhoff succeeds Bob Lundbohm as treasurer of the club. Hodge said that as president of the organization he will make an effort to encourage women interested in the outdoors to become members of the sportsmen's organization.

Charged with two counts of burglary and one count of theft in connection with burglaries at Speed's Automotive service and Peterson-Biddick and the theft of a CB radio are two 17-year-old juveniles, a boy from the Greenbush area and a girl from Warroad. The two were apprehended in Badger December 20 when they were found with stolen property in their possession.

Taken in the break-in at Speed's Auto was a case of oil valued at $25, a case of antifreeze valued at $18, a case of snowmobile oil valued at $17 and a few other unspecified items. George Hanestad of Peterson-Biddick listed a turkey worth $21, two pocket calculators valued at $60 each, two bags of popcorn worth $7, and $54 worth of stamps among the items missing in the break-in there. The CB involved was valued at $45 and owned by Martin Rantanen of Thief River Falls. It was stolen out of Rantanen's pickup while the vehicle was parked at the Highway 59 Fixit Shop.

The juveniles were apprehended when, after stealing diesel fuel and a tool box from the Swisher residence at the Badger Motel, they stopped at the Midland station because their car did not run properly on the diesel fuel. They tried to trade some tires for having their fuel tank drained and some gas put in it, but the station attendant became suspicious and called Deputy Jim Wright to investigate and the two were found to have stolen property in their possession.

In addition to being charged with the Peterson-Biddick and Speed's Auto burglaries, the juveniles are also believed to have taken four snow tires from the Midland station in Middle River and have broken into the Hartz store in Strathcona taking cigarettes, candy, potato chips and other miscellaneous items. Other incidents are also being investigated which may be linked to the pair.

Other cases included in a December 27 report from the law enforcement center were nine thefts, two vandalisms, and seven accidents. Cases are listed below by reporting date:

December 12 — Deb Fanfulik of St. Hilaire reported that while her car was parked at her residence someone had made a scratch on the passenger side of the 1974 Olds along the entire length of the car. Estimated damage is $195. Norman T. Johnson also reported approximately $100 damage to his van from a scratch that had been made on the passenger's side.

December 13 — A juvenile boy, age 14, was charged with a burglary that took place December 8 at the Jim Ferguson residence. Taken in that incident was a razor.

December 19 — A third juvenile, 15-year-old male, was charged with burglary and forgery in connection with the incidents at the Duane Brown residence December 4 and 8. Previously charged in the incident in which checks were stolen and then forged were two other 15-year-old males.

December 20 — Charged with shoplifting a blouse valued at $23 from Phase II is a 17-year-old juvenile girl.

December 22 — William H. Kruse of rural Thief River Falls was traveling south on highway 32 passing a crane carrier driven by Roy Jablinske, also of rural Thief River Falls, when Kruse lost control of his vehicle and collided with the crane carrier causing $1,500 damage to his vehicle and $200 to the crane carrier.

December 22 — Greg M. Nelson of rural Thief River Falls was traveling east on 3rd St. and encountered a parked vehilce with the left rear protruding into the traffic lane. Nelson was unable to go around the parked vehilce as there was an oncoming car in the opposite lane and the right front of his vehicle struck the left rear of the parked car which was owned by Arthur J. Paulson of Thief River Falls. Both vehicles were totaled.

December 22 — A wallet belonging to Jane Anenson of Minneapolis was stolen from her purse while she was at Fred's Place. Value of the wallet and contents was $88.

December 22 — Karen Hodge of Northwestern hospital reported a theft from the cash register in the gift shop located in the north lobby. Theft loss is estimated at $18.

December 23 — Janice Kotok of Middle River reported that her purse was stolen from the Best Western rest room. Value of the purse and contents was $100.

December 23 — A 1977 Arctic Pantera 5000 owned by Larry Spong of 106 Kenwood Court was reportedly stolen from behind Spong's house the night of December 22. The snowmobile, valued at $2,200, was orange and black in color and had license No. JT126.

December 23 — Rosland Westland of 804 N. LaBree reported that the front door of Piggly Wiggly was broken. A beer bottle had apparently been thrown from a distance causing approximately $100 damage.

December 23 — A vehicle owned by Richard J. Botner of 607 Kneale S. was legally parked on the 100 block of N. Knight when it was struck by a hit and run driver. Damages were estimated at $100.

December 24 — Damages of approximately $250 were done to a car owned by Janice Kotok of Middle River while the vehicle was parked in the Best Western Inn parking lot. The vehicle was hit on the left side in the lower part of the door panel by an unknown vehicle.

December 24 — Thomas J. Bruggeman of 728 N. Gleason was travelling south on Gleason Ave., was unable to stop at the stop sign at 6th & Gleason and slid into the path of a vehicle driven by Jesse M. Vedum of rural Thief River Falls. Vedum attempted to swerve out of the way but could not and the two collided. Bruggeman's vehicle received approximately $200 damage, and Vedum's, $900.

December 24 — A car owned by Phillip Wold of 1116 N. Arnold was legally parked on the east side of Arnold Ave. facing north when it was hit by an unknown vehicle. The Wold car received approximately $175 damage in the left front fender.

December 24 — Carryll O. Thompson of 614 N. Kinney was travelling west on highway 1 when he struck a horse that had wandered onto the road. The driver sustained small cuts and glass in the eye and the horse, owned by Mrs. William Ness, was killed. Damage to the van Thompson was driving totaled $1,500.

December 26 — A juvenile boy, aged 15, is being charged with shoplifting a tool box and a blow dryer from Gambles. A second juvenile, also a 15-year-old male, is also being charged for involvement in the theft.

Recommend Morex Barley For This Area

Malting Barley Improvement association has added the white aleurone six-row variety Morex to its list of varieties recommended for malting and brewing subject to acceptance by industry in future commercial use. Recommended area for production is North Dakota, Minnesota and South Dakota.

Decision to add Morex to the list of varieties recommended for malting and brewing was based on extensive pilot and plant scale malting and brewing tests. Plant scale tests were made using 7,000 bushels of the 1976 crop and 19,000 bushels of the 1977 crop.

Morex was released by the Minnesota agricultural experiment station Feb. 1, 1978. Morex is from a cross between Cree and Bonanza. It has averaged 10 per cent higher in yield than Larker but is similar to Larker in maturity. Morex is resistant to stem rust, loose smut and moderately resistant to spot blotch. Morex was chosen as a name for the barley because it has two to three per cent more extract than Larker.

We should remember that the funeral of every man, famous or unknown, rich or poor, can be equally important for the bereaved he leaves behind.

North Central Earnings Jump 387 Per Cent

North Central airlines earned $579,000 for November — 387 per cent over the same month a year ago, reported Bernard Sweet, president and chief executive officer. Net earnings for the first 11 months increased 73 per cent to a record $20,159,000.

In November, revenues reached $24,136,000, a gain of 27 per cent from the $18,940,000 in 1977. With earnings of $579,000, earnings per share were $.04. In 1977, earnings were $119,000 in November, or $.01 per share.

For the first eleven months, revenues were up 32 per cent to $272,800,000, from $205,961,000 last year. Net earnings of $20,159,000 represent $1.56 per share. This compared with $11,639,000, or $.94 per share, in 1977 which included an after-tax gain on disposition of equipment of $2,625,000.

"Traffic from new nonstop long-haul routes, discounted fares, and additional DC-9-50s helped to increase profits," Sweet commented. "A general fare increase, the strike against another carrier, and investment tax credits also enhanced earnings."

"With added traffic from new routes to Florida, Texas and Arizona," Sweet continued, "the 1978 profit will far surpass any previous year in the company's history."

North Central now serves 103 cities in 20 states and two Canadian provinces on its 23,000-mile route system. The airline expects to carry 6.9 million passengers in 1978 and fly 1.9 billion passenger miles.

Research Shows Difference In Breast Tumors

University of Minnesota study has shown that not all breast cancer tumors are alike, and that the presence of "estrogen receptors" in some tumors appears to increase significantly the effectiveness of chemotherapy.

Results of the study indicate that all breast cancer patients should be tested for these receptors following mastectomies, or when tumors recur in later years, said oncologist David Kiang, director of the research team. Many hospitals do not routinely give the test to patients who have had surgery, he said.

Study also confirmed an earlier finding that hormonal therapy is useful only on breast tumors containing the receptors.

New information means that more effective treatment for recurrent breast tumors can be given if the test is used, Kiang said. Breast tumors lacking the receptors should probably receive immediate intensive chemotherapy, he said, whereas minimal chemotherapy or hormonal therapy may suffice for tumors containing the receptors.

Scientists believe that about half of all breast cancer tumors involve estrogen receptors, which seek out the estrogen (a female hormone) necessary for the tumor's growth. Hormonal therapy can check the recurrence of estrogen-related breast cancer following surgery by upsetting the body's balance of estrogen. When this is not effective, anti-cancer drugs are given (chemotherapy).

The study, reported in a recent issue of the New England Journal of Medicine, found that 86 per cent of the patients whose tumors contained estrogen receptors responded favorably to chemotherapy. In contrast, the response rate for patients without the receptors was only 36 per cent.

University of Minnesota findings contradict a similar National Cancer Institute (NCI) study released in July in which only 12 per cent of the patients with estrogen-related tumors responded to the chemotherapy. Minnesota researchers believe the low response reported by NCI resulted from a patient sample that was not representative of all breast cancer patients.

Breast is the most common site of cancer in women. Some 90,000 American women develop breast cancer each year. In the study, cancer specialists analyzed clinical data from 143 women over age 55 who had recurrent breast cancer. Members of the research team included Daniel Frenning, Anne Goldman, Virginia Ascensao, and B.J. Kennedy.

The Debt Grows

Information from the chamber of commerce of the United States again reminds us of how the national debt has rocketed upward. Following are the comments provided by the national organization:

When the government borrows huge amounts of money to finance budget deficits, it tends to drive up interest rates and to dry up sources of money, mainly at the expense of business seeking capital funds to invest in new jobs.

In a recent message to its national membership, the chairman of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, Shearon Harris, made the point that not much can be done to curb inflation if the government continues to move "in the opposite direction" by running repeated deficits, even in good times.

"There is no question," he says, "but that government is the main inflationary force. . .through excessive spending that breeds huge budget deficits. . .through tax policies that discourage saving and investing, and stifle the productivity improvements necessary to restrain inflation. . .and through runaway regulations that impose ever-increasing costs on business."

"To illustrate the size of the problem, the federal government's tax receipts in 1950 averaged $269 per capita. By 1977, the average rose to $1,634. That tells you something about the rapidly growing government scale in our society.

"It's not surpirsing, therefore," says Harris, "that inflation has become such a plague."

Inflation averaged barely more than 1 per cent in the 1960's but soared to an average of almost 7 per cent in 1970-75. In this year, it may run as high as 8 or 9 per cent.

If you haven't noticed, the federal debt — a product of deficit budgeting — is rapidly moving toward the trillion-dollar mark. It soon will be an estimated $850.

The table below, reprinted from the Congressional Record, tells the sad story. Where will it end? Taxpayers can only ask.

Future Concern

Following editorial is from the St. Cloud Times:

Minnesota's business climate warrants both satisfaction and concern, a study by the Federal Reserve Bank finds.

Whether or not the climate is good has been a matter of sometimes heated debate during the past year. Business people have warned that various factors, primarily tax-related, were making Minnesota hostile to business. Many politicians hotly contended that business climate was ideal and that Minnesota was worth higher taxes to locate in.

Now that the elections are over and political aspects of the debate have ended, the Federal Reserve Bank has issued its assessment. Its conclusion is that Minnesota has been economically healthy during the past two decades but that it has begun to stagnate in some areas.

From 1960 through 1977, the state ranked second among 12 north central states in growth in total wage and salary employment, the study found. During that time it had the highest level of state and local taxes among the group.

In 1970, Minnesota stood about even with adjacent states in its state and local taxation. Since then, however, Minnesota's state and local taxes have grown 18 per cent while the adjacent states' have fallen from 1 to 8 per cent.

In the 1960s, Minnesota led in manufacturing job growth among north central states. From 1969 to 1973, Minnesota remained steady in manufacturing job growth while adjacent states grew (One states' jobs grew by 8.4 per cent.) Since 1973, Minnesota's manufacturing jobs have expanded only by 1.4 per cent.

There has been little real growth in capital investment in Minnesota since the beginning of the decade, the Federal Reserve Bank found.

Minnesotans can be proud of their accomplishments over the past years. However, the signs warn that the state must look to the future, not dwell on the past.

State residents expressed their concern, we think, in their choices at the ballot box in November. There have been indications in state government that the concerns over the business climate are being taken seriously.

Minnesota's economic conditions are healthy now, as the Fed report shows. However, if attention is not paid to the future, and appropriate action not taken future conditions will not be healthy.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Apprehended by the game warden for having well over the limit of large fish, Big Ole offered to show the warden his technique. Early the next morning they shoved off from the landing on Lake Olaf, rowed to a likely looking spot and dropped anchor. The warden selected a lure and began to cast. Big Ole took from his tackle box a stick of dynamite, lit it and tossed it into the lake. As stunned fish floated to the surface, Big Ole started to scoop them up with the net.

"You can't do that," sputtered the astonished warden. "You're breaking all the laws. By the time I get done writing tickets for you we'll both be old and gray. It will take you 10 years after you get out of jail to get enough money to pay the fines. "I'm going to . ."

While the warden raved, Big Ole took another stick of dynamite, lit it and handed it to the officer. "Now den," he said, "are yew going to talk all day, or are yew going to fish tew?"

A minister and his wife were discussing two men in the local news. "I knew them both as boys," the minister said. "One was a clever, handsome fellow and the other a steady, hard worker. I see where the hard worker just left an estate of $750,000 to his widow. It's a great moral." "Yes, it is," replied the wife with a smile. "I heard this morning the clever one is going to marry the widow."

THESE TWO PUPS, littermates of an apparent black Labrador and Golden Retriever cross, are scheduled to be destroyed soon at the Thief River Falls dog pound if homes can not be found for them. Anyone interested in either of the pups — one male and one female — may call for the animal patrol officer at the Pennington county law enforcement center (681-6161).

Public Hearings To Be Held On Monthly Telephone Rates

The Minnesota Public Service Commission has ordered a series of eleven public hearings in January and February to discuss proposed changes in Extended Area Service (EAS) and the basic monthly rate you pay.

EAS allows customers in one community to call another community without a long distance charge. If you have EAS today, you are paying for it in your basic monthly telephone rates.

The PSC is now considering different methods of pricing this service. This could result in either an increase or a decrease in the rates you now pay. The Commission has indicated it will reach a decision on this new rate structure by April 1, 1979.

At the hearings, telephone subscribers will also be able to express their views on a proposal to establish a single rate for basic telephone service in all communities outside the Twin Cities metropolitan area. Depending on the size of your community, the rates may go up or down.

For example, a one-party residence telephone customer's monthly bill for both EAS and the single rate group proposals would change as follows:

THIEF RIVER FALLS $1.18 decrease

Rates for a separate plan, proposed by Northwestern Bell, also will be available at the hearings.

If you have an interest in these proposals and their effect on your telephone bill, you're invited to attend one of the hearings listed below to get more information and express your views.

Prowlers Face Tough January

That was a fine performance Friday by the Lincoln high school hockey team in a 6-2 victory over a St. Thomas Academy team that lost a close 3-1 contest at Roseau the night before when Thief River Falls was flat in losing a 4-1 contest to Benilde-St. Margaret's.

Those back-to-back games against the metropolitan area teams reflected the 1978 portion of the 1978-79 Thief River Falls season. The roller-coaster Prowlers opened with a 7-2 win over Mount St. Benedict, suffered an unexpected 3-2 setback at Bemidji, came up with a timely 3-1 victory over Grand Forks Red River but then lost to Benilde-St. Margaret's before bouncing back against St. Thomas Academy.

Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand, who made numerous line changes for the Benilde-St. Margaret's and St. Thomas Academy games, will have to find a method for stabilizing the play of the Prowlers heading into a demanding January schedule.

After resuming play Fri., Jan. 5, against Lake of the Woods, Thief River Falls runs into a stretch that includes games Jan. 9 at East Grand Forks, Jan. 13 vs. Greenway-Coleraine, Jan. 16 at Grand Forks Central and Jan. 20 vs. Roseau. The month also includes games Jan. 23 at Warroad, Jan. 27 vs. Bemidji and Jan. 30 vs. East Grand Forks.

Those successive Saturday games in the Thief River Falls sports arena against Greenway-Coleraine and Roseau should provide the Prowlers with their biggest crowds of the year. Both the Raiders and the Rams are among the state's best and should bring unbeaten marks into town.

Northmen Lead Nation In Scoring

Northland community college basketball team was the highest scoring team in the nation according to the first NJCAA release of the 1978-79 season.

The ratings, which included Northland's season-opening three-game performance in the Red River invitational tournament in Winnipeg, showed the Northmen averaging 106 points per game.

That average has since dropped off, but Northland should still be among the national leaders since only two teams averaged over 100 points in the first release.

Miscellaneous

+Bemidji high school football team has replaced Fargo South with Little Falls as a 1979 opponent. The Lumberjacks will again play Crosby-Ironton, Detroit Lakes, Fergus Falls, East Grand Forks, Park Rapids, Thief River Falls, Crookston and Grand Rapids.

+Wadena shot 57 per cent from the floor and had all five starters scoring in double figures in a 94-72 high school basketball win over Sauk Centre. Brad Willis, a 6-5 junior center, led the way with 25 points as the Indians, who'll be in Thief River Falls Jan. 26, improved their record to 5-2. Ralph Anderson of the Detroit Lakes Tribune said Willis, a starter since his sophomore season, "ranks as one of the finest underclassmen in the Mid-State Conference and certainly will be a target of a few recruiting battles before deciding on a college."

+Roseau high school and University of Minnesota graduate Robbie Harris is an assistant hockey coach at Hamline University in St. Paul.

+Crosby-Ironton jumped out to a 20-0 lead and crushed Park Rapids 85-46 in a lopsided Mid-State Conference basketball game. Thief River Falls will close out its 1978-79 regular season schedule Feb. 15 at Park Rapids. The Prowlers play Saturday at International Falls, a recent 65-48 loser to Iron Range Conference leader Hibbing.

Northmen Split Against Normandale, Inver Hills

Unable to beat MJCAA state tournament nemesis Normandale, the Northland community college basketball team settled for a 99-91 win over defending state champion Inver Hills Friday to complete a challenging two-day assignment at Willmar.

Normandale, a state tournament winner over Northland in 1974 and 1975, out-scored the Northmen 93-85 Thursday. Inver Hills was a 1976 state tournament winner over Northland.

The split left Northland with a 7-3 record. The Northmen will be idle until Mon., Jan. 8, when Lake Region visits Thief River Falls for a 7:30 p.m. game.

Normandale 93
Northland 85

Normandale grabbed 67 rebounds Thursday for a 93-85 win over Northland. The Lions out-rebounded the Northmen 67-48, including a 32-27 edge on their offensive boards.

"They killed us on the boards," admitted Northland coach Chet Engelman. "If we wouldn't have been murdered on the boards so bad it might have been a little different. On our boards it wasn't so bad (35-18), but on their boards, where we're suppose to get the rebounds, they killed us."

Normandale scored the first eight points of the afternoon and was never headed, building a 19-4 cushion 7½ minutes into the game. Northland, trailing 38-21, erupted for 13 straight points to narrow the gap to 38-34 with 4:53 remaining in the first half but then surrendered 10 straight points and trailed at intermission 51-43.

Another 10-point Northland burst widened the gap to 70-49 midway through the second half.

Both teams had four double figure scorers, headed by Normandale's Dean Anderson with 21 points and Northland's Jon Nelson with 18.

Shooting figures were similar. Northland made 33 of 78 field goal attempts for 42 per cent while Normandale hit 36 of 83 shots for 43 per cent. The Northmen connected on 19 of 27 free throw tries while the Lions sank 21 of 33 gift tosses.

There were 67 turnovers in the game, 35 by Normandale. "It was loose," mentioned Engelman.

After building a secure 96-77 lead with four minutes remaining in the game, Northland went scoreless until the final seconds of a 99-91 victory over Inver Hills.

Freshman guard Vince Parker scored 23 points for the Northmen who led 53-44 at halftime.

Once again Northland was beaten badly on the boards, 63-48, but Inver Hills was charged with 40 turnovers to negate the Giants' board strength.

"We got beat on the boards, but they turned the ball over so damn much," commented Northland coach Chet Engelman who saw plenty of room for improvement in the two-day Northland performance, but noting the team's late practice start and recent additions said, "By the time we get into league games - the ones that count - we'll be ready."

Northland also compensated for its rebounding deficiency by shooting a strong 53 per cent from the field (42-for-80). Inver Hills shot 41 per cent (36-for-87). Northland was 15-for-27 at the free throw line where Inver Hills was 17-for-27.

A QUICK whistle disallowed this apparent second period Thief River Falls goal during Thursday's high school hockey game played here against Benilde-St. Margaret's. The Prowlers' Wade Hoppe (13) shot the puck past goalie Chris Gabler of the Red Knights, but a split second after a whistle stopped play. Others identifiable in the picture are Jim Thompson (15) of Thief River Falls, along with Bart Duffy (3) and John Delanger (2) of Benilde-St. Margaret's.

Prowlers Lose To Benilde, Beat St. Thomas Academy

Bouncing back from a lackluster performance in a 4-1 Thursday loss to Benilde-St. Margaret's, the Lincoln high school hockey team was impressive Friday in a 6-2 victory over St. Thomas Academy to gain a split in the annual twinbill holiday offering of metropolitan opponents.

Comparing the two games, Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand said the Prowlers "moved the puck a lot better" against St. Thomas Academy. "When we passed the puck, we received it. We played a little more the way we'd like."

On the loss to Benilde-St. Margaret's, Grand said, "We didn't play that badly. We had a lot of opportunities that we didn't cash in on."

Switching opponents, Benilde-St. Margaret's was beaten by Roseau 9-1 Friday. The Rams edged St. Thomas Academy 3-1 Thursday.

Thief River Falls returns to action Friday when the Prowlers host Lake of the Woods in a 7:30 p.m. Section 8 game.

A pair of first period breakaway goals spaced just 40 seconds apart carried Benilde-St. Margaret's to a 4-1 win over a Thief River Falls team that was playing shorthanded at the blueline.

John Kuzara broke into the open and beat goalie Bill Jury with a point-blank backhand at 7:46 and moments later impressive-looking Dave Mogush was home free, lifting the puck over Jury from the opposite side — to the left of the net — with a wrist shot.

Thief River Falls, playing without the service of injured defenseman Joe Dee, fell behind 3-0 just 15 seconds into the second period when Tom Peller intercepted a pass in front of the Thief River Falls net and beat Jury with a quick shot.

Two Thief River Falls scoring opportunities fell by the wayside in the second period when an apparent Wade Hoppe goal was disallowed because of a whistle a split second earlier and when a Bob Fitzgerald blast from the point got through goalie Chris Gabler but stopped an inch short of the goal line.

Fitzgerald, moved to the blueline for most of the night, was reunited with linemeates Hoppe and Jim Thompson for a third period goal. Hoppe scored at 1:45 to make it 3-1.

But Kuzara iced the game at 5:48 when his tipped at a John Graham power slap shot from the point.

Benilde-St. Margaret's coach John Haider, pleased with his team's performance, noted, "When we play a good team, that's the way we play." The Red Knights improved their record to 3-3 with the win and Haider said, "All three of our wins have been against good teams. Our losses have all been to teams we should have beaten."

Gabler, a sophomore making only his third appearance, kicked out 23 shots and earned praise from Haider who also had good words for Mogush, a strong senior center. "He's a real prospect," said Haider of Mogush, a three-year regular. "We can always expect him to do something for us."

Jury was forced to make 21 saves in the first two periods before giving way to sophomore Jeff Mongoven in the final 15 minutes.

St. Thomas 2

Three second period Thief River Falls power play goals broke open a scoreless hockey game and the Prowlers rolled to a 6-2 win over St. Thomas Academy.

First goal was scored by Scott Sabo who was allowed to come from behind the net into the slot where his low, hard wrist shot put the Prowlers on the scoreboard at 4:45.

Wade Hoppe put a rising slap shot from the point over goalie Kurt Goulet's shoulder at 10:12 and Dave Geatz did likewise at 12:13.

Those power play goals didn't sit too well with St. Thomas Academy coach Len Fricke who watched his team accumulate 11 of the game's 16 penalties, including seven in the decisive second period. "I thought the officiating was poor," said Fricke. "We're the same team that played a clean game last night."

St. Thomas Academy made an attempt to get back into the game when Tom Emmer was set up in front by a beautiful behind-the-back goal mouth feed by Mark Pilney just 1:40 into the third period.

However, it was a 4-1 game just 35 seconds later when Jim Thompson connected. That goal decided the issue right there, pointed out Fricke who said his team played "a lot better" the night before at Roseau.

Thief River Falls' lead ballooned to 6-1 when Sabo scored his second goal of the game on a tip-in at 3:23 and Mark Huot, one of just three defensemen used by the Prowlers on a regular basis, capped a strong game with a slap shot from the point at 11:43.

St. Thomas Academy closed the scoring just 10 seconds into a late-game power play. Pilney got the goal at 13:25.

Goulet, a sophomore backup netminder, stopped 32 shots for the youthful 2-4 Cadets who skated two sophomores on their first line and had a freshman defenseman starting the game. Bill Jury of the Prowlers kicked out 20 shots.

Charge Hunters For Being 37 Birds Over Limit

An overbag of waterfowl has resulted in over $2,000 in fines and loss of firearms for nine Minnesota shooters according to special agents of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS).

The October 1 apprehension by state and federal authorities confiscated 77 birds which included 55 mallards, seven wigeon, six pintails, five shovelers, two blue-winged teal, one gadwall and one redhead.

Total bag of mallards was 37 birds over the maximum allowable limit for the nine shooters.

The shooters showed no intention of stopping their actions while being observed by wildlife authorities. None of the downed ducks were retrieved prior to the apprehension, and it took authorities nearly three hours using dogs to retrieve the birds.

Six of the defendants pled guilty to the charges brought before them by Judge John Claeson in Elbow Lake.

The violations took place on a private marsh in Grant county, located in the west-central part of Minnesota.

James Andrew Koonce, Fridley and Leonard Eugene Loehr, Forest Lake, were each fined $400, had their firearms confiscated and lost their Minnesota hunting privileges for one year.

Martin Joseph Tschida and John Joseph Tschida, both of St. Paul each received 1400 in fines, plus the loss of their firearms and loss of hunting and fishing privileges in Minnesota for one year.

Martin Joseph Tschida, Jr., also of St. Paul was charged with the same violation, but charges will be dropped and his firearm returned if he incurs no violations during the next year.

Randy Orville Reuss and Todd Merton Ronhovde, Barrett, each were fined $250 plus the loss of their firearms. These defendants are awaiting final sentencing. Another defendant, also of Barrett, pled not guilty and is awaiting final court action.

One juvenile defendant in the case also is awaiting further court action.

St. James, EGF Capture Arctic Cat Hockey Titles

An overtime and a rout decided championship games Friday in the sixth annual Thief River Falls Pee-Wee A and Bantam A Arctic Cat hockey tournament.

Winnipeg St. James won the Pee-Wee A crown with a 5-4 championship game overtime win over Crookston. East Grand Forks won the Bantam A title with a 9-0 blitz of Moorhead.

Fergus Falls teams came away with a pair of third place finishes, beating Moorhead 10-2 in the Pee-Wee A division and taking Thief River Falls 5-3 in the Bantam A play.

The three-day event began Wednesday under a two-division, round-robin format for each age group. Division winners after two days of play met in the championship games while division runner-ups played for third place.

Pee-Wee A portion of the event came up shorthanded when the Rivereast Royals of Winnipeg failed to show and the Thursday snowstorm kept East Grand Forks from returning.

Thief River Falls Pee-Wee's lost twice in the tournament, falling to Crookston 7-4 Wednesday morning and losing to Fergus Falls 9-3 Wednesday afternoon. The hosts were scheduled to play the Rivereast Royals Thursday.

Playing four games in the Bantam A tournament, Thief River Falls finished 2-2 with wins over the Crestview Cats of Winnipeg 5-1 and Devils Lake 8-1 but losses to Moorhead 4-3 and Fergus Falls 5-3.

March Of Dimes Snowmobile Ride Is Scheduled For Feb. 1-2

February 1 and 2 running of the second annual March of Dimes super 400 snowmobile marathon is expected to attract over 100 snowmobilers throughout Minnesota.

The super 400 is a 200 mile, two-day journey from Blaine in the Twin Cities to Brainerd. Riders solicit pledges per mile from friends and businesses.

On February 1, riders will travel 130 miles to Izaty's Resort near Lake Mille Lacs where they will spend the night. At 7:30 the morning of February 2, the 100 riders will finish the 70 more miles into Brainerd.

Last year 46 riders braved 30 below temperatures and raised $20,200. This year 100 riders will make the same trip with hopes of raising well over $40,000.

Yamaha motor corp. will pay for the riders lodging and meals the first night at Izaty's, and lodging for the riders and their spouses for the weekend in Brainerd.

When the 400 arrives in Brainerd on February 2, the ceremonies for the running of the seventh annual Scorpion-March of Dimes celebrity marathon will begin.

The celebrity Marathon annually attracts over 30 well known celebrities from all over the nation and Minnesota.

Wisconsin Is Offering Maps To Fishermen

An index of over 2,300 Wisconsin mapped lakes will help many ice fishermen enter the charmed circle of experts.

A mapped lake is actually a hydrographic map. So what's a hydrographic map? A hydrographic map shows the various depths of a lake along with other information that is so desirable to have for fishing. . .such as kind of lake bottom (sand, mud, gravel, etc. . .)

Suppose you want to fish for perch. You know his feeding habits and at what depths and over what kind of bottom he would be. With a hydrographic map you can see at a glance the general contour of the lake bottom and the exact depth of any given place along with the kind and condition of the bottom. No more cutting through a foot of ice to find six inches of water underneath.

The Wisconsin index is available at no charge by sending a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Wisconsin Lake Maps, Box 5096, Madison, WI 53705.

"FESTIVALS OF CHAMPIONS" — 1979 ROSE PARADE FLOAT THEME

"Festivals of Champions", saluting Minnesota community celebrations, will be the theme of the Minneapolis Aquatennial/Saint Paul Winter Carnival float entry in the 90th Tournament of Roses Parade on New Year's Day in Pasadena, California.

The 50 foot float, co-sponsored by the Saint Paul Winter Carnival and the Minneapolis Aquatennial Association, will compliment the Rose Parade theme of "Our Wonderful World of Sports." The float will highlight nationally prominent amateur athletic competitions and other sporting events provided by Minnesota civic celebrations, such as Saint Paul Winter Carnival's National Outdoor Speed Skating competition and Aquatennial's AAU Swimming and Diving meet. The float, depicting a variety of summer and winter sports, will feature a large garden trellis with hanging flowers. Several brightly colored floral balloons will drift from the trellis toward the front and back of the float where six large white lattice work medallions will depict the summer and winter festival sports activities of Minnesotans. Bright yellow, orange, and red blossoms will symbolize the brilliance of summer sun, while stark white mums and stattice will depict the elegance of winter white.

Planning for the "Festivals of Champions" float began last March when the Rose Parade theme was announced. However, the most interesting aspect of the float building process begins just 48 hours before parade time when dozens of volunteers begin feverishly flowering the float. Last year's Aquatennial/Winter Carnival float won the Tournament of Roses Parade National Trophy for the most beautiful float entry from outside the state of California. The Minnesota float has traditionally placed first in its category in each of the ten years it has been entered in competition.

The "Festivals of Champions" float will feature Queen of the Snows Marlene Richter and King Boreas XLII Daniel F. Dolan riding with Queen of the Lakes Becky Rear and Aquatennial President Fredrick Dresser.

The festival delegations will conduct over 35 public appearances representing the Minneapolis-Saint Paul area and the State including stops at Disneyland, Knott's Berry Farm, NBC and Burbank Studios. The highlight of the trip will be the entourage's appearance in the Tournament of Roses Parade followed by their attendance at a visiting dignitaries luncheon and the Rose Bowl Game. Air travel for the group will be coordinated by Western Airlines, and on-location travel will be provided by National Car Rental System.

While visiting Southern California, the Aquatennial representatives will stay at the luxurious Sheraton Newport Beach Hotel in Newport Beach, while the Saint Paul delegation will be housed at the Holiday Inn, Pasadena.

In addition to the 2 million parade spectators that line the streets of Pasadena beginning the night before the parade, over 125 million viewers will share in the enjoyment of the annual floral extravaganza through national television and telestar broadcast. The parade will be broadcast locally on CBS, NBC, and Metro Media television beginning at 10:00 a.m. on New Year's Day.

Animals Have Busy Year During 1978

A newsy year for the human race, 1978 had its share of wars, floods, earthquakes, inflation and other untoward events.

It was also a big news year for wildlife, according to a survey by the National Wildlife Federation. It was the year in which a tiny fish, the snail darter, stopped construction of a $120 million dam in Tennessee and a diamondback rattlesnake, concealed in a mailbox as a murder weapon, bit and nearly killed a Los Angeles attorney. It was a year in which hundreds of other animals made headlines.

A few of them made the news tickers by getting kidnapped — a 75-pound Galapagos turtle named Little Rock that was whisked from a Brooklyn motel room; a large octopus that was eventually abandoned on the floor of a San Francisco ladies' room; a batch of snakes valued at $5,000 abducted from Glen Burnie, Md. reptile house; and nine pigs. Well, it was orginally one pig, stolen from a farm in Washington County, Mo., but by the time she reached St. Louis she had produced eight piglets.

There were also a lot of animals who were harshly reminded that it's a man's world: Willie the whale, who strayed into port at Cherbourg, France and paralyzed harbor traffic for five days before dying of starvation; thousands of fish who were poisoned in Dijon, France when a disgruntled employee poured $600,000 worth of his boss's fine burgundy into village sewers; a deer who crashed through a Beltsville, Md. woman's bathroom window and landed in her bathtub; and a colony of eager beavers who were trapped and relocated when when their dams flooded pastures, fields and gardens around Moscow, Idaho.

Some critters made news by making unusual adjustments to man's presence. A city-wise fox set up housekeeping under the bleachers in Yankee Stadium. And in Baltimore, Md. a peregrine falcon, normally a bird of the wildreness, settled on the 32nd floor of a downtown building. Her new neighbors named her Scarlet.

The animal who behaved most like a human in 1978? It would have to be Koko, a 130-pound California gorilla who's learned 375 "words" in the sign language used by the deaf. Koko learned to lie, insult and swear in sign language — all human failings.

This year people came up with new ways to make a living with the assistance of animals. A Virginia man hit the road with Victor, a wrestling bear. Victor never loses and celebrates his wins by licking the faces of his prostrate human challengers. In England, a petshop began selling cockroaches. The shop owner said they make ideal pets because they don't eat much and you can go on vacation and leave them on their own.

In an attempt to keep coyotes from preying on ranchers' sheep, biologists in western Canada reported that they are trying to convince coyotes that sheep just don't taste good. They're injecting dead sheep with lithium chloride and then leaving them for the dog-like wild animals. The lithium chloride doesn't kill the coyotes, just gives them an upset stomach.

In Washginton, D.C. government scientists announced that they're trying a different tactic. They're attempting to train a shaggy-haired Hungarian dog, the Komondor, to protect sheep from coyotes. In preliminary tests, they said, the hulking 120-pound watchdogs — which can cost up to $500 — intimidated caged coyotes simply by walking past them.

If the tests succeed, the use of Komondors may turn out to be the shaggy dog story of 1979.

Beethoven Will Be Aired On PBS-TV Series

Nine Beethoven symphonies will be presented on Prairie Public Television in a nine-week series featuring Antal Dorati and the Detroit symphony orchestra, premiering Sun., Jan. 7 at 3 p.m.

E.G. Marshall hosts "A Beethoven Festival," taped in Detroit during a two-week-long Beethoven festival in November 1977. The festival coincided with the 150th anniversary of Beethoven's death.

Dorati's reflections on Beethoven paint a picture of the master composer that may surprise some viewers. He was, according to the conductor, rather unattractive, rough, ill-mannered and physically tormented. But his less than laudatory personal characteristics did not carry forward to his music. Indeed, Dorati points out, Beethoven's advancing deafness may have been to his ultimate advantage as a composer. "He listened with his soul," says Dorati. "His struggles, his problems, his tragedy actually became our blessings."

Beethoven's music has universal appeal. His rich and uplifting arrangements are embraced by the musical sophisticate and casual listener alike. However, Dorati advises that Beethoven's nine symphonies are not to be taken lightly. "You cannot listen casually to Beethoven. He demands the same concentration of the audience as he put into writing it."

Each program in the series opens with Marshall and Dorati at appropriate Detroit area locations discussing the symphony to be performed that evening. For instance, the introduction to the Fourth Symphony, which Dorati calls the "symphony of nature," is set on the grounds of the beautiful Cranbrook Institute. And the Ninth Symphony, which invites visions of odes and church hymns, is introduced at the Old Mariner's church on Detroit's riverfront.

State Office For Boschwitz In St. Paul

Minnesotans used to visiting the Bremer building in downtown St. Paul to talk about their problems with a U.S. Senator's staff will find themselves on familiar ground when they seek the ear of newly-elected Senator Rudy Boschwitz.

Boschwitz announced this week that his Minnesota office will be located after the first of the year in the same space formerly occupied by Wendell Anderson's staff.

"It's a good location, a central spot easily reachable by those living in the state's major population center," explained Boschwitz.

"The equipment we need is already in place, a fact that will help us get off to a good start in handling the 100,000 pieces of mail we expect to have received by the time we move there from our temporary headquarters."

Boschwitz' staff will begin work at the new location, 210 Bremer Building, 419 North Robert Street, on Wednesday, the day the senator's official duties begin. Mary Hauser will serve as coordinator for the Minnesota office staff.

To further ensure that easy access to the new Senator's staff is continued, Boschwitz said the office will keep Anderson's former phone number, 612-221-0904.

Still to be decided are details for outstate, regional offices, according to Vin Weber, head of Boschwitz' Minnesota operations. To best reach all Minnesotans, Weber said he is considering several options: Establishing permanent offices in several outstate locations, using a mobile van to move among Minnesota towns, and possibly coordinating Senator Boschwitz' outstate services with those of Senator David Durenberger.

NWRDC Art Board To Meet

Arts advisory committee of the Northwest regional development commission will meet January 5 at 1 p.m. at the Northwest regional development commission in Crookston. Agenda items will include review of grant applications and the plan update. This meeting is open to the public.

Eddie Bollie Loses Home In Gatzke Fire

Eddie Bollie of Gatzke, who narrowly escaped from his burning 8x30 mobile home near Gatzke the night of December 23, has been the recipient of a number of gifts and other assistance which he recognized in a letter to the Times.

Bollie said in the letter that he awakened to find the trailer filled with smoke about midnight and was scarcely able to get outside in time to save himself. In the confusion of escape, he grabbed one bunny boot and one four-buckle overshoe.

Several days later he got a ride to Thief River Falls with Albert and Ida Peterson and told them he was going to buy a new pair of four-buckle overshoes. At Hamilton's Clothing, Bollie wrote, owner Art Hamilton not only gave him the overshoes but a good pair of pants as well.

Others who arranged to provide assistance or replacement of items lost in the fire were Eddie's brother Albert Bollie, Dwayne Nelson, Arnold Engelstad, Gatzke senior citizens, Albert and Ida Peterson, Ingvald Anderson, Young's store, Mylan Abrahamson and American Legion auxiliary unit 444.

Bollie said he has "a thousand thanks" for all those who have helped him following the fire.

Euclid Man Charged In Patrol Officer Shooting

As a result of a shotgun blast which caused the loss of three fingers for a Minnesota state patrolman stationed in Thief River Falls, Anthony Junior Gores of rural Euclid has been charged with attempted first degree murder and aggravated assault and bound over to Pennington county district court.

Gores, 31, who was arrested at 9:20 p.m. Sunday in East Grand Forks, appeared in county court for initial hearing Tuesday afternoon in Thief River Falls. District court appearance was set for Thursday at 9:30 a.m. and John Roue of Fosston, assistant public defender, was appointed by the court to represent the defendant. Gores is being held at the Pennington county law enforcement center in lieu of $30,000 bond.

Hospitalized at Northwestern hospital services in Thief River Falls since the incident shortly before midnight Saturday is Harold J. Blazek, 38, an officer of the Minnesota state patrol for the past 11 years and formerly a member of the Thief River Falls police department.

Harold Blazek

Sheriff Charles Richards, whose department headed investigation of the shooting together with the state patrol and Minnesota bureau of criminal apprehension, gave the following account of the incident and action leading up to Gores' arrest:

At 11:47 p.m. December 30, Officer Blazek stopped a pickup truck which passed him about seven miles west of Thief River Falls on highway 1 and which displayed no tail lights. He got out of his patrol car and approached the pickup with his flashlight in his right hand.

As he came close enough to the cab of the pickup to speak to the driver, he saw a shotgun poked out of the window of the pickup. He jumped back as the gun was fired, the main charge of pellets striking him in the hand that held the light and other pellets hitting him in the right side of the face.

A left-handed shooter, he drew his revolver and fired two shots at the back of the pickup which left the scene. He then returned to the patrol car, switched to the emergency frequency and radioed that he had been hit and what his location was. He also described the pickup as an older model light blue Chevrolet with a white topper. Then he started driving back to Thief River Falls until he was met by law enforcement officers coming to give assistance.

Search began immediately for a vehicle answering the description given and several meeting that description were checked out, Sheriff Richards said. A highway patrol airplane was brought in to aid in the search from the air and other law enforcement authorities in this area of the state were put on alert.

On a tip from a law enforcement officer in a nearby community who remembered seeing Gores driving a light blue pickup with a topper, a search warrant was obtained through Polk county officials on Sunday. Officers who went to the Gores residence near Euclid Sunday evening found a light blue pickup with two bullet holes in the back.

Gores, who was with his wife in another vehicle, was arrested in East Grand Forks at 9:20 p.m. by the East Grand Forks police department, Marshall county sheriff's department and the state patrol. Sheriff Richards said that investigation revealed Gores' drivers license was under revocation for driving while under the influence of intoxicants.

During investigation conducted by local and area law enforcement officers, a 12 gauge single barrel shotgun — sawed off at both barrel and stock — was found along county road 8 about a mile from the area of the shooting. The weapon has been submitted to the state crime laboratory for analysis.

Sheriff Richards expressed appreciation to members of his department, the state patrol, bureau of criminal apprehension, police departments at Thief River Falls, Warren, East Grand Forks and Grand Forks and the Red Lake, Polk and Marshall county sheriff's departments for their efforts in the investigation and apprehension. He also noted the cooperation of John Winters, Polk county attorney at Crookston, and David Olin, Pennington county attorney.

Farm Census To Start This Week

The 1978 census of agriculture gets underway this week with the mailing of report forms to all farms and ranches in the 50 states, the bureau of the census, U.S. department of commerce, has announced.

Farmers and ranchers are being asked to report on their agricultural operations during 1978. This 1978 census, the nation's 21st farm census in a series that started in 1840, will update data most recently obtained in 1975 for 1974 operations. Information will be sought on all agricultural operations.

With report forms for the 1978 census drastically reduced from the 22 pages of the last census, most agricultural operators will receive a four-page form in the mail, and about 20 per cent will receive a five-page version. The overall time required by farmers to complete the form has been reduced by more than one-third.

The census will continue to monitor trends in domestic ownership and control of land. The last census showed a five-year gain in the number of U.S. corporate farms from 22,000 to 29,000; the amount of acreage they farmed rose from 80 to 97 million acres, and the value of their farm products rose from $6 billion to $14 billion.

The census asks whether the farm is operated by a family or individual, a partnership, a family-held corporation, an investor-owned corporation with more than 10 stockholders, or some other legal entity such as cooperative, estate or trust, grazing association, etc.

The apparent increase in foreign ownership of land has raised questions in the Congress and with business and agricultural groups. In 1974 a department of commerce survey showed about five million acres of the nation's one billion acres of farm land were owned by foreign interests, or less than one-half of one per cent of the total. The new farm census

Commissioners Seat New Member, Elect Chairman

Pennington county commissioners seated a new member of the board, elected a new chairman for the coming year and waded through a number of routine matters at the reorganizational meeting Tuesday before adjourning the meeting to January 16 at 1 p.m. Left hanging until that time were such items as salaries of county officers, clerk hire for offices and discussions with the county sheriff and county engineer.

Albert Koop, third district commissioner elected to succeed Edgar Naplin in the November general election, was the only new member seated on the board at the first meeting of the year. All commissioners were required to present certificates of election, however, since all were elected in the November election as a result of county redistricting.

Roger Hoffman, first district commissioner from rural Goodridge, was elected chairman of the board to succeed Otto Stenberg of Thief River Falls. Glenn Tasa of Trail, fifth district commissioner who has the longest term of service of any county commissioner in Minnesota, was elected vice chairman. Tasa is beginning his 31st year of continuous county board service.

With newly-elected chairman Hoffman presiding, the board moved into routine matters typically handled at the reorganizational meeting. Regular meeting date of the board was continued as the first Tuesday following the first Monday of each month with the exception of July. As prescribed by law, the board is to meet the first Tuesday after the first Monday in January and the second Monday in July. All other meetings are adjourned or special meetings.

Elected and appointed officials of the county were designated as representatives of the county in their respective state associations and are thus eligible for reimbursement of expenses as set forth in the laws upon presentation of a verified-account form.

Following discussion of a proposal by Merle Carlson, county veterans service officer, the board agreed to increase his monthly salary to $518 and allow two additional half-days of work per week as he sees fit. His prior commitment was for five-half-days a week and he had requested a schedule allowing him to make home visits or serve other communities in the county on a regular basis.

Some discussion was devoted to proposed widening of First street and the First street bridge but no cost figures were available from county engineer Arvid Olson.

Commissioner Albert Koop was appointed to serve on the county extension committee along with chairman Roger Hoffman. James Engelstad was reappointed as a member at large on the committee and Orlan Stolaas of Oklee was appointed to succeed Koop as a representative from the fifth district. Koop was a resident of the fifth district until district boundaries were changed in the current redistricting effort.

County Board Holds Annual Meet Tuesday

The county board will again serve as a committee of the whole on the county welfare board with two other citizens from the community completing a seven-member welfare board. The board will also serve in its entirety on the road committee, the bridges and culvert committee and the inter-governmental affairs committee.

Commissioner Glenn Tasa was reappointed to serve as a member of the highway committee of the association of Minnesota counties. Commissioner Otto Stenberg was reappointed to the law library committee and Dr. F. W. Hazard was appointed county livestock inspector at a compensation rate of $20 per month.

Appropriation of $450 was made to the Red River Valley development committee for assistance in operation of the winter shows and $150 to the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) at Oklee to be used for expenses of Inter-County community council board members. Tasa was reappointed to the OEO board.

Resolutions were adopted appointing the state department of transportation as agent of the county for letting of road contracts in 1979 and authorizing the county engineer to request engineering and technical assistance from the department of transportation.

Named to the building and maintenance committee to be responsible for the courthouse, law enforcement center and Oakland Park home property were commissioners Stenberg and Grabanski and county auditor C. W. Rodekuhr. The Times was designated as the official newspaper for publishing of legal notices of the county.

Donald L. Olson was reappointed to the Thief River Falls airport commission to represent the county for 1979. Named as delegates to the Association of Minnesota counties were the five commissioners, county engineer, treasurer and auditor, with a provision made that others may be authorized to attend association functions by the board of commissioners on a non-voting basis.

Sheriff Charles Richards was reappointed to serve as Pennington county representative on the board of the juvenile training center with offices in Bemidji. Auditor Rodekuhr was authorized to pay necessary expenses for postage, freight, express, telephone, water and light and other utility charges from the revenue fund. A contingency fund of $300 was established to pay for incidental expenses of the board of commissioners.

Sheriff Richards and county attorney David Olin were appointed to represent the county on the Region One crime control commission. Commissioner Koop was appointed to serve on the resource conservation and development (RC&D) board for 1979 and Joyce Fox and commissioner Stenberg were appointed to serve on the nursing service board. Commissioner Don Grabanski was appointed to serve on the Chamber of Commerce board.

Brief discussion was held on the county road and bridge programs but no action on updating existing plans were made at this time.

Approval was given to a grant in aid maintenance agreement for snowmobile trails in the area with total funds of $4,875 allocated for the program. The commissioners also authorized $277.33 as Pennington county's share of a deficit in the four-county nursing services budget for 1978.

Farm Census To Start This Week In Area

will measure the increase.

As in earlier censuses, information obtained about farming operations will be published for each of more than 3,000 counties with agricultural operations, for each state and for the entire nation.

Each report form will have a control number printed on the address label. Because response is required by law (Title 13, U.S. Code), each control number must be accounted for by the bureau of the census. Follow-up letters will be sent to non-respondents. Everyone who receives the agriculture census report form should answer the first four items and as much more of the report as applies, and return it, so that it will not be necessary to spend more tax money on obtaining a response.

Despite careful screening of the mailing lists used, some persons not engaged in agricultural activities will receive report forms. Those persons should return the form with that fact noted in order to stop additional mailings.

The 1978 census of agriculture will be conducted as follows:

—All respondents will be asked to report either from their records or by estimate, the amount of farm acreage by type of ownership; land use; acreage, production and sales of crops; inventory, number sold and sales value of livestock and poultry; and selected characteristics of farm operators and farm management.

—About 20 per cent will receive an additional page seeking answers to value of land and buildings, selected production expenses, selected farm equipment, hired farm labor, fertilizer and pesticide use and petroleum fuel usage and storage capacity.

Congress and federal agencies, as well as agricultural and business organizations, universities and other groups rely on this information to develop and revise farm programs. Individual farmers may benefit from a railroad allocating storage cars during grain harvest, or from farm machinery or bulk fertilizer dealerships being located in new areas of farm development.

Stressing that publication of its data will be accomplished more speedily in this census, bureau officials are setting October of 1979 as the beginning data issuance deadline for more than 3,000 individual counties. They expect to publish the additional volumes of statistical information for the state and nation within the following two years.

Census officials also point to these features of the 1978 census:

—A second copy of the report form which the respondent can complete and keep for his own records.

—The option of receiving major county data merely by checking a box on the form.

—A time extension which will be granted farmers who request it.

An improved mailing list, and a "Were You Counted," campaign for any farmer inadvertently omitted.

The law which requires farmers to answer the census items also protects the privacy of answers. Since 1900, census report forms have been confidential by law. They may be seen only by sworn census employees and may be used only for statistical totals. Even other government agencies cannot obtain or use the reports made by any farm operator. Neither can anyone use legal means to obtain a copy of the report retained by the operator in his files.

Farm operators who do not receive a form during the first week of January should request one from the Bureau of the Census, 1201 East 10th Street, Jeffersonville, Indiana 47132.

Be happy, go thrifty with the bargains offered by the Times' Advertisers.

REPORT TO CONSUMERS

Corrosion And Your Car

Rust on your tail pipe? It may surprise you to realize that it's part of an expensive national problem: corrosion. Corrosion is the eating away of metal due to its exposure to various environments, especially moisture.

A comprehensive study undertaken by the National Bureau of Standards (NBS) estimated that metallic corrosion costs the United States about $70 billion a year. Its cost to American automobile owners is between $6 and $14 billion.

Corrosion costs for automobiles fall into one of three categories: money paid for built-in protection, such as heavier, more expensive metals, special designs or special coatings; money spent on maintenance or operating costs, such as the replacement of mufflers, tail pipes, and radiators or painting.

The last category, probably the most costly, is premature replacement—the loss incurred by selling a car early at a reduced value and buying another because of corrosion damage.

Fortunately, the NBS study also indicated that automobile owners could save between $2 and $8 billion through the use of anti-corrosion techniques and improved maintenance.

The more you know about corrosion, what causes it, how it attacks metals, the better able you will be to combat it. Paints, lacquers, inhibitors, and oils can be used effectively with different metals to prevent corrosion. Commercially marketed and homemade preparations can be effective in removing corrosion from a metal object once it has occurred.

A pamphlet, "Corrosion Facts from the Consumer," published by NBS, explains the various types of corrosion, how to prevent and remove them, and a guide to anti-corrosion features to look for when purchasing metal objects. It is available for 80 cents from Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

Water Wells Contaminated With Gasoline

Contamination of water wells with gasoline is a growing problem in Minnesota, according to Dr. Richard Wade, director of the environmental health division at the state health department.

Dr. Wade says the department often receives complaints about wells that have been ruined by gasoline contamination, and department officials are concerned that gasoline contamination of the ground water will become a major problem statewide.

Officials attribute the contamination to leaky underground gasoline storage tanks and distribution systems. "Many of these facilities have been in place for 20 years or more," said Dr. Wade, "and they're beginning to deteriorate with age. Large number of them are or could become sources of pollution."

"Pollution of the ground water is an especially serious problem," he added. "When gasoline contaminates the ground water, it can remain in the ground for several decades or longer. Unlike surface water, which readily flushes and renews itself, ground water can remain polluted for a very long time. And once the ground water in an area has been contaminated, clearing it up is difficult, expensive and usually impossible."

Gasoline contamination is very easy to detect, according to Dr. Wade. Human taste and smell are sensitive to as little as one-half part gasoline in a billion parts water. Anyone concerned about possible gasoline contamination can contact the Minnesota department of health or the Minnesota pollution control agency.

Rail, Waterways And Air Service Included In Federal Programs

Emphsis of recent federal legislation providing financial assistance to local rail lines has shifted from operating subsidies to rehabilitation funds, according to commissioner Jim Harrington of the Minnesota department of transportation.

The new local rail service assistance act supplements the 1976 program which authorized aid only for branch lines which had been approved for abandonment. The recent revision broadens the program to provide help for branch lines before it becomes necessary for them to shut down, Harrington explained.

He noted that Congress also enacted two other pieces of legislation before it adjourned: The inland waterways act and the airline deregulation act. "Each of the three has great significance for Minnesota," he said.

The local rail assistance act extends the eligibility criteria for the program to include all lines carrying up to three million gross tons per year. This revision enables lines more likely to be viable to take advantage of the financial aid.

Harrington added that the federal share of aid for a project has been set at 80 per cent for operating subsidies for the first two years of the project and 70 per cent for the final year. Aid for rehabilitation has been set at 80 per cent throughout.

Under the act, Congress increased funding authorization to about $450 million nationally, including a revised formula which will increase Minnesota's share of funding based on eligible miles. The state's share of funds for fiscal year 1979 is $2.2 million.

In another area of transportation concern, the recently enacted airline deregulation act will have far-reaching impacts upon the scheduled air transportation system and its users, Harrington said.

"No longer will the scheduled air transportation system be shaped by long, drawn-out regulatory proceedings and longer-awaited decisions by the civil aeronautics board. The new act relies upon the forces of actual and potential competition to shape the system. It anticipates that competition will cause airline management to continue to be innovative in its offerings of a variety of fares, services and equipment in the markets that they serve," he said.

Air carriers will have greater flexibility in developing their respective route systems. The may file for a specific nonstop route authority and it must be granted within 60 days if the carrier is "fit, willing and able," the act stipulates. Harrington noted that an air carrier may also protect one such route per year.

Under the old act, he said, many small communities throughout the U.S. are served by air carriers on a subsidy basis. The new act, however, guarantees these communities "minimum essential air transportation" for a period of 10 years. If an air carrier serving one of these communities wants to discontinue service, Harrington said, it must notify the state, city and CAB 90 days in advance. Then the CAB is directed by the act to find a replacement. 'If it can't find a replacement within the time frame, the CAB may compel the carrier to continue service until a replacement is found."

Harrington pointed out that the CAB is directed by the act to take into account the views of states and cities when defining "essential air transportation." He said a meeting will be held in Minneapolis late in January to provide an opportunity for the CAB to obtain these views. Details fo the meeting location and time will be announced at a later date.

The inland waterway act mandates the preparation of a comprehensive master plan for the upper Mississippi river. The preliminary plan, to be prepared by the upper Mississippi river basin commission in cooperation with federal, state and local officials, must be published by Jan. 1, 1982.

The areas to be studied in preparation of the plan are:

+The economic, recreational and environmental objectives of the upper Mississippi river system and how to meet these objectives;

+The ecological and economic impacts of commercial navigation on the river;

+The effect of upper Mississippi river commerical and industrial development on national transportation policy.

+The expansion of a computerized analytical inventory and analysis of the upper Mississippi river system; and

+The need for a second lock at Alton, Ill.

The replacement of Locks and Dam 26 near Alton was authorized by the act at an estimated cost of $421 million for a new dam and a 2,200-foot by 110-foot single lock.

"The replacement of Locks and Dam 26 will allow uninterupted continuation of vital river commerce to and from Minnesota," Commissioner Harrington said.

He pointed out that the bill also imposes a tax on all liquid fuels used by a vessel in commercial waterway transportation on certain inland and intracoastal waterways. The tax will be four cents per gallon in fiscal year 1981, six cents in F.Y. 1982 and F.Y. 1983, eight cents in F.Y. 1984 and F.Y. 1985 and 10 cents per gallon in F.Y. 1986.

A low estimate of 58 million gallons of taxable fuel may be used by vessels in 1981, and the four-cent tax would raise approximately $2.3 million that year. If an estimated 62 million gallons of taxable fuel is used in 1986, about $6.2 million would be raised under the 10-cent tax, Harrington said.

An inland waterways trust fund will be established with revenues from the tax to be used for construction and rehabilitation projects on certain inland waterways and for further waterways studies.

CERTIFICATES OF ELECTION were turned in by all five Pennington county commissioners in a unique situation Tuesday when the board met for its reorganizational meeting. Because of county redistricting, all commissioner positions were filled in the general election in November and all elected commissioners were required to file certificates of election. Left to right are Glenn Tasa, fifth district; Don Grabanski, second district; Roger Hoffman, first district; Albert Koop, third district; and Otto Stenberg, fourth district. Koop is a new commissioner, having defeated incumbent Edgar Naplin in the general election. At the reorganizational session Hoffman was elevated to the chairmanship to succeed Stenberg and Tasa was elected vice chairman.

4-H News

Holt 4-H Club

Holt 4-H club met December 29 at the village hall for its Christmas party and meeting. Elven members, five parents and two visitors were present.

Meeting was called to order by acting president Karen Kjensrud. The flag pledge was recited, followed by the roll call, which was an answer to "What do you think a fjernsheen is?". The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read and approved.

There was no old business. New business included a discussion of the radio speaking contest, which will be held the last Monday in January. New records were handed out, and the group sang happy birthday to Joyce Haglund, who has her birthday during January. Following a motion by Bob Castle, seconded by Bill Castle, the meeting was adjourned.

Members of arts and crafts committee also had a meeting, during which they showed their work to the other members. Participating were Judy Benitt, Daniel and Joyce Haglund, James Moe and project leader Patsy Kjensrud.

Daniel Haglund gave a demonstration on arts and crafts. As part of the program, members bobbed for apples, had a caramel apple eating contest and exchanged gifts.

Next meeting will be held February 15 at the Holt village hall.

Urge Persons To Participate In MN D-Day

Local health officials in 20 Minnesota counties are signing people up for Minnesota D-Day this year. Annual anti-smoking event is set for January 25.

Local sign-up effort is being coordinated through the Minnesota department of health. Official D-Day pledge sheets are available to the public through local community health services and public health nursing agencies in the participating counties.

Individuals who participate in the five-year-old D-Day observance must pledge in advance to stop smoking for that entire day, but D-Day organizers are hoping that the event will have a lasting impact on at least some people. "This isn't just a one shot thing," said D-Day committee member Buddy Ferguson. "we want to see people stop smoking permanently. We want them to get involved with stop-smoking clinics, and other programs designed to help them achieve that goal. Our slogan this year is 'This time, quit for good.' "

Signing an official pledge sheet is an important part of D-Day, according to Ferguson. "If you publicly pledge to quit, you're going to have an extra incentive to actually do it," he noted. "And the pledge sheets can be used to measure the effectiveness of D-Day. Last year we did a survey of D-Day participants four months later, and 15 per cent of them still weren't smoking."

This year marks the first time local health agencies have participated in a coordinated D-Day sign-up campaign. "Better than 20 per cent of the counties in Minnesota are involved in this," said Ferguson, "and we think that's excellent for the first time out." Participating counties are Marshall, Kittson, Crow Wing, Redwood, Clearwater, Pope, Houston, Blue Earth, Kandiyohi, Douglas, Grant, Stevens, Traverse, Nobles, Rock, Fillmore, Becker, Mahnomen, Norman, and Carver.

Farm Groups Back Christmas Seal Campaign

Efforts to safeguard Minnesota farmers against occupational threats to their lungs received strong support when two of the state's largest agricultural organizations gave support to the recent Christmas seal campaign, according to R. Paul Marvin, president of the Minnesota lung Christmas seal association.

Cy Carpenter, president of the Minnesota Farmers Union, said, "Farmers are particularly exposed where they work to dusts, hay mold spores, fibers, gases, and other substances that damage their lungs. Minnesota lung association is attempting to increase awareness of the occupational hazards to farmers, encourage more research, improve medical services, and maintain contact with legislators and government agencies.

"I sincerely hope that each Farmers Union member will continue to support the efforts of the Minnesota lung association by supporting the Christmas seal campaign each year."

Merlyn Lokensgard, president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau federation, said, "We are impressed with the progress organizations such as the Minnesota lung association have made in contributing talent and finances to the battle against respiratory injury and disease. Minnesota Farm Bureau federation commends the Christmas seal program for its work in bettering health and living conditions and encourages citizens — both rural and urban — to continue to lend this worthwhile endeavor their support."

Use New Forms To Report Workers' Wages

Employers in the Thief River Falls area should remember that there's a new way to report employees' wages for social security purposes, according to William Phalen, social security district manager in Grand Forks.

There's also something new to read those reports — a machine called an optical scanner that translates the reports to the magnetic tape language that a computer can understand. Social security administration is concerned because some early reports are being received in a format the optical scanner can't read — and that means more expensive manual processing.

Beginning with 1978 wages, employers are to use Form W-2 (wage and tax statement) to report their workers' earnings. Form W-2 has been revised for 1978 so it can be read by the scanner.

Form W-2's are printed three to a page, and Copy A of the form is to be submitted to social security in just that way — three to a page. Some employers are going to the trouble of cutting the forms apart, which means they cannot be processed by the optical scanner, Phalen said.

Other employers are sending in the Form 941's that were used previously for earnings reports. Some are using older Form W-2's. Those forms cannot be processed by machine either. Employers should use only the 1978 Form W-2, he emphasized, and the entire page must be sent in even if one or two of the forms are blank, he said.

Changeover is part of the switch to annual reporting of employees' earnings. Reports were submitted quarterly in previous years. All Forms W-2 should be submitted with Form W-3 (transmittal of income and tax statements). Forms are available from local internal revenue service offices or from private printers. Deadline for submitting the forms is Feb. 28, 1979.

Detailed instructions for completing the forms are given in the December 1977 "Circular E (Supplement), Employer's Tax Guide." Employers who don't have a copy of Circular E can get one from the nearest internal revenue service office, Phalen said.

Let's Ask The Experts!

By V. J. Adduci

When it comes to saving energy, the people in America's truck and bus industries really appear to be experts. Since 1973, they've instituted voluntary efforts that have saved this country some 1.7 billion gallons of fuel, including 846 million gallons just in 1977, and they're saving fuel at a steeply increasing rate.

Adduci

Organized in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Transportation, the Voluntary Truck and Bus Fuel Economy Improvement Program has identified a number of ways to save, since not all methods and devices work on all types of trucks or buses.

Some 423 million gallons of fuel have been saved in the past five years by adopting radial-ply tires. Radials save by absorbing less energy, which translates directly into fuel savings.

Millions more gallons have been saved by adopting diesels instead of gasoline engines for many short-haul delivery trucks. A number of participants in the Department of Transportation sponsored Voluntary Program have reported twice the miles per gallon.

HELPING SAVE A LOT OF FUEL are the makers and buyers of energy-economical new trucks and buses.

All of these fuel savings lead to cost savings for companies that ship goods by truck, and that can mean savings for consumers. These voluntary fuel-saving efforts are serving the public not only by conserving fuel but by helping the fight against inflation.

It would appear that the Voluntary Program is working where Americans work best—in the free marketplace.

Mr. Adduci is president of the Motor Vehicle Manufacturer's Association.

Visitor Center Progress Made In Marshall Co.

Construction which began July 10 on a new visitor center on the Marshall county fairgrounds near Warren will provide much-needed facilities to meet the growing public interest in history, according to Nancy Solum of the Marshall county historical society.

The historical visitor center will provide research materials to interested individuals and will house the historical society's collections of written materials, portable artifacts and antique farm machinery. A portion of the building will contain an office area and several store display areas which are early county main street reproductions.

Opening off the early county main street portion of the building is a large 60x160 area for the showing of selected antique farm machines from the collections of many area farmers and of pieces donated or loaned by numerous individuals. The ceiling of the store area is reinforced for upstairs storage of unused items and the entire machine and storage area is lit by a combination of flourescent and incandescent lighting.

Remainder of the building is devoted to the store displays and a headquarters for the historical society staff, with a work area for the preparation of exhibits and a small kitchen area to be utilized at meetings and for the preparation of food for the historical society's annual event, the old time settlers fair.

The architects have designed the new center to blend with the exisiting buildings on the historical area of the fairgrounds. The roof line will be patterned after turn-of-the-century buildings with false fronts echoing the silhouettes of hotels, general stores and millinery shops in Marshall county. Exterior materials will be block-embossed tin, brick and stained and painted wood. Windows in the office and old time stores will catch the west light and view of the Alma church, Cook school and Landreville cabin on the west side of the fairgrounds.

The new building was planned to be opened, to the public and tourists for six months of the year. Research and access to the collections would be available year around. In the past only a portion of the available historical materials were accessible to the public; most items were in storage in various parts of the county. The office will be used for slide shows and lectures on the history of the Red River valley.

Marshall county's historical society will meet on Thursday in Marshall county central high school in Newfolden at 7 p.m. to discuss progress of the new center and participation in the Centennial celebration of the county. The new building will be ready for use in mid-summer and will be dedicated at the county fair on July 22.

Grain Exports From State Up $727 Million

Farm value of Minnesota's identifiable grain and oilseed exports via the major terminal elevators through November this year is almost $1.8 billion, an increase of nearly $727 million or 68 per cent greater than for the same eleven months of 1977, agriculture commissioner Bill Walker has estimated.

Overall volume of shipments this year from metropolitan, Duluth Port and Mississippi river grain terminals is estimated at over 644.3 million bushels by the transportation department of the Minneapolis grain exchange. That is higher by 184.75 million bushels or 40 per cent above 1977 volume shipped.

Duluth Port exports of the seven principal grains and oilseeds totaled over 313 million bushels, a 55 per cent increase over 1977 volume exported by ship, rail and truck.

Minneapolis-St. Paul terminal elevator exports this year totaled nearly 299 million bushels, 29 per cent above the 1977 volume shipped through November.

The lion's share of the gain in farm value of exports this year is being provided by soybeans and wheat, with corn also a strong contributor.

Wheat is Minnesota's most valuable export this year, 288.9 million bushels representing a farm value of $797.4 million, a 46 per cent increase.

Soybeans accounted for the biggest increases both in volume and value. This year's shipments totaled 81.2 million bushels, over two and one-half times the 1977 volume, and farm value is estimated at $495.3 million, almost triple last year.

Corn exports totaled 180.5 million bushels, more than double last year, and farm value is estimated at $351.9 million, a 115 per cent increase over 1977.

Oats is the only other export in Minnesota's 1978 grain volume, over 29 million bushels shipped with a farm value of $31.7 million, up one per cent in volume and four per cent in value over last year.

Exports of barley, rye and flaxseed are down this year. Barley shipments totaled 60.8 million bushels worth $110 million; rye shipments 2.7 million bushels worth $5.8 million; and flaxseed shipments 1.2 million bushels worth $5.8 million.

School Art Projects Cramp Kids' Style

by Maureen Smith
'U' M News Service

If you are like most adults, you draw the way you did when you were 10 years old. Your verbal and mathematical skills have advanced, but you never went beyond the chilhood level in art.

Michael Day, head of the art education program at the University of Minnesota, Twin Cities, thinks it's "a tragedy of sorts." Without adequate instruction in art, he said, most children give up when they reach an age of critical awareness and are not satisfied with their drawings. A rich opportunity for expression is then cut off.

All over the world, almost all young children draw. They start by scribbing, and "they actually learn quite a bit from their scribbles," Day said. They learn that they can make something happen, that they can literally "make a mark on the world."

As children scribble they begin to "develop a repertoire or vocabulary of marks," Day said. Between the ages of two and four they typically start to make little shapes. The next step is to invent symbols by attaching meaning to shapes, calling a shape "mommy" or "me." Day said this primitive but significant symbol is "usually a circular shape that emerges from pages of scribbles and marks."

Day drew an analogy with the development of speech. "Scribbles are similar to the babbling sounds," he said. "Naming a scribble is similar to learning a word."

At this early stage, he said, "most adults view children's figure representations as heads with arms and legs protruding where the ears and neck ought to be." Such seemingly incorrect depictions of the human figure are puzzling to adults who know that the child is aware of the major body parts and their relationships.

"The puzzle is solved," Day said, "when one realizes that the circular shape that appears to be the head is really the child's primitive symbol for 'person.' The symbol is developed through additional marks that result in 'person with eyes and a mouth,' 'person with hair,' and 'person with arms and legs.' "

From scribbling marks and primitive symbols children move to schematic drawing systems, Day said. Usually between the ages of six and eight they develop certain ways of drawing. "Little girls often draw little girls. They'll do it the same way over and over again, using pretty much the same basic symbol" with perhaps some variation in the clothing or the hair.

Each of these developmental steps — from scribbles to symbols to schemata — is "a spontaneous occurrence common to children from all parts of the world," Day said.

Another developmental progression is in the shapes children are able to draw. Circular shapes seem to be easiest for children. It might take a couple of years more before they can manage horizontal and vertical lines and draw anything resembling a square. Diagonal lines come later still. "Of the basic shapes, the last thing they can do is the diamond," Day said.

Children also develop in their depiction of spatial relationships. Three- and four-year-olds "think the world revolves around them," and in their drawings the "me" symbol is typically in the center with other persons and objects orbiting around it.

A child who has become aware that people and objects do not float in space is likely to draw figures with their feet planted on the bottom of the page. More sophisticated older children (eight or nine yeard old) will depict figures on a base line.

Children draw pictures about the things that are interesting in their own lives, Day said, and their drawings offer "insight into what they are thinking and feeling." Drawings give children a chance to "work out relationships in the real world in a form they can control. Things can turn out just the way they want them to."

Another advantage of drawing is that children are free to develop their own symbol systems, he said. In school they have to learn the conventional verbal and mathematical symbol systems, but when they draw they can express themselves in their own way.

"Because of the spontaneity of fundamental drawing behavior," Day said, "no instruction is required at early ages." But appropriate instruction could enhance the process, and children need to develop technical competence if they are to continue drawing as they enter adolescence.

"Children's verbal language development is one of the primary concerns of parents and educators and occupies a large proportion of time spent in the education of children," Day said. By contrast, he said, children's "drawing development is virtually unattended to in the schools and in many homes as well."

Children with natural artistic talent often go unrecognized in school, he said. "Some kids pick up math easily, other kids are very verbal, some are very visual. Those who are artistically oriented don't have the opportunity to excel." —

Day recently talked with a young women in one of his classes who showed a natural but undeveloped talent for drawing. She always liked to draw, she told him, but nobody encouraged her and she felt inferior to her academically gifted sister. "She never had the opportunity to develop in the area where she probably would have excelled," Day said. "She never received recognition. I just think that's too bad."

Whether or not they excel in verbal and mathematical skills, Day said, children are cheated when the opportunity for artistic expression is blocked.

Art projects in the schools often stifle creativity, he said. "There are a lot of stereotyped projects." He pulled out what he called a typical example. The children had traced around a shape of a tree — "a pretty dumb tree, to tell you the truth" — and had wadded up little pieces of paper and attached them to the tree to represent flowers or fruit.

"You would walk in the room and see 30 of these hanging up on the wall," Day said. "The kids sort of follow directions and that's about all. There isn't any expression or learning." In other typical projects, the children had been told to recreate someone else's version of a leprechaun or an Easter bunny.

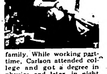
"These are cute little projects that the teachers plan, and some of the parents really like to see that kind of thing, but they are of questionable value. The message the teacher is communicating is, You're not able to draw a leprechaun, so I'll give you one."

For similar reasons, Day doesn't like coloring books. Besides, he said, "so many coloring books are such poor art. The drawings are really stereotypes in themselves. If I wanted my kids to copy somebody else's drawing, I would expose them to the best instead of the poorest.

"Coloring books tend to be baby-sitters. I suppose that's all right once in a while, but children will stay engrossed longer in their own work. Coloring in a coloring book is a pretty mundane activity."

It isn't necessary to turn to coloring books, Day suggested, when the tools for original drawing are so readily at hand. "You just have to have a pencil or some crayons and a piece of paper. I don't think there's any other way a kid can be creative so easily."

BACKGROUND ON BUSINESS



"I was met with an enthusiastic lack of interest."

That's what Chester F. Carlson later said of the reception given to an invention he created after experimenting in his kitchen.

It would have been wise for business executives and investors of the day to have paid more attention, for what Carlson invented 40 years ago — on October 22, 1938 — was xerography.

Xerox Corporation, which developed Carlson's invention into a huge commercial success that brought riches to the inventor and to early investors, is today preeminent throughout the world in the manufacture and servicing of copiers, duplicators, and facsimile devices, all using plain paper.

Carlson, who died in 1968, many times a millionaire, started out far from wealthy. His father was a barber — the son of immigrants — and young Carlson had to go to work at the age of 11 to help support the family. While working part-time, Carlson attended college and got a degree in physics and later, in night school, another degree in patent law.

Carlson's mid-Depression dream of easily made, inexpensive copies proved to be one of the great inflation-beaters of all time. Thanks to competition and advances in xerographic technology, business offices today make copies on Xerox machines for less than when the inventor's idea for an automatic, plain-paper copier first became reality.

Hiller Named As Heart Fund Honorary Chm.

From heart attack victim to workhorse of the Detroit Tigers' bullpen! That's the comeback story of John Hiller, Detroit Tigers' pitcher who has been named the 1979 honorary state heart fund chairman of the Minnesota affiliate of the American Heart association.

According to Lance B. Crombie, Ph.D., state Heart Fund chairman, "Hiller, whose off-season home is in Duluth, had a heart seizure which doctors termed a "myocardial infarction" (heart attack) on Jan. 11, 1971, and spent a month in a Duluth hospital before even permitting his doctor to notify the Tigers of his illness."

Following doctor's directions, Hiller quit cigarette smoking, changed his diet radically and eventually underwent surgery to remove a large portion of his intestines as a means of reducing his cholesterol count. His weight dropped to 160 pounds.

By the spring of 1972, Hiller felt his condition was stable enough for him to return to baseball. His doctors agreed to some activity, so Jim Campbell, the Tigers' general manager, made arrangements for Hiller to become pitching coach of the Tigers' farm club. Running, swimming and pitching batting practice restored the southpaw's vigor and by June of 1972 he was pressing for a chance with the Tigers.

At that point his case was submitted to J. Willis Hurst, a ranking heart specialist at Emory University school of medicine, who reported no more symptoms of the heart attack and who added: "For Mr. Hiller, it is better for him to play baseball than not to play baseball."

With the green light Hiller reported to the Tigers on July 8, 1972, and gradually started working his way back to bullpen duty. With an extensive physical comeback Hiller's rise through the farm system proved successful as he continues to pitch for the Detroit Tigers.

"His courage during the rehabilitation period from his heart attack," Crombie said, "is the reason the Minnesota affiliate of the American Heart association has selected Hiller to represent the association at fund raising functions in the coming year."

Hiller's first official activity was a presentation to more than 150 key Heart association volunteers at the Minnesota affiliate heart fund leadership workshop held recently at the Ramada Inn in Minneapolis. At the workshop Hiller detailed his accomplishments and encouraged workshop participants to help raise funds for the association's research, education and community service programs.

Hiller was born April 8, 1943, in Scarburough, a suburb of Toronto, Ontario, Canada, but makes his off-season home in Duluth, since meeting and marrying the former Janice Baldwin in 1965. They are the parents of a daughter and son.

INVENTION REAPED REWARDS

Visitors to Virginia's Shenandoah Valley may examine the working reproduction housed in the museum at the McCormick Farm near Steele's Tavern. The reproduction has been demonstrated on select occasions.

At age 22, Cyrus Hall McCormick, a Virginia farmboy, began a revolution . . . a revolution that would enable America to become the bread-basket of the world. He made his father's unfulfilled dream a reality and founded what was to become one of the largest manufacturers of farm machinery, the International Harvester Company.

The gentle rolling beauty of the Shenandoah Valley was the setting for this great achievement and, today, visitors to Virginia may explore McCormick's Farm, a National and Virginia Historic Landmark, just off I-81 near Steele's Tavern. The original blacksmith shop where Cyrus produced the first reaper has been restored, as has the gristmill with its wooden gears. Above the blacksmith shop is a small museum housing a working model of the first reaper and models of many of his other inventions. Behind the blacksmith shop and gristmill is a small park with picnic tables, bordered by the mill stream.

Born on February 15, 1809, at Walnut Grove (the McCormick Farm), Cyrus was the son of a dreamer and inventor. As early as the year he was born, his father had a partially completed model of a reaping machine . . . the machine that Cyrus would later perfect.

McCormick spent much of his time working in the blacksmith's shop at Walnut Grove. His most important invention was not demonstrated until July of 1831. In a neighbor's field, Cyrus first publicly demonstrated his mechanical reaper taking the drudgery out of harvesting.

From his modest beginnings, McCormick moved his production to Chicago. The fifty mechanical reapers he produced in the Shenandoah Valley were the beginning of the International Harvester Company.

In 1954, the McCormick heirs gave the farm to the Virginia Polytechnic Institute. The tract on which the gristmill and blacksmith shop stand has been set aside as the "Cyrus Hall McCormick Memorial Plot."

Just a short drive from McCormick's Farm, visitors to Virginia may explore the Blue Ridge Parkway, Shenandoah National Park, George Washington National Forest, the many interesting caverns and ski resorts, Natural Chimneys, Woodrow Wilson's birthplace in Staunton, Robert E. Lee's burial place in Lexington, and Monticello, Ash Lawn and Michie Tavern in Charlottesville.

For additional Virginia travel information, contact the Virginia State Travel Service, 6 North Sixth Street, Richmond, Virginia 23219, 804/786-4484.

The first state legislation requiring the reporting of industrial accidents was in Massachusetts in 1886, according to the U.S. Labor Department booklet, "Labor Firsts in America."

Looks like Region 8AA high school basketball will feature wide-open races in three of its four sub regions through the final half of the 1978-79 season.

Only St. Cloud Tech in Sub Region 8 appears headed for a relatively easy first place regular season finish. The Tigers, often mentioned as a solid Region 8AA choice, carried a 5-1 record through Dec. 22. Melrose trailed Tech in Sub Region 1 with a 3-2 record, followed by Alexandria 4-5 and St. Cloud Apollo 3-5.

Brainerd has been considered Region 8AA championship material, but the Warriors found themselves at 3-2 and in last place in the three-team Sub Region 2 standings heading into the Christmas break. Little Falls led a tight Sub Region 2 threesome with a 5-1 record, one win ahead of surprising Sauk Rapids, 5-2.

An off-year for Moorhead has put Detroit Lakes in front of the Sub Region 3 standings with a 4-3 record. The Spuds are 2-4, Park Rapids 2-5 and Fergus Falls 0-6.

Thief River Falls and Crookston own identical 4-2 records in Sub Region 4 where Bemidji is 3-5 and East Grand Forks is 0-5.

It appears that a new Region 8AA champion is certain because defending champion Bemidji will likely have a hard time repeating as Sub Region 4 titlist. Two of the Lumberjacks' losses have been to Sub Region 4 rivals Thief River Falls and Crookston.

Sub region tournaments will be played at St. Cloud State, St. Cloud Tech, Moorhead State and Crookston Central high school. The Sub Region 4 event is scheduled to be played Feb. 20-23.

Region 8AA tournament will feature first round games March 1 at Bemidji State and Concordia college in Moorhead. The finals will be played March 3 at Concordia.

Look for St. Cloud Tech, Brainerd, Moorhead and Thief River Falls to emerge as sub region champions.

In Class A look for Laporte in District 29, Waubun in District 30, Warren in District 31 and Roseau in District 32 to make up the Region 8A tournament field.

Roseau, coached by Thief River Falls' Larry Peterson, will have to overcome Lake of the Woods to win its first District 32 crown since 1965.

Waubun has never won a District 30 crown, but neither had McIntosh-Winger before last year when the Scots went on to win a Region 8A championship. And the year before, Twin Valley earned its first District 30 title since 1940 and went on to take the Region 8A crown. Waubun reeled off its fifth straight victory Friday when the Bombers ripped Fertile-Beltrami 82-56. The Falcons, who will play in Thief River Falls Feb. 3, were generally well-regarded entering the 1978-79 season.

Miscellaneous

+Bemidji school board has voted to add girls volleyball to its interscholastic athletic program, with the sport to be introduced during the 1979-80 school year. Bemidji is currently the only non-volleyball playing school in Region 8AA Sub Region 4 which also includes Thief River Falls, East Grand Forks and Crookston. Reporting on the addition, the Bemidji Pioneer said the move was made "partly to reduce the school's vulnerability against allegation of discrimination in school athletics."

+Detroit Lakes high school hockey coach Ken Anderson says his team has "two of the best centers, when they're playing hockey, in Section 8 in Jon Ahles and Bob Lundry," but adds, "We need some help from our wings." The 4-1 Lakers will play in Thief River Falls Feb. 16.

Roseau Wins JV Tournament

Roseau repeated as champion of the second annual junior varsity high school hockey tournament Tuesday with a 5-2 title game victory over host Thief River Falls.

East Grand Forks claimed consolation honors with a 7-3 win over Crookston in Tuesday's first game.

Tournament play started Saturday with a pair of overtime games as Roseau edged East Grand Forks 6-5 in a rematch of last year's championship game played at East Grand Forks and Thief River Falls trimmed Crookston 4-3.

Roseau 6
EGF 5

Jim Vacura's second goal of the game, at 1:23 of the second overtime, gave Roseau a 6-5 tournament-opening victory over East Grand Forks.

Shawn Hallie, Perry Espe, Keith Beito and Erick Grafstrom also scored for the winners who led 2-1 after the first period and built a 3-1 lead early in the second period before East Grand Forks tied things at 4-4. Regulation time ended in a 5-5 deadlock.

Jeff Strandell scored twice for East Grand Forks. Single goals were added by Robbie Sorenson, Mike King and Ben Corbid who forced overtime by netting the equalizer with just 30 seconds left in the third period.

Crookston 3

Tony. Loeffler scored 56 seconds into overtime as Thief River Falls outlasted Crookston 4-3 to gain the finals.

Dean Dokkin scored twice for the winners, tying the game at 3-3 at 9:07 of the third period. Todd Bergland opened scoring for Thief River Falls.

The two teams played to a 2-2 first period draw and skated through a scoreless second period.

Paul Holmquist, Bill Straw and Mike Ecklund were Crookston scorers.

Crookston 3

Mike King and Robbie Sorenson scored two goals apiece as East Grand Forks drilled Crookston 7-3 in the consolation game.

Dan Gasperlin, Paul Hjelle and Karl Kringlen also scored for the winners who built a 3-1 first period lead that climbed to 5-1 in the second period.

Crookston, out-shot 39-21, received goals from Tom Lamphere, Scott Maves and Dan Hoff.

A shorthanded goal midway through the third period by Keith Beito sparked Roseau to a 5-2 championship game decision over Thief River Falls.

Trailing 3-1 after two periods, Thief River Falls quickly made it 3-2 just 56 seconds into the third period on a Scott Wiebolt goal. However, after early pressure on a power play, Thief River Falls gave up Beito's shorthanded goal at 6:44 for a 4-2 game.

Tracey Wensloff padded the margin with a power play blast from the point at 14:09.

Thief River Falls dominated play at the start and jumped out to a 1-0 lead on a Kevin Hamre slap shot from the point at 3:30 of the first period. But Roseau came back, tying the game on a Brandon Shank power play goal at 9:26 and taking a 2-1 lead on a Scott Leverington goal at 14:18 following Thief River Falls problems in its own defensive zone.

Roseau took charge in the second period, controlling play and building a 3-1 lead on a Jay Ness power play at 13:03. Only the sensational goaltending of Thief River Falls' Jeff Mongoven kept it close. Mongoven came up with 34 saves. Mark Tangen of Roseau had to make 16 saves.

SURROUNDED BY teammates, Thief River Falls goalie Jeff Mongoven covered the puck after making a save against Roseau Tuesday in the championship game of the second annual junior varsity high school holiday hockey tournament played in the sports arena. Jeff Spencer (17) helped Mongoven bury the puck while Dean Dokkin (5) kept an eye on a fallen Roseau player. Roseau won the game 5-2.

No Free Throws!

Nordics Beat Eagles 54-40

In a game devoid of free throws, Marshall County Central, behind the 20-point scoring of Dan Engen, defeated Grygla 54-40 Tuesdy in a rescheduled North Border Conference high school basketball game postponed earlier because of a snow storm.

A high-scoring first quarter produced a 20-16 Marshall County Central lead. The pace slowed in the second quarter when the Nordics widened their lead to 28-20. It was 42-32 after three quarters.

"We didn't quite have the snap we normally have," mentioned Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland, "but we shot well."

Marshall County Central made 27 of 57 field goal attempts for a 47 per cent shooting figure on its home court. Grygla connected on only 20 of 58 shots for 34 per cent. In a basketball rarity, neither team attempted a free throw.

Jim Sethre, who missed the first portion of the 1978-79 season while recovering from a football injury, joined Engen in double figures for the Nordics with 12 points. Those two ball players burned Grygla early, combining for 14 points in the first quarter when the Nordics were 10-for-14 from the field.

Grygla, winning the rebound battle 22-18 but committing 28 turnovers, was led by Randy Larson with 12 points and Richard Nordby with 10.

Marshall County Central, 3-4 for the year, will host Lake of the Woods Saturday afternoon. Grygla, 2-5, plays at Mentor Friday night.

Only Thief River Falls teams not in action this week are the Northland basketball and hockey teams. The Northland basketball squad, 7-3 for the year, will host Lake Region junior college of Devils Lake, N.D. Monday at 7:30 p.m. The Royals beat the Northmen 86-73 in early December.

All Aliens Must Report Addresses

Jay A. Palmer, district director of the Immigration and Naturalization service, St. Paul, stated that the law requires all aliens in the United States, with few exceptions, to report their addresses during the month of January. Diplomats and those persons accredited to certain international organizations are not required to make this report.

Forms 1-53, the card with which to report, may be obtained from any post office or any office of the Immigration and Naturalization service. After filling it out, place a postage stamp on the reverse of this card and drop the card in any mail box. Parents or guardians of alien children under the age of fourteen are required to submit address reports for such children.

Social security number should be shown on the registration card. Aliens and employers are advised that the possession of a social security card does not entitle aliens to work in the United States. Only aliens admitted for permanent residence or certain classes of nonresident aliens authorized to do so by the Immigration and Naturalization Service may take employment. Violators of this restriction are subject to certain penalties.

Palmer urges all aliens to comply with the reporting requirements as willful failure to do so may lead to serious consequences.

Slippery Roads Add Hazard To Winter Driving

Slippery road conditions this winter can quickly turn small driving errors into disastrous crashes, said commissioner Ed Novak of the Minnesota department of public safety.

"For example, what might be a safe following distance on dry roads, becomes dangerously close when the road turns slippery," he said. On ice, a vehicle takes almost 140 feet to stop from 20 miles an hour. On dry pavement, it takes only 17 feet.

"So cut down your speed to fit the conditions and, on slippery roads, leave five to 10 times more following distance between you and the vehicle ahead."

When slowing down or stopping, let drivers behind you know in advance, said Novak. Touch your brakes gently well ahead of time. The warning signal of your brake lights might make the difference between getting rammed from behind or stopping safely.

To avoid a skid on slippery roads, always pump your brakes when slowing down. Jab the brake pedal lightly and release it, repeating this about twice a second. Pumping will help maintain steering control. Sudden sustained braking can lock the wheels and throw your vehicle into a slide, Novak said.

"Finally, always buckle your safety belt. It can greatly increase your chances of surviving a crash and can also help prevent crippling injuries that can happen even in minor 'fender-benders.'"

Child Care Act Provides Funds For Programs

Minnesota state legislature passed the child care facilities act in 1971 to provide funds to assist child care programs in Minnesota. Grant monies may be awarded for any of the following purposes:

(a) Interim financing: funds designated for family day care homes, group family day care, and parent cooperative child care centers to receive or maintain state license;

(b) Start-up costs: funds to meet requirements of state license;

(c) Operating costs: funds necessary for the operation of services to children;

(d) Expansion and enrichment: funds to increase the size of enrollment, hours, or service; or to purchase additional equipment, resources and services over the minimum required;

Coordination and planning: funds to carry out such activities as are necessary to provide for the planning and coordination of services to children;

(f) Training: funds for the development and delivery of the training of providers of services to children;

(g) Sliding fees: funds to offset deficit arising from sliding fees to low income families.

These funds can be applied for by incorporated bodies who provide child care services, or individuals or groups who intend to provide child care services.

Application for funds for 1979-80 must be recieved prior to Feb. 15, 1979 and may be obtained from JoAnn Zutz, Red Lake Falls Children's Center, Red Lake Falls, Minnesota 56750. Completed applications are to be returned to her.

Further information can be obtained by attending a monthly meeting of the Region I CCAC. Meeting time if the third Monday of each month from 2 to 4 p.m. unless, because of a national holiday, it will be moved to the fourth Monday. The meeting place is the northwest regional library in Thief River Falls.

Applications are now being taken for membership on the committee which is representative of the Region, ethnically, socio-economically and geographically. The next two meetings are scheduled for January 15 and February 26.

For further information contact Jo Ann Zutz at 253-2688 or Linda Kirk at 281-6672.

Also, I would like to thank the aid of Association for Lutherans for their help and also to the local branch offices who set this up for me.
Thanks, also, to the women who worked and prepared the delicious meal. I would also like to thank St. John's Lutheran church for the use of their basement.
There is no way that I can thank everyone who helped me out in this time, but will always be in my prayers and thoughts.
Many, many thanks.

Hints For Handy Homeowners

A VERSATILE TABLE SAW is a dandy tool for any Handy Andy.

Don't mutter about clutter. Cut it down to size by building cabinets and shelves with the help of a table saw.

A multi-purpose woodworking machine, a table saw can even help you add a den or more closet space.

With a top-quality table saw, you can make accurate bevel, miter and compound-miter cuts. It will also allow you to rip to the center of a 4" x 8" sheet. Most popular with do-it-yourselfers is the 10-inch table saw because it provides the capacity to cut up to 3 1/4" deep at 90 degrees and up to 2 1/8" at 45 degrees.

Here are some additional features you should look for when shopping for a good table saw: self-aligning rip fence that locks front and rear for greater accuracy, sealed ball-bearing construction, a high torque thermal overload protected motor, see-thru blade guard with splitter and anti-kickback attachment, and convenient up-front operating controls, with a locked up oil special safety switch to prevent accidental start-up.

One quality table saw combining all these features is Rockwell's 10" Homecraft Table Saw. Now for a limited time the 10" Homecraft is a truly exceptional value. For only one penny more you get a 1/2 H.P. Router when you buy the $279.99 Rockwell 10" Homecraft Table Saw. The router itself is a $50 value.

The router is a high speed shaping tool that can add finishing touches to your wood-working projects. You can use it for decorative edging, mortising, rabbeting, dadoing, dovetailing, laminate-trimming, and many other shaping operations.

This Rockwell router is double insulated and U.L. listed for safety. It also has a high-impact housing, accurate dial-depth control, a nonmarring base and large dual-knob handles for sure control.

The right power tools can help you put your house in top shape.

TOOLS and SKILL

Because I've never been a handyman I admire those who are.

The few times I've tried to repair anything I made a horrible discovery. People like me not only lack skill . . . we don't even have the tools. There's a ruthless logic in that. If you have no idea how to use a drill press, you're not likely to get one for Christmas.

Sometimes I see a parallel in the spiritual demands of life. Living constructively in our society requires faith in God and the ability to express one's convictions in meaningful relationships, in acts of kindness and love.

So we have become a church-going family. The children are benefiting from moral and religious training. We are devoting our Sundays to acquiring the tools and skill so needed in our time.

Seek Fashions From Past For 'U' Gallery

by Judy Vick
'U' M News Service

Do you have a "zoot suit" in your attic? Or a "first-edition" Eisenhower jacket packed away in your basement?

These and other fashions from the past are sought for the costume collection of the Goldstein Gallery at the University of Minnesota, Twin Cities.

When they're found — and curator Suman Shenoi is convinced they will be — these items will be added to the more than 15,000 pieces in the collection.

The collection includes clothing dating back to 1810 as well as such related items as a group of fashion publications given by retired Minneapolis advertising man Eddie Schwartz. Contributions including gowns, suits, hats, shoes, fans, and underwear have come from University alumni, faculty, and students and from several prominent Twin Cities including the Weyerhaeusers, Irvines, Hannafords, Elsingers, Fitermans, and Salisburys. Most of the clothing was worn by women and children, but there is a small section of men's wearing apparel, which Shenoi would like to enlarge.

She would also like to add items worn by past University presidents and members of their families. "We don't have a single item from a University president," she said.

In addition to the historic items, the costume collection includes 500 contemporary designer gowns, many of them contributed by the Minneapolis-St. Paul Fashion Group, Inc.

All of the clothing is stored in a climate-controlled room with cupboards lined with washed muslin and acid-free tissue paper. All of the items, except the most delicate historic pieces, are cleaned when they are received and thereafter are worn only by mannequins. Once a year there is a major exhibition in the gallery.

The collection, however, is not for display only. It is regularly used by University students who study the garments for classes in design, textiles, and clothing.

Shenoi has been in charge of the collection since the gallery opened in 1976. (Retired faculty member Helen Ludwig started the collection in the 1950s.) Of Indian descent, Shenoi grew up in Kenya and came to the United States in 1962 with her husband, a professor of electrical engineering. They have a 10-year-old son and an 8-year-old daughter.

"I love working with the costumes," she said. "They are personal. You get to know the people who wore them. And I like to have people come and look at them and share the history. When we know the history behind the garments it makes them more special."

One item with special history is a 1922 wedding gown which was given along with shoes and accessories, place cards and a peice of the wedding cake.

Idea for the gallery originated with Gertrude Esteros, head of the design department. It was named in honor of the Goldstein sisters, Harriet and Vetta, who taught related art at the University for many years and co-authored a text book, "Art in Everyday Life," first published in 1925. Harriet died in 1974 at the age of 91. Vetta now lives in Los Angeles, Calif.

In addition to the costume collection, the design department maintains a decorative arts collection in connection with the gallery. Its acting curator, Tim Blade, cares for and is cataloging 1,200 fabric, ceramic, glassware, metal, wood, and natural-fiber objects. Department also maintains a collection of rare books about the decorative arts, donated primarily by Fritz Weber and the estate of Tobe LeVoy.

Student assistants also work with the gallery collection. One of them is supported each year with funds given by the Fashion Group.

Gallery also has active faculty support. Artist Eugene Larkin of the design department has created a limited edition of a woodcut entitled "Snow Field" that he is giving to anyone who contributes $100 or more to the gallery.

Editorialists Disagree

A short time ago the Minnesota supreme court held that the "Catholic Bulletin" was entitled to receive from the department of public welfare the names of physicians and hospitals receiving public funds for performing abortions. Through its publication the "Minnesota Press", the Minnesota Newspaper association proclaimed the decision as a victory for freedom of information which the press believes is fundamental to a free society.

Conflicting views of the court decision are presented in the current issue of Minnesota Press. Austin C. Wehrwein of the Minneapolis Star agrees with the decision as follows:

"Naturally, the medical records of patients involved should not be subject to public scrutiny. But the amount of tax money spent for publicly-financed medical procedures, abortion included, and the names of the doctors who collect it should not be hidden behind phoney claims of 'privacy.' We agree with the majority opinion, which stated that 'the public's right to know outweighs the compelling interests of the medical assistance program and its patients.'

"The right of access is not a license to plunge indiscriminately into the affairs of doctors, hospitals or clinics. The information should not be used in any way that would harass, or invite harassment of, individuals or institutions engaged in lawful practice of legal procedures. To list the names in public print merely to promote a particular religious or moral point of view on the highly controversial subject of abortion would be irresponsible journalism.

"Why, then, should the list be examined? Simply to make sure that the tax money involved was spent in a lawful manner. One might do the same for welfare-financed tonsillectomies.

"If it is found that some individuals are collecting unusually large sums, or if money appears to be unaccounted for, the press has the responsibility to inform the public. If no improprieties are found, the press has the responsibility to say merely that and no more.

"After all, abortion is legal; there's no possible justification for hounding any doctor merely because he or she performs one, welfare or otherwise. But if the data sought leads to the discovery of wrongdoing or profiteering, the names of any and all doctors, hospitals and clinics, and state officials involved would be fair game. Just as they certainly should be for wrongdoing in any other state-paid medical services. In short, abortion should not be used as a shield against accountability no matter how impassioned it may be as a political, moral and religious issue."

"The Minnesota Newspaper Association, of which we are an active and enthusiastic member, last week congratulated itself for winning a state Supreme Court decision forcing release of names of physicians and hospitals receiving legal payments for performing legal abortions. They call it a victory for freedom of information. We think it is a mistake.

"Given the fact that the payments were legal and that abortions continue to be legal in Minnesota, and elsewhere, there is no public interest to be served in forcing physicians and hospitals to disclose this kind of information.

"Inquiring newspeople can find plenty of other instances where public information is being withheld by government, or where information which should be public is not. It is a senseless exercise in the name of freedom of information to invade the doctor-patient relationship for information about a legal medical procedure. We do not force disclosure of names of physicians who perform appendectomies, tonsillectomies, vasectomies or tubal ligations. Why abortions, which are as legal as any of these other medical procedures?

"Decisions such as this must also be made in the light of the existing social climate. In recent months there have been instances in Minnesota of firebombing, arson and assault by radicals opposed to abortion who choose to use violence, rather than the legal process to bring about change. No reasonable person can defend these acts.

"We will not be surprised to see physical attacks on hospitals, offices and even physicians whose names will be released because of last week's Supreme Court decision. The physical, economic and social damage done will be the result of the banner of freedom of information being carried unwisely into battle. We regret that the Minnesota Newspaper Association was a party to this mistake."

Heavy Thumb

Following editorial is from the Bemidji Pioneer:

Thanks to American ingenuity, we are now able to make measurements of Venus that can detect different temperatures and wind velocities and tell us when it is raining on the planet 135 million miles away.

While Pioneer Venus 1 circled Venus, a fleet of four space probes recently descended through the cloud-covered, superheated atmosphere of the planet, sending back data that will shed light on centuries-old scientific mysteries and help us to better understand Earth's environment.

"This experiment," said one scientist, "is as precise as seeing the minute hand on a watch that is 3,000 miles away."

The stream of valuable scientific information will continue for a year as the orbiter circles the planet every 24 hours.

Truly a great human achievement, and another notable American "first" in space.

But, here on earth, we are still toddlers when it comes to being able to tell whether we are getting our money's worth in benefits from the estimated $100 billion a year spent on government regulation of the economy.

The state of the art — our ability to assess the costs and benefits of regulation, weighing one against the other — is in its "infancy," according to a high-level government report.

Wayne L. Granquist, an associate director of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), passed along that startling information to a group of Senators not long ago.

In his testimony, he also indicated that the only reliable data available was on costs (not benefits) of environmental regulations and federal paperwork.

"In some cases, we are certain that large costs are imposed with little benefit," Granquist said.

A report cited by him, concluding we are still in our infancy in cost benefits analysis, was made by the Department of Commerce, which reviewed some 40 different studies.

This news from top government sources comes as something of a shock to many of us who have been advocating that the government develop and use these analytical techniques, particularly on environmental rules that add billions to operating costs in industry.

Private economic studies have shown for months that government regulatory requirements are a significant cause of inflation. When he appeared before the same Senate group, Robert S. Strauss, the President's inflation adviser, agreed.

Strauss and Granquist, of course, hold highly responsible jobs, working with other government officials to implement President Carter's mandate to start cleaning up the regulatory mess. We cannot endorse those efforts too strongly.

The public is becoming increasingly dismayed over excessive and unreasonable regulatory expense and burdens, not with reasonable safeguards against pollution, unhealthy working conditions, unsafe products and fraud and deceit in the marketplace. Government's responsibility is to keep costs of regulation in balance with benefits that accrue to the public.

But while the government is getting its act together, consumers and business alike should give thought to the role of Congress. Regulators make the rules and implement the laws — but congress enacts the laws.

Giving Congress the right to review and veto agency regulations would give the public a check on regulatory activity it now does not have. This is a good idea and one that already has gained strong support in the House of Representatives, where 200 members of the 95th Congress endorsed the veto concept.

It could be a much-needed safeguard against regulatory excesses — and failures in such essential matters as cost-benefit analysis.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Farmer Brown contends he has the laziest rooster in the country. Instead of crowing at sunrise, he waits for another rooster to crow and then just nods his head.

Second Grade Teacher: "Paul, why are you writing with such large letters?"

Paul: "I'm writing to my grandma. She can't hear very good so I have to write real loud for her."

SCIENCE in our LIVES

America's nearly 600,000 scientists and technicians are doing more for you than you may realize. Some are even devising new ways to wash your clothes, engineering special detergents to tackle specific cleaning chores.

Recently, one new cleaning product was designed just to wash fine fabrics. It is a new liquid detergent that combines cleaning and fabric softening agents effectively for the first time.

Previously, fabric cleaning and fabric softening agents were not compatible. The typical fabric softeners are chemicals with positive charges, while most cleaning agents have negative charges. The two work in opposition when they are added at the beginning of a wash cycle. Normal fabric softeners must be added after the wash cycle is completed. However, chemists at The Drackett Company, who created this new detergent, found a way to combine a neutrally charged cleaning agent with a positively charged fabric softener. The combination works particularly well when cleaning synthetic fabrics which have a natural affinity for greasy, oily stains and provides a bonus of eliminating static cling in fabrics. The new detergent, Handle With Care, was also developed with an environmental non-phosphate formulation and controlled suds for easy rinsing.

With such aid from science, you may find the art of caring for fine fabrics can be a lot easier.

SCIENTISTS HAVE DISCOVERED an easy way to keep delicate clothes clean and soft.

Holiday Bird Gets Second Chance

Even if you prefer your turkey the first time around, you'll delight in this flavorful version of Creamed Turkey... that's because it's served with stuffing. The stuffing ring is made quickly and easily from a package of Stove Top chicken flavor stuffing mix. Since the mix is complete except for butter or margarine, there's little work for you so the entree can be ready to eat in about 30 minutes. Round out the menu with a hearty mixed salad—greens and shredded carrot, for example. For dessert, serve crisp apples and cheese—a crumbly cheddar or soft Brie.

CREAMED TURKEY WITH STUFFING

1 package (6 oz.) chicken flavor stuffing mix
1-1/2 cups water
2 packages (10 oz. each) 5-minute cook frozen sweet green peas
3 cups diced cooked turkey (about 3/4 pound)
1 can (10-3/4 oz.) condensed cream of mushroom soup
2 tablespoons pimiento strips
2 tablespoons sherry wine or water

Prepare stuffing mix as directed on package, using 1-1/2 cups water. Gently press into a greased 4-cup ring mold; keep warm. Meanwhile, prepare peas as directed on package; keep warm. Combine turkey, soup, pimiento, wine and 1/2 cup of the peas in a saucepan. Cook and stir until mixture just comes to a boil. Unmold stuffing onto serving plate; spoon turkey mixture around base and into center of ring. Serve with remaining peas. Makes 6 servings.

FOOD for THOUGHT

An Agricultural Concern Of Interest to Everyone

Surveys among food shoppers show that only one in five regularly takes advantage of the best food buys and compares prices between items and stores.

The greatest majority of shoppers buy food according to its appeal and convenience or attempt to get the shopping done in the least amount of time.

Both of these can have a significant bearing on the overall cost of food and are entirely within control of the individual shopper.

Public Hearing Set In TRF On Phone Rates

Eleven public hearings have been scheduled by the Minnesota Public Service Commission (PSC) for customers of Northwestern Bell Telephone company to discuss proposed changes in pricing extended area service (EAS) and basic local exchange service. One of the public hearings is scheduled to be held in Thief River Falls Tuesday, January 16, at 7 p.m. in the Pennington county courthouse.

Throughout 1978, the department of public service has conducted extensive studies on the costs and benefits of providing extended area service. EAS permits customers of one town to call a neighboring town without a long distance charge. The PSC, in its recent Northwestern Bell rate order, noted that the proposal for pricing EAS and basic local exchange service in non-metropolitan areas needed "testing of customer acceptance." Therefore, PSC directed that hearings be held to explain the proposals and invite public comments and recommendations. The hearings are planned specifically for outstate customers of Northwestern Bell.

Public testimony is also sought by the commission on the "directory assistance" charging plan which it also authorized in the Northwestern Bell order. Under the plan, telephone users who make five or fewer calls a month to directory assistance operators during the billing month will have a monthly rate reduction of 53 cents. Directory assistance calls exceeding five per month will have a 20-cent per call charge.

Northwestern Bell Telephone customers wishing to express their views on any of these matters are urged to attend these hearings. Testimony is invited from individuals or representatives of groups. Prepared statements may also be submitted to George Deretich, Hearing Examiners Office, 1745 University Ave., St. Paul, 55104.

"Course is designed to provide the student with a working knowledge of RPG", said Hanson. "It will cover problem analysis, flowchart techniques, formats of coding forms, data files, performing calculations, debugging programs and with emphasis on writing and running of RPG programs."

For additional information about this new offering by Northland, contact Willard Kottke, dean of instruction, at 681-2181.

FIRST 1979 BABY at Northwestern hospital was Emilie Jean Fayette, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Terry Fayette of Thief River Falls, who was born at 3:05 a.m. Thursday with Dr. E. O. Thorsgard as attending physician. Emilie weighed six pounds, seven and one-fourth ounces, was 18½ inches long, has blue eyes and brown hair. She joins her sister Melonie, 2, in the Fayette household. Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Mike Fayette and maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Stigen of Thief River Falls.

"THESE LAST FEW DAYS have made it a lot easier," states Del Harbott about his retirement from the U.S. postal service. Harbott put in his last day on a city delivery route Friday after 30 years with the postal department. Cold weather with temperatures well below zero and a heavy mail load were among the conditions which contributed to Harbott's enthusiasm for retirement. Del has been a city route carrier in Thief River Falls for all of his 30 years with the department and notes that routes are now longer and mail volume three to four times as great as when he first started delivering mail. He has made no immediate retirement plans.

Medical Exam Ordered For Murder Suspect

Medical examination for Anthony Junior Gores, 31, Euclid, was ordered by Judge Warren Saetre when Gores appeared in Pennington county district court Thursday on charges of attempted first degree murder and aggravated assault. Gores entered a plea of not guilty to the charges.

Under state statute the examination includes examination for mental illness or deficiency and Gores is to undergo the examination at the day-night unit of Northwestern hospital services in Thief River Falls.

Bond was confirmed at $30,000 and Gores remains in the custody of the Pennington county sheriff in lieu of bond payment. He was represented in Thursday's court hearing by John Roue of Fosston, assistant public defender, who requested the medical examination.

Gores was charged as a result of a shooting in which state patrolman Harold R. Blazek of Thief River Falls was fired upon with a shotgun when approaching the window of a pickup he had stopped for driving without tail lights. Patrolman Blazek lost three fingers of his right hand and suffered other wounds from shotgun pellets in the incident.

Charge Quevedo With Attempted Murder Here

Anthony Quevedo, whose most recent address is St. Hilaire, was arrested Wednesday by the Thief River Falls police department and charged with attempted second degree murder and aggravated assault causing great bodily harm.

The charge results from the incident in front of the Rusty Nail on Main avenue in Thief River Falls shortly before 1 a.m. Wednesday, December 27, in which two Thief River Falls men suffered knife wounds. Quevedo is charged in the stabbing of Keith Melvie, 22, who was struck in the chest and received a punctured lung although the knife blade reportedly struck a rib, according to local authorities.

Also injured in the incident, which apparently involved 15 to 20 people, was Gregory Kauppila, 26, also of Thief River Falls.

Quevedo appeared in Pennington county court Thursday and was bound over to district court on $50,000 bond. Assistant public defender Jim Beuning of Mahnomen was appointed as his attorney and district court hearing was set for today (Monday) at 2 p.m.

Denied Human Rights And Justice?

Hanson Defies IRS; Hopes To Get His Day In Court

TENACITY PERSONIFIED is Ernest Hanson of Newfolden, who believes he was swindled by a brokerage firm and treated unfairly by the Internal Revenue service. Unable to resolve his problem through conventional means, he has chosen to refuse to file income taxes in hope that the government will take him to court where he can tell his story. Despite the fact that the government doesn't seem likely to move on his case, Hanson remains steadfast in his attitude and efforts.

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

For all of his life Ernest Hanson of rural Newfolden had been a hardworking, taxpaying American citizen. In 1975 he became a hardworking, non-taxpaying American citizen and his disappointment and frustration with what he believes to be inequities in the system have made him both angry and bitter.

Does Hanson's decision not to file income taxes make him a disloyal American? Ernest doesn't think so. His motivation in non-payment is not to cheat the government out of anything it has coming under the law, but rather to compel the government to take him to court. In a court situation, he feels, he will at last be able to prove his case and gain the justice and human rights he says have been denied him.

What is Hanson's beef? Boiled down to the bare bones, his complaint is that he was defrauded of no little amount of money by a large brokerage firm; and that the government did not allow him proper credit when he was forced to sell his farm to retain his stocks; and that the IRS cleaned out his checking account when he disputed the allowable credit.

The total story is much more involved and the number of attempts which Hanson has made to get the matters settled are innumerable. Each attempt has met with failure and Hanson feels cornered by the bureaucracy with no alternative left but to stand and fight.

In 1967 Hanson began doing some speculating in the stock market, studying the market and buying and selling on a cash account with a large investment firm which had a broker in Grand Forks, N.D. From 1967 to 1971 Hanson never lost money on each year's efforts. In 1971, for example, he netted $18,000 from his stock trading. And he paid his taxes.

Because he was increasing his market activity and the mailing of stocks and money became cumbersome, he arranged with his broker to go on a margin account. Under this system, the investment company held the stocks and Hanson ordered the sales and purchases by telephone. It was a convenient system and the investment company provided him with statements of his activity. His statements — which he still holds and would like to exhibit in a court case — indicated to him that he was continuing to do all right in the market.

In 1973 Hanson began to realize that something was wrong. In the six years he had dealt with the company he had traded for some $430,000 worth of stock. But in 1973 the company figures showed that Hanson's trading edge had lost its sharpness. He claimed, and was allowed by the IRS, a $25,000 loss on his 1973 tax return.

Hanson now believes that the investment company swindled him in several ways, one by not crediting him with the difference when he sold stock for a greater amount than he purchased, and another by not making the purchases for which he paid.

"If I sold $1,000 worth of stock and bought $500 worth of another stock, they didn't credit my margin account for the difference," Hanson contends. From the records he maintained, Hanson estimates the firm shorted him $50,000 to $60,000.

As to the company not purchasing stock for which purchase was ordered through the broker, there are still 2,700 shares in contention which the company is unable to deliver, Hanson says. When he closed out his account in 1973, Hanson says the investment company had to write a number of companies for the stock shares which he owned on paper. "They never had them," he says about the shares he believed he owned.

Faced with the cash shortage which the investment company showed in his account, and having faith in the earnings potential of his stocks, Hanson sold his farm five miles northwest of Holt to obtain the money to retain his stocks. He had bought the farm in 1943 for $2,700 and received $25,000 for it when he

Scale Closed, City Cab Still In Operation

A lease between the city of Thief River Falls and Art Cloutier, owner of Fred's Cab and operator of both the cab service and the city scale, was terminated effective midnight December 31. Since that time, the scale operation has been closed down but the cab service is still in operation.

Cloutier explains that the city has offered to let him remain in his present location for another three months. He is to appear at the Tuesday, January 9, city council meeting to give the city his decision. An alternative Cloutier seems to be considering more strongly is the relocation of the service into the back room at the Thief River Oil service station at 3rd and Horace.

Should Cloutier choose to remain in his present location through March, a rental agreement would be drawn up with the city. Alderman Milan Borsheim stated that the finance committee of the council will offer a recommendation at Tuesday's meeting to that effect. The rental fee to be recommended is $100 per month with Cloutier paying his own utilities and the pumping of the septic tank.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Richard Ericksons To Live In Minneapolis

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Erickson are at home in Minneapolis following an exchange of marriage vows at Trinity Lutheran church in this city, and a wedding trip to Pine Lake.

The bride, the former Sally Ann Nepper, is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Nepper of Thief River Falls. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. George Erickson of Viking.

The double ring ceremony took place at four o'clock in the afternoon with Rev. Berton Hushagen and Rev. David Gabrielson officiating.

Guitar music for the ceremony was provided by Conrad Miska, a friend of the couple. He played "Beautiful," and "Something in the Way She Moves," for the processional; and together with Brian Demeyere sang, "Wedding Song," "Sometimes," "Put Your Hand in the Hand," and "Friends," during the ceremony.

Candelabra with blue carnations and greenery graced the chancel. On the altar were vases of blue carnations.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her brother, Tom Nepper, was attired in a wedding gown of ivory qiana with matching lace enhancing the bodice and outlining the V-neckline. Creating back interest was a flowing train, gathered at the waistline. A Juliet headpiece, trimmed with ivory lace, held her fingertip veil. She carried a bouquet of silk peach roses, ivory azaleas and dried blue flowers.

The bride's personal attendants were her sister, Barb Nepper, and her sister-in-law, Roxi Nepper.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was her sister, Kathy Nepper of Minneapolis. Bridesmaids were Cemmy Gniffke, Moorhead, a friend of the couple, and Lisa Nepper, city, sister of the bride. They wore identical gowns of blue qiana, with drawstring gathers at the neckline and waistline. Complementing the gowns were ivory lace shawls. In their hair, they wore a cluster of blue daisies, accented by a peach rose. Their bouquets, miniature replicas of the bride's, were interspersed with blue daisies.

Wearing similar attire was the flower girl, Kristi Kelly, Minneapolis, a niece of the bride. The rings were carried by Chad Kelly, Minneapolis, a nephew. Like the men of the wedding party, he wore an ivory tuxedo with a blue shirt and a peach rose boutonniere with blue daisies.

Russ Erickson, Bismarck, N.D., attended his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Paul Potucek, Warren, and Rusty Jackson, East Grand Forks, friends of the groom. Serving as ushers were Pete Erickson, Viking, a cousin of the groom, Jeff Kelly, Fargo, N.D., and Brad Cook, Warren, friends of the couple.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Nepper selected a blue, long-sleeved dress with a pleated street-length skirt. Topping the dress was a shawl of the same fabric. Her wrist corsage was of ivory roses and blue daisies. The mother of the groom wore a pink and ivory three-piece, street-length ensemble with a floral blouse. Her corsage was of pink roses and ivory azaleas.

Special guests at the ceremony were Mrs. Gertrude Nepper and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Miller, grandparents of the bride; and Mrs. Egbert Malberg and Mrs. Sadie Bennett, grandmothers of the groom.

A reception for 200 guests at the Pine Avenue pool followed. Serving as hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. William Ness and Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Liden. Patricia Honek and Jennifer Skaar presided at the guest book as Mr. and Mrs. Myron Halverson and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Bergan ladled the punch.

The wedding cake was cut and served by Mrs. Earl Erickson and Mrs. Paul Erickson. Pouring coffee were Mrs. Cliff Bennett and Mrs. Gene Hanson. Tami and Paula Bergan served as waitresses and Rachel Ness distributed the rice packets.

Both the bride and the groom are employed in Minneapolis. The bride is a graudate of Lincoln high school, Thief River Falls, and is employed by Glenwood Inglewood company. The groom, a graduate of Warren senior high school, is employed by N-C Centre.

Any Realtor will tell you that the three most important factors concerning the value of a house are: "Location, Location, and Location." Unfortunately, most home buyers ignore this important advice.

Location is especially vital when buying a house for maximum resale value. Statistics say that you will be reselling your home long before the final mortgage payment is in the mail. Therefore, take a long, hard look, not only at the present, but the future prospects for the community and immediate neighborhood.

Select a location where raw land and house values have an increasing price trend. Especially check into the zoning laws for any unfavorable change which could cause a depreciation in the value of the neighborhood and the resale price of your home in the future.

"Remember — you can remove or remodel a house, but you can never change the location. So choose carefully.

NFO Asks For Investigation Of Butter Deal

National Farmers Orgainzation (NFO) has asked for an investigation of the December 22 butter transaction on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. That day the price of butter dropped 12¾ cents per pound on the exchange.

"Reflected into the price of milk this would mean a drop of 50 cents per hundredweight," Gene Paul, director of operations of NFO's dairy department in Minnesota, said recently. "This is just another example of how companies who buy farm production use their marketing system to make profits for themselves, and why farmers need to create a marketing force at the farm level."

Following is the official NFO statement on this matter, which has been sent to secretary of agriculture Bob Bergland and various congressmen:

"There is absolutely no justification based upon supply and demand in the market place for the abrupt 10 per cent drop in butter prices on the national price setting Chicago and New York exchanges on Friday, December 22. Effect of this most probably will result in a reduction in the Minnesota-Wisconsin price series with lower prices being paid to farmers for their milk. These are limited exchanges which lend themselves to price fixing, and should be closed.

We understand that this large decline in the butter price was based in Chicago on three butter sales of only one car each — an infinitesimal amount — of Grade AA, Grade A and Grade B with only one buyer and one seller involved. When one buyer and one seller, or even half a dozen, can set the nation's butter price at their whim, it is mockery to talk of free competitive markets.

"National Farmers Organization urges your immediate investigation of the Black Friday, December 22, butter exchange transaction with a public disclosure of all the circumstances and immediate action to close those exchanges to allow butter to move freely in true competition without price fixing by the huge handlers of butter."

Dumping Snow On Roads Is A Misdemeanor

Shoevling snow from your driveway or sidewalk onto a public road can get you into trouble, according to Robert J. McDonald, state maintenance engineer, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

McDonald said that shoveling snow from driveways and sidewalks onto public roads and streets may be punishable as a misdemeanor (Minn. statutes 160.42 and 160.27, subdivision 5).

Misdemeanors are punishable by a fine up to $500 and-or a jail sentence of up to 90 days.

Snow dumped, plowed or shoveled onto a roadway can create a real hazard not only for motorists but also for snowplows. Even heavy snowplows, said McDonald, have been damaged when hitting compacted and frozen snow deposited on the highways.

In some parts of the state, snow pushed onto a highway causes snowdrifts which are hazardous to motorists. Person responsible for depositing snow onto the highway may also be liable in a civil lawsuit if damages or injuries occur as a result of the action, McDonald warned.

"We urge Minnesotans, as good neighbors and motorists themselves, not to add to the hazards of wintertime driving in this way," said McDonald.

Rail Corridor Meeting Set At Moorhead

Beginning Tuesday, the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) will sponsor public information meetings in Moorhead, Detroit Lakes, Staples, Brainerd, St. Cloud and Coon Rapids as part of a Minnesota-North Dakota rail corridor study.

Public meeting in Moorhead will be held on Tuesday at 3 p.m. at the City Council Chambers, 500 Center ave.

The 12-month study is designed to identify and evaluate low-cost solutions to the problems caused by increased rail traffic on this Burlington Northern, Inc. line, according to Peter Fausch, director, transportation development.

Extending from the North Dakota border at Fargo to the Twin Cities and to the Wisconsin border near Superior, the line primarily carries grain, coal and lumber.

Some of the problems caused by increased rail traffic include delays at crossings, noise, environmental and economic impacts, Fausch said.

Besides helping to solve the problems on this line, the study will help identify solutions that can be used on other lines, he said.

Mn-DOT encourages the public to comment on present and anticipated community impacts caused by increased traffic on this line.

Study is funded by the US departments of energy and of transportation.

For further information, contact Ken Jahr, Mn-DOT, 830 Transportation Building, St. Paul 55155 (612-296-1612).

Hanson Defies IRS; Hopes For Court Case

sold in 1973. With allowable deductions taken, he had a net capital gain of $19,000 between the purchase price and selling price.

This is where Hanson and the IRS disagreed the first time. Hanson believes he is entitled to long-term capital gain over the 30 years he owned his farm. The IRS allowed him to take only short-term gain because he claimed short-term loss on his stock investments.

Even with the full net gain of $19,000 on the farm sale, Hanson claims the $25,000 stock loss which the IRS allowed should have provided him with a $6,000 carry-over loss — the difference between the two figures. IRS disagreed and Hanson refused to pay.

The government wasn't about to give up at that point. In 1974 an IRS agent went to the Marshall county state bank in Newfolden and cleaned out the balance of Hanson's checking account there to apply against the claimed tax liability. "It was only $122 that we had in the account," Hanson said, "but it was all we had and it left us without funds to cover several checks which were still outstanding. I don't think it's right that the IRS can do this, but they did it to us."

Each year Hanson writes to the state department of taxation and the Internal Revenue service, stating he and his wife have been ". . . denied our human rights for protection and justice here in America". Since 1975 neither the state nor federal government has sent him a tax form.

Also each year Hanson sends a statement to the investment company requesting payment of the amount he believes the company shorted him during his dealings in 1972 and 1973 — plus eight per cent interest on the unpaid balance. His claim in January of 1978 was for $67,940. . .plus $200,000 in punitive damages.

In his files Hanson has accumulated stacks of correspondence and notes regarding his efforts to get the matter settled. He has written to Congressmen, Senators, state legislators, attorneys and agencies. He has been to the state securities and exchange commission which, he says, refuses to investigate his claim or look at his records.

He has been to several attorneys, none of which will take his case. "They're afraid to go up against big business lawyers and the state and federal government," he insists. He tried to institute his own suit in Marshall county district court, he said, but the clerk of court would not allow him to do so. Elected government officials reply to his letters but refer him to agencies or alternatives which he has already explored unsuccessfully.

He continues to speculate in the stock market, but with a different investment company and strictly on a cash account. And he continues to be moderately successful — just as he was before he began trading on a margin account with the other firm.

But he worries about another IRS raid on his bank account and says that potential restricts his banking activity. Because his wife has contracted multiple sclerosis and is confined to a wheelchair at home, he can work for wages only when he can arrange to have someone stay with her. Welfare support has been denied because Hanson refuses to divest himself of the stock shares he owns — the stock he sold his farm to retain. One worry and problem builds on the other and the frustration intensifies.

Does Hanson really have a legitimate claim of being swindled and is he justified in his dispute with the IRS? We have heard only his side of the story, but his arguments are not unreasonable. It would seem he should be entitled to his day in court as a privilege of an American citizen — regardless of whether he is right or wrong.

Will he ever have that day to lay his case before a judge or jury? Only time will tell, but an IRS representative from the Crookston office once told him, "They'll never put you in jail and it will be a long time before they take you to court."

But if the government hopes that by ignoring him Hanson will go away, they might as well forget it. He is tenacious enough to never let go of his claim until he gets what he wants — a chance to tell his story in court.

Friday night robbery at Thief River Oil (formerly FasGas) at 3rd and Horace and theft of a snowmobile from Dick Olson may be related, according to Thief River Falls chief of police Ken Froschheiser.

The local law enforcement center received a call reporting a robbery at the service station at 8:23 p.m. Friday, January 5. Working at the station at the time were Marlon Knutson and Nancy Peterson who stated that a male, approximately six feet tall with brown eyes, entered the station wearing an Arctic snowmobile suit, an orange and brown helmet and a face mask with only one eyehole. The man was carrying a gun thought to be a 38 caliber revolver and told the workers to give him the money out of the till. He left the scene on a snowmobile heading north toward Eighth street. Taken in the robbery was $237.

The snowmobile theft was discovered and reported to local law enforcement officials at 10:30 p.m. Friday. Stolen from Dick Olson's residence at 920 N. Main was an Arctic 5000 Pantera with license number JT065. It is thought that the vehicle may have been the one used in the robbery and anyone seeing a vehicle fitting that description is asked to call the law enforcement center at 681-6161.

Set Meet To Discuss Farm Transportation

U.S. representative, Arlan Stangeland (R-Minn), has arranged for a meeting on January 9 in St. Paul with Norman Lorentsen, president of Burlington Northern and leadership of the Red River Valley potato Growers and the Minnesota Wheat council.

Stangeland emphasized that the lack of transportation in moving potatoes and grain to major shipping points, as well as rail abandonment, will be the main items of discussion.

Stangeland said that a similar meeting between the Minnesota Motor Transport association officials and these two groups will be held the afternoon of January 8th in Minneapolis.

Stangeland commented further, "Often times the farmer is not able to take advantage of the best prices because of the lack of necessary transportation and with the future expansion of international markets, farmers must be assured of the delivery of their state-wide products."

Press Council Offers Hearing On Complaint

Imagine this series of events:

A young woman is fired from her job.

A local newspaper, writing about the situation, reports both the woman's view of why she was fired and the conflicting reasons given by her employer.

The woman's former supervisor writes to the paper, refuting the woman's comments in the news story. The letter appears in the letters-to-the-editor column.

Believing that her honesty and reputation are on the line, the woman writes her own letter to the editor, giving her side of the story and responding to changes in the earlier letter.

The newspaper refuses to print her letter.

The woman is frustrated and angry.

What can someone do who believes, as this woman does, that he or she has been treated unfairly by the media: She can sue the newspaer, but that is a costly and time-consuming process. She can cancel her subscription to the paper, but that cuts her off from the news.

People who live in Minnesota have one more option: They can turn to the Minnesota press council.

The Minnesota press council was established eight years ago as a review board for citizen complaints about the fairness and accuracy of the news media in Minnesota. Not a court nor a government agency, the council is an independent group whose 24 volunteer members represent both the public and the media. Council members hold hearings to examine in detail complaints charging newspapers or broadcast stations with factual errors or unfair reporting or unethical journalistic practices. The council considers testimony from both the complainant and the news organization in question in order to determine whether or not the complaint is justified.

As an alternative to legal or governmental action against the media (complainants must waive their right to sue the news organization before the council will consider a complaint), the press council has no power to enforce its decisions or 'punish' either party. Instead, the council depends for its impact on the strength of publicity. And in the council's eight-year history, no newspaper or broadcast station has failed to report the results of a hearing in which its own performance was under scrutiny — regardless of the council's determination.

In 1978, a case much like that described above was brought to the council. A hearing was held, and the woman claimed the newspaper had treated her unfairly by refusing her an opportunity to respond publicly to charges made against her in the earlier letter. The newspaper argued that the woman's letter was too long and too one-sided to publish.

After careful discussion, the council found that the woman's complaint was justified. Letters to the editor are nearly always one-sided, the council said. Since the newspaper admitted printing longer letters in the past, the woman should have been allowed to answer the charges against her included in her supervisor's letter, the council said.

After the hearing, newspapers (including the one complained against) and broadcast stations throughout the state carried a summary of the press council's findings in the case.

Fair access to letters columns has been a frequent concern of the complainants who have contacted the council since 1971. Possible conflicts of interest, misleading headlines, alleged factual errors and questions of unfair news coverage and unsound polling procedures have also proven to be areas of concern to Minnesotans.

Each complaint is handled separately by the council and in light of the specific circumstances of the situtation. Thus, in other determinations involving access to letters columns, for example, the council has supported a newspaper's right to deny access to its letter to the editor column when the newspaper showed that it had provided fair and complete coverage of the issue in its letters column.

Although the Minnesota press council was originally established to hear complaints about newspaper performance only, the council expanded its scope in 1977 to include grievances against the broadcast news media.

The volume of complaints received by the council annually has grown steadily from two in 1971, to 44 in 1977 and 70 in 1978.

Not all complaints reach the hearing stage. Many misunderstandings are settled in face-to-face discussions between the news organization and the person making the complaint, and many complaints are dropped by the complainant after they have been brought to the council's attention. But in cases that reach full council hearings, there are no fees involved for either party and no one is required to have a lawyer.

Minnesota press council was the first state-wide press council formed in this country, and remains one of the most active councils in America. It is a non-profit organization supported completely by contributions from the public (corporations, foundations, associations and individuals) and the news media in the state.

For more information on the council, contact the Minnesota Press Council, Box 14116, Dinkytown Station, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55414 (telephone 612-376-7102).

Workshop On Alcohol Set For January 18

Teachers from several local school districts will be attending a one day alcohol awareness workshop at the Thief River Falls AVTI on Thursday, January 18.

Co-sponsored by the Minnesota state automobile association (AAA) and the Minnesota state department of education, the workshop will focus on a new AAA alcohol awareness program designed to fit into the junior high curriculum. There is much evidence indicating that there is increasing use of alcohol among this group of youngsters — particularly seventh and eighth graders. Materials presented in the workshop will be used to illustrate some of the serious and dangerous problems which alcohol abuse can cause and how best to cope with them.

Educators will be given information on how to utilize the materials in the classroom and will participate in duscussion groups and role-playing. Representative from the Minnesota state patrol will discuss the legal issues involving law enforcement and DWI (driving while under the influence) offenses.

Each participant will receive instructional materials and lunch. To register, contact the Traffic Safety Dept., Minnesota AAA, 7 Travelers Trail, Burnsville, MN 55337.

WIN Program Puts 300,000 People In Jobs

Work incentive (WIN) program last year placed in jobs nearly 300,000 welfare recipients. Of these, two-thirds were women, half were school dropouts, and one-third minorities.

The program, now in its 10th year, helps adults receiving or applying for aid to families with dependent children (AFDC) find jobs and become self-supporting. WIN offers job training, remedial education and social services to those who need such assistance to prepare for work.

During the year ending last September 30, WIN helped more than half a million persons develop employment plans as the first step in seeking economic independence.

Half of the newly employed WIN participants earned enough on the job to remove themselves and their families from the AFDC rolls immediately. The others continued to receive some assistance, but at a reduced level.

Savings to the taxpayers amounted to well over double the cost of the WIN program. There were reductions of $645 million in welfare payments as a result of the participants' employment, as well as substantial reductions in medicaid and food stamp costs. In addition, the new workers were now paying income taxes.

The WIN program cost $364 million in fiscal 1978, nearly one-third of which was for provision of supportive services, chiefly child care, and slightly less than two-thirds for job training and other employment services. The rest was for federal administrative costs — about three per cent.

A majority of WIN registrants are women, many of them heads of single-parent families. But 27 states and the District of Columbia also cover unemployed fathers when they are living in the home. About 47,000 of the 295,532 WIN registrants who got jobs in fiscal 1978 were unemployed fathers.

Welfare recipients entering employment from WIN earned an average starting wage of $3.32 an hour. For men, the average was $4.01. As in the mainstream labor force, women participants' starting pay — $2.97 an hour — lagged behind the men's. The highest wages were earned by unemployed fathers, who started work earning $4.22 an hour, about 60 per cent above the federal minimum. A fourth of the fathers started at $5 or more an hour.

The difference in starting pay earned by men and women WIN participants was largely attributable to the differences in the types of jobs the two held. More than two-thirds of the men were employed in such relatively well-paid occupations as structural work, machine trades and transportation-related jobs. Women tended to cluster in the lower-paid clerical and service jobs, traditionally considered "women's work," and a major source of employment for women in the labor force at large.

The WIN program is administered jointly by the office of human development, in the department of health, education, and welfare, and the employment and training administration of the department of labor. The program was established by the 1968 amendments to the social security act and revised in 1971 to further emphasize job placement.

All AFDC applicants 16 and older must register for WIN except those attending school full-time; those who are ill, incapacitated or elderly; those caring for invalids or children under six; and mothers and other females caring for a child if the father or other male relative in the home has registered.

New Public TV Signs Contracts For Equipment

Northern Minnesota public Television, Inc. recently signed contracts for a large portion of the equipment and construction required to put the new public TV station on the air.

A contract was awarded to Advance Industries, Inc. of Sioux City, Iowa for their bid to fabricate and install the 1000 foot tower. The antenna contract was awarded to Harris Braodcast Products of Quincy, Illinois. Philips Broadcast Equipment Corp. based in New Jersey, has contracted to provide the full power transmitter, the remote control and test equipment. Microwave Associates, Inc. of Burlington, Mass. received the contract for the microwave system linking the station's master control to be housed on the Bemidji State University campus with the transmitter-tower site located southeast of Blackduck. And Naylor Electric Construction Company Inc. of Bemidji was awarded the contract for the backup power plant to operate the transmitters during any power outages.

Contracts for the other equipment — primarily the studio facility — will be awarded as soon as the remaining funds are secured. All but $33,000 has been pledged in the area-wide fund drive to raise $200,000 from the people of northern Minnesota. The support of private foundations in Minnesota is also being sought to complete funding necessary to put the station on the air by fall 1979.

Producers Must File For Wool Incentive Funds

Wool and lamb producers must submit their sales slips from 1978 marketings of shorn wool and unshorn lambs and file an application before they can receive their 1978 incentive payments, according to Alton Nybladh, chairperson of the Marshall County agricultural stabilization and conservation (ASC) committee. Producers have until January 31 to file and avoid late payments. The sales receipts may be filed at the county ASCS office.

The ASC official said the support price for the 1978 shorn wool marketings is $1.08 per pound. "Pulled wool will continue to be supported at a level comparable to the support price for shorn wool through payments on unshorn lambs."

Shorn wool payments are based on a percentage of each producer's returns from sales. The percentage is the amount required to raise the national average price received by all producers for shorn wool in 1978 up to the support price of $1.08 a pound. In 1978, shorn wool prices are expected to average 75 to 80 cents a pound.

Minimum Wage Rises To $2.90 On January 1st

Nearly 5.3 million American workers were eligible for a pay raise on January 1 when the federal minimum wage increased to $2.90 per hour, the U.S. department of labor announced.

On Nov. 1, 1977, President Carter signed amendments to the fair labor standards act (FLSA) establishing uniform minimum wage rates for all covered workers in the 50 states — $2.65 an hour effective this past Jan. 1 increasing annually to $2.90, $3.10 and $3.35 an hour by Jan. 1, 1981.

"The minimum wage law protects workers at the low end of the wage scale by enabling them to share in productivity gains and maintain at least a minimum standard of living," secretary of labor Ray Marshall said.

Wage and hour division, a part of the department's employment standards administration, is responsible for administering and enforcing the FLSA (which sets minimum wage, overtime pay, child labor and equal pay standards).

Under the 1977 FLSA amendments, the percentage of tip credit which can be applied toward the minimum wage for tipped employees will be reduced to 45 per cent effective Jan. 1, 1979 and 40 per cent effective Jan. 1, 1980.

As a result of these amendments another change is the repeal of the partial overtime exemption for employees of hotels, motels and restaurants. Beginning Jan. 1, 1979, these employees will be due overtime premium pay after 40 hours in the work week.

Maids and custodial employees of hotels and motels have been on the 40 hour week since May 1, 1977.

During fiscal 1978, the labor department found that more than 600,000 workers protected by federal wage and hour laws were illegally underpaid by almost $129 million. Violations of the minimum wage and overtime provisions of the FLSA accounted for the bulk of underpayments.

Minimum wage underpayments totaled over $40 million owed to 371,000 persons last year.

Secretary Marshall said the department has instituted an intensified information effort to publicize the enactment of the 1977 amendments and to acquaint both employers and employees with new provisions.

"To guarantee that all covered workers receive the benefits they are due, the department of labor will vigorously continue its enforcement efforts," Marshall said.

An overview of results from the 1977 quality of employment survey, including comparisons with data from the 1973 and 1969 surveys, is scheduled for publication in the January issue of "Monthly Labor Review", published by the labor department's bureau of labor statistics.

A book-length report containing statistical details can be purchased from the institute for social research.

Studies of particular work-related issues and problems, based on this survey data, have been initiated and will be reported in various publications as they are completed.

Members of Zehlians, AAUW and Thief River Falls community arts council invite others to join in this community project. For further information call 681-6219 or 681-3706.

Gilbert Joins Co. Attorney Staff In Duluth

Wayne Gilbert, son of Dr. and Mrs. Ed Gilbert of Thief River Falls and a graduate of Lincoln high school, has been appointed to the civil division staff of the St. Louis county attorney's office in Duluth.

Gilbert, 30, was elected to the Duluth city council in the 1977 municipal election with 7,998 votes for councilor-at-large, the largest number of votes received by any councilman or candidate for other city office. An attorney, he lives at 8517 Congdon Blvd.

County attorney-elect Alan Mitchell was quoted in the Duluth News-Tribune as stating, "I'm happy to have him. He's a very competent attorney."

The News-Tribune also editorialized on the appointment of Gilbert as assistant county attorney, saying it was welcome news . . . "not because the move will take him off the city council — which it should — but because he has a record for openness and honest dealing with the public, an asset which can be well used in the county attorney's office."

The Press Is On

Today in the mail we received a form letter from Alice Herrington, president of a New York City organization called "Friends of Animals, Inc." Content of the letter was as follows:

"Ninety-three per cent of Americans do not hunt and, of these, the majority believe that the kill of animals for sport is immoral. We know that the vast majority of your readers would greatly appreciate an exposure of their side of the story as Michael Wendland effectively does in the attached, and hope you will run it as a guest editorial. You have his permission to reprint provided you credit Mr. Wendland and the Detroit News.

"We should greatly appreciate receiving a copy of your printing of this editorial that we may inform our members that your paper is one of those which exposes fairly both sides of an issue."

Not being familiar with Friends of Animals, Inc., we called the New York office and talked to Alice Herrington. She explained that the organization was a non-profit corporation, the stated purpose of which is the protection of animals, both wild and domestic. It is active in several different areas of effort, including lobbying legislatively, bringing legal suits and participating with some 600 veterinarians in promoting the neutering of cats and dogs.

Legal actions are aimed against sport hunting. "I can assure you that all the sports hunting types in this nation know our name," Alice Herrington replied when we asked for information about the organization. "Because one of the things we're very active on is trying to clean up that aspect of American life."

Friends of Animals is bringing suit against the federal fish and wildlife service in district court in Washington, D.C., ". . .for its failure to comply with the national environmental protection act in filing environmental impact statements before it distributes money to the states in order to promote hunting."

The organization is, according to Herrington, trying to knock out the poisoning of predators, elimiate one specific leg-hold trap, and repeal the Pittman-Robertson act which distributes to states the taxes collected on the sale of sporting arms and ammunition. She said the organization believes that there should not be a separation of game and non-game species and that federal thinking should be in the terms of entire ecosystems rather than huntable game populations.

"You might call it animal liberation," she said. "We feel it is time to change our attitudes toward the rest of creation."

The editorial which Friends of Animals asked us to reprint was written by Michael F. Wendland, news staff writer of the Detroit (Mich.) News. In this opinion piece, Wendland states that he quit hunting ". . .when I had trouble explaining to my 11-year-old daughter how hunting was a sport."

He goes on to tell of outdoor experiences — delighting when his weekend camp is raided by a couple of raccoons at night and awakening to the chatter of squirrels. "The forest is their home, not ours, and we were grateful to share it with them," he writes.

Wendland also finds fault with the Michigan department of natural resources which ". . .has cleared trees from hundreds of thousands of acres of woodland for the express purpose of creating new growth near the ground, where deer can easily browse. . .It seems, therefore, we artificially create large deer herds for the sole purpose of slaughtering them."

He tells about creeping from his camper with his daughter to a hunter's deer blind, shooting two rolls of film of two does in a clearing and then writing in fingernail polish on the blind, "Don't shoot deer. . .unless they shoot first."

While most people in this area of the nation — where the hunting tradition is strong — would merely shake their heads in puzzlement at the thinking of writers like Wendland and organizations like Friends of Animals, the fact remains that opposition to hunting is growing and that opponents are becoming better organized and more vocal. Certainly they are becoming financially stronger since their base is generally in metropolitan areas where people of means are concentrated and their exposure to animals is confined to zoos, television and Walt Disney movies. . .all of which give a somewhat distorted picture of wildlife.

What the Herringtons and Wendlands choose to ignore is that man himself is a predator. Since his earliest existence man has been a hunter, changing only in the methods used and the degree of control he attempts to exert on the prey he hunts through seasons, bag limits and manipulation of the habitat. Hunting is a part of man's nature which can not be eliminated without drastically affecting his psychological make-up.

In our wonderful north country, where we are as yet still able to perpetuate our traditions, we have become too complacent in expecting that others will continue to allow us that privilege. Unfortunate as it may be, we will be compelled to extend ourselves to even greater limits to retain the right to pursue the activities which we cherish as an integral part of our lives.

We don't feel that Wendland had to explain to his 11-year-old daughter why hunting is sport. To a great degree, it can not be explained. Must someone explain why an object of art is enjoyable to him, why a youngster thrills to a carnival ride, why there is in nearly everyone a spirit of competition?

Perhaps Wendland should ponder where he felt the greatest closeness with his daughter — in the living room or kitchen at home, during a piano recital or school program, or in that hunter's deer blind. And if he answers honestly, he just might ask himself why? If he does, he should be on the way to finding the answer to his daughter's question— even if he can't put it in so many words.

Blow Against Noisy Radios

Following editorial is from the New York Times:

Gloating is indecent, but we're tempted. A young man from Washington Heights has just been issued the first summons for violating New York City's new ban against playing radios and tape recorders on buses and subways. We do not mean to be malicious, it is not his misfortune that we celebrate. Rather, it is a historic event; the vindication of citizens asserting the right not to have their ears assailed in public.

One may be forgiven for speculating on the possibilities of civic renaissance. First, the city has lately seen the astonishing success of the new ordinance requiring dog owners to clean up after their pets.

Now comes this first step toward protecting captive audiences from the electronic aggression of a few riders. Subways may or may not be for sleeping but they are decidedly not for blaring.

Mayor Koch, who announced the ban, might now sensibly consider extending it to the parks, permitting them to become silent partners of transit vehicles. It could be argued that the extended ban would impinge on free speech. To that, electronics provides its own easy rebuttal — earphones. They permit listening to anything and loudly, without denying others the chance to listen for calm.

Tuition

Following editorial is from the Swift County News:

A few University of Minnesota students are shown on television bitterly complaining about the fact costs are going up next year. They said they couldn't continue going to school if tuition was raised.

There are loans, scholarships, other grants and, if no other solution, one can drop out of school for a quarter or semester and earn enough money to continue his or her education, or there are part-time jobs that can be taken while attending college.

For too many, education has become a refuge from work, risk and attainment and there is no reason why this kind of attitude should be subsidized by the taxpayers of Minnesota.

Those who want a college education will end up with a degree, without any further subsidy from the taxpayers. There are ways if there is enough desire.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Fellow workers were wondering about the smarts of a second day worker who was dragging his wheelbarrow upside down behind him. "I'm not so dumb," he said when asked about it. "Yesterday when I had it turned over they kept filling it with cement."

The officer approached the car he had just pulled over to the curb for speeding. "What's your name?" he demanded of the driver, ticket pad at ready. "Aloyicious Gloucestershire Merkowitzykvitch," the driver replied. "Okay," the officer said, pocketing the pad, "don't let me catch you again."

A Law Worth Repealing

If you have never heard of the Davis-Bacon Act, do not despair. Your friends will not fault you for shirking your duty as an informed citizen and taxpayer. They probably never heard of it either.

Few Americans are aware of the Act. It is a relatively obscure federal law, only three pages long, enacted almost 50 years ago to protect workers in the 1930's Depression from low wages. In the 1930's workers did not have unemployment compensation and welfare to fall back on. While the law may have served a purpose then, it is obsolete in today's economy. It should be repealed.

But it is a sacred cow to organized labor, particularly the unions of highly paid construction workers, and their friends in Congress. Davis-Bacon operates to ensure the widest possible application of union wage scales on federally funded or assisted construction projects, including highways, hospitals and airports.

It also is an inflationary law — and unnecessarily has cost tax payers billions of dollars over the years in excessive wage costs, as Congress will soon be reminded again, not by business but by one of its investigative agencies.

The General Accounting Office (GAO) recently completed a draft of a massive report recommending repeal of the Act. The findings, still unofficial, are being circulated among top government officials for comment and reaction. While the report may be modified by the time it is released and perhaps sharply criticized by the Labor Department, which does not come off well in the draft, the basic findings are already a matter of common knowledge and simply confirm what has been known for years about the law.

The basic findings are worth summarizing briefly. But first a word about how the Act works. It requires the government to establish minimum wages on its projects. In the Depression this was intended to prevent itinerant contractors from coming into a community and underbidding local builders by importing cheap labor.

The minimum wage was to be determined by the Labor Department as being the "prevailing" wage in a community or locality. In actual practice, this has meant wages paid under union contracts, even though unions today represent only slightly more than a third of the industry's workers. Instead of the pevailing wage, the Act has tended to make the highest-paid wage the prevailing pay.

The GAO draft drew these conclusions:

— Significant changes in economic conditions and the character of the industry have changed drastically since the 1930's. The law is no longer necessary.

— Despite 50 years of experience, the Labor Department has failed to master the complex and difficult if not impractical task of issuing and maintaining current and accurate wage information.

— The Act results in unnecessary construction costs of about $500 million a year, based on the sample GAO surveys of projects plus some $215 million in administrative costs borne by the government and employers.

Similar findings have been made over the years by such respected institutions as the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania, noted economists such as Arthur F. Burns, former chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, and the GAO itself.

The GAO's latest estimate of excessive costs due to the higher wage scales mandated by the law is generally viewed as conservative, or on the low side. A 1971 GAO report estimated excessive costs of projects studied then as 5 to 15 per cent.

Since government currently is responsible for funding 25 per cent or more of all construction, wage set on its projects impact indirectly on all construction, bidding up wages.

The report itself is voluminous, running into hundreds of pages. It is one document the nation's inflation fighters, from President Carter on down, cannot ignore. It is time for both President Carter and the Congress to face up to the withering array of economic facts, put shallow political considerations aside and rid the nation of this key source of inflation.

In any event, Remember Davis-Bacon. It's a ripoff.

To The Editor:

You are to be congratulated, Marvin Lundin, editor of the Times, on your write-ups on special topics. Your article in the December 25 paper on the front page headed, "Kvarnlovs Thankful for Full Family Christmas" should have raised the hair and temper of anyone who read that true story.

Thank God for His help with Mr. and Mrs. Ken Kvarnlov to get their daughter Kaydelle out of that Moonie Cult under Rev. Sun Myung Moon in California.

Yes, we in America have freedom of religion, but not that kind of forceful religion with a fence around the whole place. Young people were not even left alone, not even to make a phone call; lectured upon daily, brain washed until they are walking robots as Mrs. Kvarnlov stated.

Why on earth doesn't our government go in and clean that mess up before it's a mess like the Jonestown cult under Jim Jones. They'd have a right as freedom of religion does not call for this fenced in territory with guards at the gates.

I hope Mr. Lundin, our editor, has alerted a lot of people so they won't get caught up like Kaydelle Kvarnlov did.

Kaydelle, I am glad you're at home now and mother of a beautiful little girl and free from that cult organization.

NWDDA Board To Meet Jan. 19

Northwestern developmental disabilities advisory board of the Northwestern mental health center and the Northwest regional development commission will meet January 19 at 1 p.m. at the Regional library in Thief River Falls. Agenda items will include election of officers and discussion of the 1979 work plan for developmental disabilities. This meeting is open to the public.

In the next 12 months, an estimated 46,000 more people in the U.S. will become blind — that's one person every 11 minutes.

CAPTAIN RONALD B. RUNGER, son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Runger of Thief River Falls, was recently awarded the Air Force Commendation medal for his service as a squadron scheduler, chief of squadron standardization and evaluqtion, and instructor fighter pilot while stationed at Holloman Air Force base in New Mexico from June 23, 1975 to June 24, 1978. Citation accompanying the medal stated, "As an instructor pilot, Captain Runger's aggressive aerial performance and superior leadership aided immeasurably in the successful accomplishment of the mission of the 49th Tactical Fighter Wing." Runger is married to the former Sandy Ness, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ness of Thief River Falls. They are presently in Okinawa where Captain Runger is stationed at the Radena Airforce base.

ICCC Receives Home Start Parenting Grant

Inter-County community council's home start program recently received one of three grants in the state of Minnesota to implement the Exploring Parenting curriculum. Exploring parenting is a new head start (home start) parenthood education program. In order to implement the program home start has collaborated with the Thief River Falls area vocational technical institute and will be providing sessions in Thief River Falls, Fosston and Clearbrook.

Exploring Parenting has been developed to provide parents with a unique educational opportunity. Program recognizes that there is no one "right" way to parent and that each individual must choose the style which best fits his personality and values. Exploring Parenting provides structured situations in which groups of parents can share their experiences and look at parenting from new angles. During the 20 three-hour sessions, parents examine and discuss a wide range of issues which concern them and their children.

The three main goals of the Exploring Parenting Program are: 1) To get to know yourself better, 2) To get to know your child better and 3) To use this knowledge in making decisions about how to raise your child.

Group facilitators attended a week long training session in Detroit, Mich. in December. Eighteen programs from six states were involved in the session which provided intensive work with the materials and in methods of leading the sessions. Group facilitators will be: Peggy Johaningsmeir, parenting coordinator at the Thief River Falls AVTI; Colleen Bertholf, home start center base teacher, and Kathy Simonson, home start education coordinator.

Registration for the program is open, free of charge, to the public; however, priority will be given to home start families if necessary. A few openings are left in each location. Persons interested in more information about the program should contact the AVTI in Thief River Falls or Home Start in Oklee at 796-5144.

Safety Is YOUR Business

Nursing Service Explains Foot Care Program

Nursing staff from the Marshall-Kittson county nursing service holds blood pressure and foot care clinics on a regular schedule at designated sites throughout the counties.

Guidelines for blood pressures have been approved by area doctors and patients are referred according to this.

Foot care given at the clinics consists mainly of soaking feet and trimming nails. Proper care of the feet is difficult for many people because of poor vision, thick nails and the inability to bend over.

Good foot care is not only important for comfort; for diabetics and people with poor circulation it may mean the difference between healthy feet and amputation.

Nurses give instruction in foot care and referrals are made to area doctors for those people with corns, warts and callouses, since these are not treated by nurses. Location and times of clinics will be printed in this newspaper.

Got an attic full of "Stowaways" turn them into cash with a Times' Classified Ad.

BIDS

Bids are now being taken for insulating the ceiling of the Marshall County Locker in Newfolden.

Please contact the locker, phone number 874-7355 or 874-3713. All bids are due by January 15, 1979.

The Association reserves the right to accept or reject any or all bids.

Fuel Assistance Funds Available Again In 1979

Special Emergency Energy Assistance funds have once again been made available by the state of Minnesota and the federal government. Inter-County Community Council of Oklee, serving the counties of Red Lake, Pennington, East Polk and Clearwater, has been delegated to dispense these funds to qualifying individuals and families. To qualify for assistance under these programs, an individual must meet special income guidelines set forth by the federal government. They must also have suffered a serious hardship because of energy costs.

Applications will be taken in January for the three available programs. A person may qualify for all programs, but only one application is necessary and maximum assistance of all programs will be $250.

Program I is an extension of last year's fuel assistance program that ran from March to May 20, 1978. Anyone who received help under this program does not qualify for further assistance under program I and should make application under program II. When applying, those who do qualify should bring proof of household income for any three consecutive months between January 1 to June 30, 1978 and proof of fuel and utility bills (paid or unpaid) for the same period. Applications for program I will be taken until March 15, 1979.

When applying for assistance under programs II and III persons should bring proof of present household income and copies of all fuel and utility bills from October 1, 1978 through the time of application. Application deadline for program II is January 31, 1979 and no closing date has been set as yet for program III. Under the 1979 program the government can assist with past bills or give credit towards future bills.

46 Skaters Take Tests Last Week

Forty-six skaters from six skating clubs took more than 100 tests when the Thief River Falls skating club sponsored its first national testing session Friday and Saturday at the Thief River Falls sports arena. Sixty-one per cent of the skaters passed the tests taken — well above the national average of 50 per cent.

Thief River Falls skating club received its national sanction by the U.S. Figure Skating association in August of last year. Tests Friday and Saturday were conducted in the areas of school figures, solo freestyle, pairs freestyle and five levels of ice dance.

Heading the judging panel as referee was Walter Lupke, national judge from Fort Wayne, Ind., who judged here with his wife, Helen, a gold test judge. Both will be judging at the national championships later this year.

Other judges were Hulda Sambork, Canadian silver judge, Winnipeg; Red Hamlyn, Canadian gold judge, Winnipeg; Gordon McClellan, low test figures and freestyle judge, Bemidji; Gladys Binet, intermediate figures and freestyle judge, Duluth; and Leo LaChance, bronze dance judge, Fargo, N.D.

Also participating in the event as trial judges, practicing to earn judge appointments were members of the Minneapolis, Minnetonka, St. Paul, Duluth and Red River Valley (Fargo) figure skating clubs. These practice judges must be skaters themselves, take lessons and attend USFSA judging schools as well as practice judging. Many reportedly came to Thief River Falls because of the strength of the pre-pairs program in this area.

Serving as co-chairmen for the testing were Jan Nelson, Rita Phelps and Marlene Tyner. Marge Nelson and Nancy Johnson were in charge of hospitality, Bob Ekeren in charge of music, Dick LeMoine and Eleanor Kuchowicz served as announcers and Annette Contos handled last-minute coordination.

In addition to Thief River Falls, other clubs having members taking tests here were Border Blades (Grand Forks), Red River Valley (Fargo), Duluth, St. Paul and Bemidji figure skating clubs. Judges for the event serve without pay but are reimbursed for travel and other expenses. Serving as partners for TRF skaters in dance testing were Denise Anderson, Lisa Howe, Joyce Phelps, David Johnson and Bob Nelson of Thief River Falls and professionals Gary Knox and Kevin Hagen of Grand Forks, N.D.

Tests passed by Thief River Falls skating club members were as follows:

Laura Worth, Juvenile freestyle; Karin Wennberg, Fiesta tango; Dr. Charles Samuelson, Dutch waltz; Sherri Sabo, Willow waltz and 10-Fox; Melanie Thorson, Willow waltz and 10-Fox; Kim Thorson, First school figures, juvenile freestyle and preliminary pairs freestyle;

Also Jessica Nelson, Juvenile freestyle; Jenny Nelson, preliminary school figures; Bob Nelson, Second school figures, juvenile freestyle and European waltz; Stephanie LeMoine, Preliminary pairs freestyle; Jason Lee, Dutch waltz; Petrina Kuyath, Dutch waltz;

Also Kim Kenville, Swing dance; David and Dan Johnson, Willow waltz, 10-Fox and 14-Step dances and preliminary pairs freestyle; Chris Helle, Dutch waltz; Chris Contos, Dutch waltz and Canasta tango; and Denise Anderson, Preliminary pairs freestyle.

Thief River Falls recreational skating association will have a lesson practice from 3 to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday at the sports arena with basic testing to be conducted on Thursday.

Conservation Jobs Offered Through YACC

If you are between the ages of 18 and 23, enjoy the outdoors and are interested in conservation, the young adult conservation corps (YACC) may have a job for you.

Administered by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources under federal grant funds, the YACC works on projects on non-federal public lands and waters.

The areas include such sites as state parks, state forests, wildlife areas, county lands, municipal lands and school district properties.

Examples of the types of work performed include improvement of forests, recreational trail development, wildlife surveys and small scale construction projects. But YACC leaders say they are willing to discuss any work project proposal that will benefit the state's resources.

Presently the YACC has openings for 20 men and women who will live at a camp located on Swan Lake near Pengilly east of Grand Rapids.

Participants will work 40 hours per week earning about $2.90 per hour. From the individual's wages, $21 per week is deducted for board and room.

Rolf and Joanie Hagberg, camp directors, said the living quarters are very adequate. The camp is located on 40 acres of land, has a good beach and a variety of recreational equipment.

Evening and weekend activities are offered, including trips, recreational outings and educational opportunities.

The camp is expected to open about Jan. 9.

Those interested in joining the program can sign up at State Employment Job Service Centers anywhere in the state, requesting the Swan Lake YACC camp.

New Wetlands Coordinator Is Named By FWS

As part of an effort to place greater emphasis on preservation of the nation's wetlands, the Interior Department's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has established a new position of wetland coordinator to provide information on and guidance to wetland programs. Director Lynn A. Greenwalt has named Gilbert "Gil" Key, a fish and wildlife service career employee, to fill the position.

"Many different offices of the fish and wildlife service conduct activities that relate to preserving wetlands," Greenwalt said in announcing Key's appointment. "The wetland coordinator position will provide a single source of information about wetlands for private citizens, organizations and state and federal agencies. This will facilitate the exchange of data about wetlands and will help us identify steps we can take to improve protection of wetlands."

Following the announcement, Robert Herbst, assistant secretary for fish and wildlife and parks, expressed concern about the continuing destruction of the nation's wetlands. "From 200 to 300 thousand acres of wetlands are being destroyed in the United States every year," Herbst said. "This destruction poses a serious threat not only to wildlife and fisheries but to important human needs such as maintaining good water quality and adequate stream flows and groundwater supplies. I am convinced that this problem is aggravated by insufficient public understanding of the real values of wetlands, coupled with the fact that wetlands seldom return any hard cash to their owners. In many cases, the ownership is private. The values are public."

Herbst added that the president's emphasis on wise use of water resources has further underscored the need to protect wetlands.

Wetlands serve as nursery areas for fish and shellfish, breeding and wintering grounds for waterfowl and provide food and cover for deer, furbearers, songbirds and other wildlife. In addition, potholes, swamps, marshes and other wetlands trap rainwater and melting snow, allowing water to sink into the ground to become part of the water table. This is especially important in water-starved areas of the United States where groundwater and stream flows are being rapidly depleted by pumping and irrigation. By catching water and slowing its runoff, wetlands also help prevent soil erosion and floods in streams and rivers downstream.

As wetland coordinator, Key will provide information and recommendations on Interior Department wetland programs, including such activities as wetlands acquisition and inventories and measures to prevent and mitigate damage to wetlands caused by federal actions. Key will also help identify new initiatives and research needed for improved wetland protection. The new position does not replace any existing FWS wetland functions or responsibilities.

Key, 44, has had broad experience in wetland programs in his 12 years with the service. Formerly a senior biologist with the FWS division of ecological services, he has also worked as area supervisor of ecological services in Pierre, South Dakota; as an environmental specialist with the division of wildlife refuges in the Twin Cities, Minnesota; and as wetlands biologist in North Dakota and Minnesota in the small wetlands acquisition program.

Key can be contacted at the U.S. Department of the Interior, Fish and Wildlife Service (PD-HP), Washington, D.C. 20240, or phone (202) 343-4034.

Minn. Water Toll Continues To Remain Low

Minnesota's water death toll remained low during the past year, according to Kim Elverum, boat and water safety coordinator for the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

According to year-end statistics, 86 persons lost their lives on Minnesota waters during 1978, the second lowest figure on record.

"A record low total of 84 was recorded during 1977, the fewest drownings in the 34 years the department has been keeping such records," said Elverum.

"This continuing low number of yearly fatalities is attributed to awareness of water safety by the public, resulting from the efforts of various safety organizations in the state. Evidence of this is the increasing use of personal flotation devices (PFDs or life preservers) by boaters and fishermen," he said.

The water fatality total is broken down as follows:

+Thirty-eight lost their lives in boating-related mishaps, up slightly from the 1977 total. The two most common types of fatal boating accidents were falling overboard and capsizing.

+Thirty-five died in swimming, diving or wading accidents where overconfidence in swimming ability, diving into water of an unknown depth or lack of youngster supervision were the leading factors.

+Eight persons drowned as a result of non-boating falls into the water.

+Three snowmobilers died as a result of falling through thin ice.

+Two persons died as a result of a scuba diving accident.

Non-fatal boating accidents were down during 1978. Out of 98 reported non-fatal accidents (down from 105 in 1977), 75 per cent were collisions with another craft or a fixed object. Failure to keep a proper lookout along with the use of alcohol, stress factors and lack of boat-handling experience were determined to be prime factors in these collisions.

Collisions also accounted for the most personal injuries and resulted in the most property damage. Total boating accident property damage from all causes amounted to an estimated $122,729 for the year — down from the previous year's total of $145,000.

Snowmobilers Convention Is Slated Feb. 9-11

Alexandria will be the center of the snowmobile action in Minnesota the weekend of February 9 - 11 when members of the Minnesota united snowmobilers association (Minnesota U.S.A.) gather for their annual convention.

Headquarters for the convention will be the Radisson Arrowwood Lodge. Included on the weekend's agenda is the annual meeting of the association, which is the organized voice of Minnesota's nearly one-million snowmobiling enthusiasts. The meeting will be highlighted by the election of officers to head the association for the coming year.

Saturday morning meeting will be followed by trail rides, with the Douglas area trail association (D.A.T.A.) serving as guides on the association's 260-mile system of groomed snowmobile trails.

Following a Saturday evening banquet at Arrowwood, the snowmobilers will gather for a giantic snowmobile torchlight parade on Lake Darling.

"We are delighted to have our convention in Alexandria", said Harold Tompkins, Cambridge, President of Minnesota U.S.A. "It's centrally located and the fine trails and facilities of the area will guarantee a fun weekend for all attendees."

All snowmobilers in Minnesota are invited to join in the weekend's activities. Complete information can be obtained from Minnesota U.S.A., P.O. Box 487, Osseo, Minnesota 55369.

Duck Deaths Are Laid To Lead Shot, Says DNR

An examination by the Department of Natural Resources of some 24 ducks and geese gathered up at the Talcot Lake wildlife management area indicates most of the birds suffered from ingesting lead shot.

In November, wildlife personnel collected the dead and sick waterfowl and sent them to the DNR's biology laboratory in St. Paul for analysis.

Phil Economon, pathologist for the department's ecological services section, said liver-bound lead in the ducks ranged from 3.1 to 32 parts per million. Such levels are considered lethal or severely debilitating, he said.

He added that a number of the birds examined had serious injuries from shotgun pellets and that some of the injured and crippled birds had fallen victim to predators, wound infections and stress-related causes.

DNR Revamps 1979 Boating Rules Guide

Minnesota boat owners renewing their licenses during 1979 or buying a new boat during the year will receive a "Minnesota Boating Guide" with their license.

The new guide replaces the verbatum statutes and regulations previously issued with the boat registration.

Kim Elverum, boat and water safety coordinator with the Department of Natural Resources (DNR), said the new guide contains the same basic information found in the previous publication.

"The difference, however," he said, "is that the new guide is written in every day English, not in the legalistic language found in the statutes and regulations themselves.

"In addition," he added, "the booklet utilizes larger, easy-to-read type and contains safety tips and information on such items as trailer laws and the location of various agencies which can be of help to the boater."

He said that there were no changes in the actual laws or regulations from last year.

Hopefully, said Elverum, the new format will enable boaters to be safe on the state's waters as well as understanding what is required of them without having to consult an attorney or call the DNR.

It'll pay to look in the book...first
...starting
next month.

Northwestern Bell's Directory Assistance Credit and Pricing Plan will go into effect in February. And that means a saving for Northwestern Bell customers who use their telephone directories to find numbers instead of calling Directory Assistance.

How It Will Work

- Beginning with your March bill and each month after, you'll receive a credit of 53¢ for each of your telephone lines.
- You're allowed to make five calls to Directory Assistance each month at no charge. And you can request two numbers with each call; so, in effect, you can get up to 10 numbers a month at no charge.
- After the first five calls, each additional call to Directory Assistance will cost 20¢. When you dial "0" and ask for the operator to get a number from Directory Assistance, it will cost 40¢.
- There will be no charge on calls to Directory Assistance in area codes other than your own.
- If you have any disability that prevents you from using a telephone directory, you are eligible for an exemption from the plan, if you choose. (See coupon.) If you are exempt, you will not be charged for calls to Directory Assistance—but also you will not receive monthly credit.
- No charge will be applied on calls to Directory Assistance from hospitals, pay phones and mobile/marine phones. Phones served by other telephone companies are not part of this plan.

We expect that only a small number of our customers will pay a charge under the plan, and all, except the exempt, will benefit from the monthly credit. This 18-month trial program is designed to provide a more fair and equitable way of sharing the cost of Directory Assistance. Through the 53¢ monthly credit, customers will gain the full benefit of all expenses saved and revenues gained from the plan.

Here are several no-charge ways which might help you save money when the new plan starts in February:

One: You can request available Minnesota telephone directories for communities you call frequently. (See coupon.)
Two: Personal, pocket-sized directories are available at any Northwestern Bell PhoneCenter Store or Business Office to record your own frequently called numbers.
Three: You'll also find it helpful to list often called numbers of friends, relatives and business contacts in the space provided on the back of your telephone book.

If you would like to request an exemption application or need additional telephone directories, please complete the coupons below and enclose them with your next phone bill payment. Or, if you'd like, drop them off at the PhoneCenter Store or Business Office nearest you.

If you have any questions about the new plan, please call your local Business Office: The number is listed in the front of your directory.

Thank You.

Prowlers Face Strong Opponents

Toughest portion of the 1978-79 Lincoln high school hockey schedule awaits the Prowlers during the next two weeks. The four-game stretch will find Thief River Falls playing at East Grand Forks Tuesday, hosting Greeway-Coleraine Saturday, visiting Grand Forks Central Tues., Jan. 16, and entertaining Roseau Sat., Jan. 20.

East Grand Forks-Thief River Falls hockey games are always spirited affairs. Both the Green Wave and Prowlers boast talent this winter and head coaches Buzz Olson and Wendell Grand expect their teams to be serious Section 8 title contenders.

Greenway-Coleraine will bring an Iron Range power into the Thief River Falls sports arena. Sharing fourth place in the current Associated Press hockey poll with Roseau, the Raiders played their best game of the year according to head coach Mike Barle in a recent 7-2 win over Eveleth when solid forechecking enabled the winners to out-shoot the Golden Bears 31-11. Greenway and Grand Rapids clash Tuesday in an IRC feature match.

Perennial North Dakota power Grand Forks Central opened a lot of eyes with an impressive 9-4 victory over East Grand Forks last week.

Roseau has won 54 consecutive regular season games. The last regular season loss for the Rams was a 3-2 defeat at the hands of Thief River Falls during the 1975-76 season.

The Prowlers won that game at Roseau due mostly to the work of goaltender Terry Sullivan who came up with a brilliant 53-save performance. The Rams shelled the Prowlers 11-0 later that year in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Best crowds of the season should be on hand in the sports arena to watch the Prowlers challenge the powerful Raiders and Rams.

Miscellaneous

+Defending MJCAA hockey state champion Mesabi has been giving up shorthanded goals in losing four straight games this winter. The Norsemen gave up three goals while on the power play in a recent 9-7 loss to Rainy River, prompting coach Pat Finnegan to put the blame squarely on his defensemen. "Our defensemen get too far in the offensive zone and they don't react quick enough," he said. Mesabi played without the services of goaltender Mike Fabini, defensemen Peter Finnegan and Bill Hennis and wings Neal Hensley and Tony Pimental, all assessed game misconduct penalties for fighting in the second of a two-game sweep at the hands of Crookston in mid-December.

+Marchell Cuppett, a freshman from Thief River Falls, is averaging 5.2 points per game as a member of the University of North Dakota women's basketball team. A forward, Cuppett is the fourth highest scorer for the Sioux, with a high game output of nine points.

+It was incorrectly reported here that St. Cloud Apollo coach Bruce Melin was "relieved" of his duties as head football coach at the school. Melin, who guided his Eagles to a 3-1 record against Thief River Falls from 1972 to 1975, called to say he resigned from the post.

+Eveleth edged Bemidji 1-0 last week in a high school hockey game decided by a deflection by defenseman Dan Vlaisavljevich of the Golden Bears with just 19 seconds remaining. Jim Carrington of the Bemidji Pioneer said the rangy Vlaisavljevich was "rewarded for an almost tireless effort on the ice. He skated as many as five straight shifts and seldom left the ice for more than a brief respite, reminiscent of Henry Boucha."

+Ralph Anderson of the Detroit Lakes Tribune has labled Breckenridge and Wadena as co-favorites for Region 6A high school basketball honors this winter. Wadena, scheduled to play in Thief River Falls Fri., Jan. 26, has lost twice this season, but to a Crosby-Ironton team that is a favorite in District 18 and to a Little Falls squad that is a Region 8AA contender.

A Husqvarna Saw Can Make Tomorrow A Better Day...

Here's How.

We've reduced vibration. . .that means you can cut for longer periods without tiring. And handles are heated too. Husqvarna saws are quieter. . .the engine and all moving parts have been silenced. . . that's easy on your ears. An electric ignition keeps you from wasting strength and time with a starter cord.

We've lessened the chance of injury, too. Husqvarna pioneered the chain brake. . .if the saw kicks back, the chain stops in 0.12 seconds flat. Plus, we've added a chain break guard and chain catcher. . .all to make you and Husqvarna saws safer.

Northmen Play Lake Region, Mesabi Squads

Lake Region and Mesabi will provide strong opposition this week as the Northland community college basketball team opens the 1979 portion of its 1978-79 season.

The Devils Lake, N.D. Lake Region ball club visits Northland tonight (Monday) at 7:30 p.m. The 7-3 Northmen lost to the Royals earlier this winter, 86-73.

Mesabi will play here Saturday afternoon at 2. The Virginia-based school, led by former Orr high school all-stater Tim Olson, ranks as the top team in the Northeast Division of the Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA).

Tonight's game will be the final nonconference outing of the year for the Northmen who play 11 consecutive MJCAA opponents to finish the season, including six games against Northwest Division foes and five against Northeast Division squads.

Bears Edge Nordics 49-47 In Overtime

Todd Robinson scored on a rebound shot at the final buzzer to give Lake of the Woods a dramatic 49-47 overtime win over Marshall County Central Saturday afternoon in a North Border Conference high school basketball game played at Newfolden.

Marshall County Central led 18-16 at the end of the first quarter, trailed 30-28 at halftime and faced a 38-35 third quarter deficit. The game was tied 43-43 at the end of regulation time.

"It's the best we've played," pointed out Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "But it was a disappointing loss. We did everything we had to do to win."

Robinson, a 6-6 junior, took game-high scoring honors with 20 points. Teammate Dave Furbish added 10. Kevin Anderson led the Nordics with 15 points and Dan Engen contributed 13.

Lake of the Woods shot 53 per cent from the field. Although the Bears took just 30 shots, they made 16. Marshall County Central made 21 of 45 attempts for a 47 per cent figure. The Bears won the game at the free throw line where they were 17-for-22. The Nordics made five of 10 free throw opportunities. Lake of the Woods held a 21-14 rebound advantage.

Marshall County Central, 3-5, begins a series of three consecutive road games Friday at Warroad.

Seven Prowlers Score In 7-3 Victory Over Bears

Seven different Thief River Falls scorers collected goals Friday as the Prowlers returned to Section 8 high school hockey action with a 7-3 win over Lake of the Woods in the sports arena.

Jim Thompson, Murray Dicken, Scott Sabo, Todd Trickle, Jeff Ulrich, Bob Fitzgerald and Tom Bjorkman all scored for the Prowlers who improved their season record to 4-2. Thief River Falls, 2-1 against Section 8 opponents, was playing its first sectional foe since mid-December.

Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand was not happy with his team's performance, though. "Only thing we're satisfied with is seven goals — we needed to score goals," he said. "Other than that, we played poorly."

A shorthanded goal got the Prowlers started late in the first period. Ulrich did a great job carrying the puck to the goal mouth with a defender draped all over him. He got off a shot that was blocked by Lake of the Woods goalie Galen Nagle, but Thompson, trailing the play, was there for the rebound at 12:45.

Shortly thereafter it became 2-0 when Dicken was positioned for a rebound at 14:22. It was one of three goals the Prowlers scored on rebounds, a fact that did please Grand.

Lake of the Woods used a rebound of its own to narrow the gap to 2-1 on a Trace Brown goal just 2:29 into the second period.

Thief River Falls put together four minutes of strong hockey to widen the lead to 5-1, scoring three goals in a 3:23 span.

Persistence paid off for the Prowlers who kept the puck in the Lake of the Woods zone until Sabo found himself alone in front, thanks to a feed from Bjorkman, at 8:40.

It became 4-1 at 9:56 when Trickle finished off a length-of the ice Thief River Falls rush. His close-in shot appeared to be stopped by Nagle, but the puck suddenly appeared behind the netminder and trickled across the goal line.

Thompson was stopped at the goal mouth moments later, but Ulrich was there for the rebound at 12:03.

Forty-seven seconds later the Bears' Paul Brown interrupted the Thief River Falls assault. But with just 24 seconds remaining in the second period, Fitzgerald's blast from the right side hit the post and caromed in for a 6-2 game.

The teams traded third period goals. Lake of the Woods' Alan Hanson was set up in front at 8:27 and Bjorkman finished the scoring on a goal mouth tip-in at 12:45.

CAUGHT BETWEEN a rock and a hard place, Thief River Falls defenseman Mark Huot was on the receiving end of a solid hit by an unidentified Lake of the Woods player Friday after digging the puck out of the corner. The Prowlers won the Section 8 hockey game 7-3.

Host Detroit Lakes, Ada . . .

Blackduck Beats Wrestlers 48-12

A beleaguered Lincoln high school wrestling team, looking for some measure of success this winter, looks at this week's schedule which features Detroit Lakes Tuesdan and Ada Friday as an opportunity to stem a string of one-sided dual meet losses. Both matches will start at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln gym.

Winless in five dual meet outings, Thief River Falls dropped a 48-12 match at Blackduck Thursday. That loss followed earlier equally decisive setbacks to Roseau 42-7, Bemidji 60-3, Greenbush 57-6 and Mayville-Portland 52-11.

Despite the scores, first-year Thief River Falls coach Jesse Schmike says the Prowlers' spirit is still high. "The kids looked good," he said after the Blackduck match. "They worked hard. Blackduck has a pretty good team."

Thief River Falls surrendered 18 points to Blackduck on forfeits. The Prowlers had no wrestlers at 185 and heavyweight and lost the services of freshman Chad Thompson at 105 when he suffered a cracked collarbone while wrestling the Drakes' Paul Dremmel.

Ehling built a 5-0 first period lead and pinned Greg Todavich in 3:45 at 119.

Nelson came up with a reversal in the final moments at 126 to edge Damian Yerbich 4-3 at 126. A reversal in the second period gave Nelson a 2-0 lead, but Yerbich scored on an escape and a takedown at the start of the third period.

Selves scored early and blanked John Garner 6-0 at 138. A takedown and a nearfall in the first period gave Selves a 4-0 lead. He added a second period reversal.

Blackduck won on pins at 98 pounds where James Yerbich stopped Scott Muzzy in 1:52 and at 167 where Joe Gross downed Pete Sharpe in 30 seconds.

Elsewhere, Chris Dick defeated Clay Sorteberg 13-4 at 112, Chris Garner beat Dan Odegaard 12-3 at 132, Marty Yerbich shut out Mark Williamson 12-0 at 145 and Gary Gross handled Troy Lundstrom 16-3 at 155.

Six junior varsity matches all ended in pins, four by Blackduck in a 24-12 victory. Thief River Falls winners were Kevin Thompson at 112 and Scott Peterson at 119.

Lincoln JV Is Defeated 51-50

A two-point, 27-25 halftime lead turned into a one-point, 51-50 defeat for the Lincoln high school junior varsity basketball team at International Falls Saturday.

Mark Schmitke scored 13 points for Thief River Falls, now 4-3.

Lincoln B Team Wins Shortened Hockey Game

Playing under hurried conditions that allowed no time for ice resurfacing and a mere five-minute third period, the Lincoln high school junior varsity hockey team defeated Lake of the Woods 6-3 Friday.

Six different Lincoln skaters scored. Todd Bergland, Ross Richards, Tony Loeffler and Paul Drees gave Thief River Falls a 4-2 first period lead. David Koppenhaver and Rob Blankenfeld made it 6-3 in the second period.

The game was hurried along because of a deadline the Lincoln hockey teams faced in making the ice available to the recreational skating program. A delay at the start because of scoreboard problems added to the rush.

LHS Girls JV Defeats Rams, Loses To Spuds

Undefeated status of the Lincoln high school girls junior varsity basketball team came to an end Saturday at the hands of Moorhead, 42-27. Thief River Falls beat Roseau 62-8 Thursday.

Moorhead held Thief River Falls scoreless in the second period to push a 10-4 first quarter edge into a 23-4 halftime cushion. It became 35-13 in the third quarter.

Becky Mark scored 13 points for Moorhead and Karla Olness had 10. Marlys Huot led Thief River Falls with 15 points.

Fourth straight season-opening Thief River Falls win of the year was an easy one as the hosts rolled to a 35-3 halftime lead against Roseau. The 62-point final included three double figure scorers as Huot collected 15 points, Kim McFarland 12 and Karen Kloety 12.

TRF Offense Stalls In 60-54 Loss To Broncos

An offense that stopped functioning in the third quarter squandered a five-point halftime lead Saturday as Thief River Falls lost a 60-54 high school basketball game at International Falls.

Trailing 15-12 at the end of the first quarter, Thief River Falls went on an 18-point second quarter tear that produced a 30-25 halftime advantage. But the Prowlers became ineffective on offense after intermission, scoring just eight third quarter points in falling behind 42-38. In one six-minute span the Prowlers scored just two points.

"We played a good first half," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters, "but in the second half we just stood around. We played really well in the second quarter. But for some reason we weren't offensive-minded in the third quarter."

Juniors Tom Rolando, a 5-10 guard, and Howard Arch, a 6-6 center, combined for 40 points for the Broncos. Rolando scored a game-high 22 points and Arch added 18, a figure matched by Thief River Falls' Steve Enderlein. Ricky Peterson contributed 10 points.

Thief River Falls shot only 35 per cent from the field, hitting 22 of 62 shots. International Falls shot 43 per cent on a 23-for-54 showing. The Prowlers made 10 of 14 free throw attempts while the Broncos sank 14 of 21 gift tosses. International Falls held a 37-28 rebound advantage but also topped the turnover charts 13-9.

Now 4-3, Thief River Falls plays a Northwest Athletic Conference game at East Grand Forks Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Area Swimming Rivals Tangle

Northwestern Minnesota swimming rivals Thief River Falls, Bemidji and Fosston continue to make the 1978-79 season a fan's delight. The three evenly matched squads tangled Saturday in the Fosston invitational where the Greyhounds and Lumberjacks shared first place with 186 points and Thief River Falls was third with 162.

Earlier this year Thief River Falls and Bemidji shared the Prowler relays crown, with Fosston a close third. Similar results are likely again Tuesday when it's Bemidji's turn to serve as an invitational host. And one of the season's top dual meet encounters will take place Friday when Thief River Falls hosts Fosston at 7 p.m. in the Franklin middle school pool.

Staples trailed the Greyhounds, Lumberjacks and Prowlers in the Fosston meet with 100 points, two points ahead of fifth place International Falls. Grand Forks Central, Moorhead and Detroit Lakes rounded out the field.

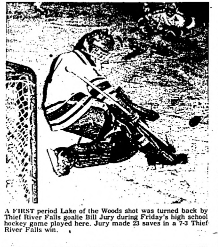
"It was a good meet," pointed out Thief River Falls coach John Kopari. "It was close all the way."

Dave Beito was a double event winner for the Prowlers with first place finishes in the 200-yard freestyle and 500-yard freestyle races. He was also a member of a second place 400-yard freestyle relay team that included Bruce Storhaug, Kevin Murphy and Dennis Booth.

It was that surprise second place finish — the Prowlers were favored — in the final relay that enabled a winning Bemidji team to earn enough points to gain a title tie with Fosston. That didn't sit well with the Greyhounds, whose Eric Rustad was voted the meet's outstanding swimmer.

Storhaug won the 100-yard freestyle and was second in the 200-yard individual medley. Murphy was second in the 100-yard freestyle.

"Some kids swam well, some didn't," mentioned Kopari. "We can't get the kids up every meet. We could end up beating both Bemidji and Fosston (Tuesday)."



A FIRST period Lake of the Woods shot was turned back by Thief River Falls goalie Bill Jury during Friday's high school hockey game played here. Jury made 23 saves in a 7-3 Thief River Falls win.

Multiply 9000 Drill capacity with a 2-, 3-, or 4-drill hitch

When you multiply 9000 Series Drill capacity with one of John Deere's Multi-Hitches, you also multiply the type of seeding accuracy only John Deere Drills can give you. 9000 Series Drills available in 8- or 10-foot widths, combined with a John Deere Multi-Hitch can let you seed up to 40 feet each pass.

The 9300 Plain-Grain Drill carries 2.8 bushels per foot. If you prefer a combination drill, choose the 9340. It carries 3.4 bushels per foot and provides two ratios of grain to fertilizer with a reversible divider panel. Choose from hoe or disk openers, six types of press wheels, row spacings, and many attachments.

Better seeding also comes from John Deere's fluted feedcup, high-flotation, 26-inch diameter press wheels, and traditional John Deere reliability. Stop in soon and see for yourself.

Jail Terms, Fines Given To Deer Shiners

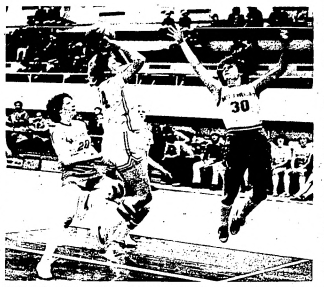
A 30-day jail term, a $1,000 fine plus $250 in public defender costs were assessed a rural Brainerd man Dec. 20 when he appeared in District Court in Crow Wing County on a deer shining charge.

Sentenced was Randolph Smude, 25, of rural Brainerd.

Earlier, two other men involved with Smude on the deer shining violation had been given similar sentences. All three were arrested by state conservation officers the night of Oct. 24 in Platte Lake Township.

Randy Block, 24, pled guilty to the charge of transporting an illegally taken doe deer and was sentenced to a 30-day jail term, a $1,000 fine plus $250 in prosecution costs and another $100 in public defender costs plus one year on probation.

The third man, Brian Wacker, 23, of rural Hillman, pled guilty to attempting to transport an illegally taken deer and was sentenced to 30 days in jail, a $500 fine, $250 in prosecution costs plus one year on probation.



SCORING SIX points in the first two minutes of Saturday's game against Moorhead, Thief River Falls guard Pam Kotschevar shot over the out-stretched arm of Moorhead defender Patty Larson for a game-opening basket. Julie Moll (20) of the Spuds and Roberta Engel of the Prowlers trailed the play. Moorhead won the game 52-40.

Roseau, Moorhead Girls Hand Prowlers Setbacks

Roseau and Moorhead handed the Lincoln high school girls basketball team a pair of setbacks last week, dropping Thief River Falls' season record to 1-4, which includes a four-game losing streak.

Both games were played in the Lincoln gym as Thief River Falls bowed to Roseau 39-38 Thursday and fell to Moorhead 52-40 Saturday.

Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg viewed the games differently. "It was terrible," she said after the loss to the Rams. "We just can't put together a 'team effort.'" But despite a fourth quarter collapse, she said, "We played better tonight," following the loss to the Spuds. "We hustled and worked hard."

A single game awaits the Prowlers this week, a Saturday contest against McIntosh-Winger at 8 p.m. at McIntosh.

A late game rally came up short as Thief River Falls lost a 39-38 decision to Roseau.

Trailing 37-31 with 1:30 remaining, Thief River Falls pulled within 37-36 and had possession of the ball in the closing moments. However, the Prowlers missed several excellent scoring opportunities before Roseau rebounded and drew an intentional foul. Jodi Evenson made both free throws for a 39-36 game and the Rams surrendered a game-ending basket to Roberta Engel for the non-point final.

Thief River Falls led 10-9 at the end of the first quarter, but Roseau, behind fast-breaking guard Rae Derry who scored 16 of her game-high 20 points in the first half, went ahead 23-18 at halftime. The Rams made it 33-25 in the third quarter.

Evenson also reached double figures for the Rams with 10 points, a figure matched by Thief River Falls' Kelly Storhaug. Julie Easton scored nine points and pulled down 10 rebounds for the Prowlers who held a 33-29 edge on the boards.

Thief River Falls shot 22 per cent from the field, hitting 16 of 74 field goal attempts. The Prowlers were 6-for-18 at the free throw line. Roseau made three of eight free throw attempts.

Moorhead out-scored Thief River Falls 18-6 in the fourth quarter to break open a ball game that was tied 34-34 through three quarters, giving the Spuds a 52-40 victory.

Thief River Falls, after shooting 41 per cent from the field for three quarters, made just two of 17 fourth quarter field goal tries — sinking its first and last shots of the period. In addition, the Prowlers committed seven of their 21 turnovers in the final eight minutes as they succumbed to a full court press.

Sophomore guard Ann Goodrich came up with a steal and a lay-up to give the Prowlers a 36-34 fourth quarter start. However, six successive turnovers resulted in a 45-36 deficit with three minutes gone.

Patience against a Moorhead zone and an early 8-1 rebound advantage supplied Thief River Falls with a 10-5 lead midway through the first quarter. The Prowlers stayed in front — including a 12-11 edge at the end of the first quarter — until Moorhead scored eight straight points to assume command, 23-18, with 3:12 remaining in the second quarter.

However, Thief River Falls forward Roberta Engel scored three baskets from the side in the final three minutes of the first half to tie things at 24-24 at intermission.

A balanced attack for the 3-2 Moorhead squad included Lori Larson with 16 points, Julie Moll 12, Patty Larson 10 and six-foot reserve center Glenda Akason 8. Julie Easton scored 10 points for the Prowlers while Engel and Pam Kotschevar had eight apiece. Like Engel, Kotschevar was a streak scorer, hitting three baskets in the first two minutes of the game to supply the Prowlers with a strong start.

Thief River Falls finished with a 32 per cent shooting figure from the field on an 18-for-56 night. Moorhead shot 40 per cent, hitting 22 of 55 shots. The Prowlers were 4-for-7 at the free throw line where the Spuds were 8-for-14. Moorhead held a 32-27 rebound edge. The turnovers were even at 21 apiece, which includes a third quarter basket that Moll scored — for the Prowlers.

Eagles Catch Trojans 61-57

A defensive switch enabled Grygla to overtake Mentor 61-57 Friday in a high school basketball game played at Mentor.

The Trojans, sitting on a three-point lead with three minutes remaining, appeared to be headed for a time-consuming stall against a Grygla zone. However, coach Van Swanson of the Eagles crossed Mentor with a man-to-man set that produced several turnovers and a come-from-behind victory.

"We did a good job toward the end," said Swanson. "We moved the ball. We hustled."

Grygla held narrow 10-9 and 27-25 leads at the first two quarter breaks. It was tied 41-41 heading into the final eight minutes.

Randy Larson, Jim Morrissey and Richard Nordby scored 56 of the 61 Grygla points. Larson finished with 23 points, Morrissey 18 and Nordby 15. Gary Simonson of Mentor took game-high scoring honors with 31 points, but he was the only member of the Trojans in double figures.

Grygla made 25 of 68 field goal attempts for 37 per cent. Mentor sank 20 of 62 shots for 32 per cent. The Eagles were 11-for-16 at the free throw line where the Trojans were 17-for-23. The rebounds were even at 33 apiece.

The victory snapped a four-game Grygla losing streak, improving the Eagles' record to 3-5 heading into a Tuesday assignment at Middle River.

THIEF RIVER FALLS TIMES

Volume 68 | (USPS 627-360) | Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota | Wednesday, January 10, 1979 | Number 4

LESS THAN A YEAR has gone by since Ray Arneson was named a staff assistant for Congressman Arlan Stangeland, but in that time he has become very familiar with the northern 10 counties of the sprawling 28-county Seventh District. In addition to holding office hours in the courthouse of each county an average of once a month, Arneson is available to meet with groups and does some traveling with the mobile van during warmer months. He is pictured during a visit to the Pennington courthouse Tuesday.

Congressional Fieldman Says Service Important

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

"You run into some pretty bizarre cases once in awhile," admitted Ray Arneson, field representative for Congressman Arlan Stangeland. The young Halstad farmer was in Thief River Falls Tuesday on one of his monthly "meet the public" visits to the Pennington county courthouse.

"It's my job to listen to people when they come to us with problems and whenever possible to use the scope and influence of the congressional office to help resolve those problems," he explained. "As I gain experience I am learning more and more about the areas where we can help and those where we really can't, but there are still a lot of questions that can't be answered right away."

Arneson said the congressional office puts out an average of 120 letters a day in response to communications received from the congressman's constituents. "And you would be surprised how much clout a congressman has in some areas involving the bureaucracy," he said.

Many bureaus and agencies in Washington have the policy that action on congressional inquiries comes first, Arneson noted. Because staffs of those bureaus and agencies can become bogged down in handling matters referred to them by congressional staff people and let inquiries direct from individuals slide, congressmen generally have to do some screening of the requests that they receive.

Social security, immigration, pension problems — these are among the areas of concern where Arneson frequently finds people have questions and need help. "We find foreign students who want to stay in the United States, U.S. citizens who want to adopt foreign-born children, things of this nature," he said. "Many times we are able to speed up the process. . . to cut through the red tape that delays unnecessarily the handling of applications and issuing of permits."

Arneson is one of three fieldmen in the sprawling 28-county district which extends along the western boundary of the state from the Canadian border south along two-thirds of the length of the state and east to within one county of the Wisconsin border. The district covers well over a third of the total land area of the state. Ray covers the northern counties of Kittson, Roseau, Lake of the Woods, Marshall, Pennington, Beltrami, Polk, Red Lake, Clearwater and Norman.

Last March Arneson succeeded Congressman Stangeland's first fieldman — Milt Arneson of Roseau, an unsuccessful legislative candidate in 1976. There is no relationship although the

In addition to newspaper and radio announcements of his visits, staff assistant Ray Arneson of Congressman Arlan Stangeland's field staff uses this sign to let people know he is in town. Whenever possible he makes community contacts as well as being available to residents of the district who are having problems with the bureaucracy, need special assistance or just want to discuss government programs or involvement.

Court Hearing For Quevedo Not Held Tues.

Charged with attempted second degree murder and aggravated assault in the stabbing of a Thief River Falls man, Anthony Quevedo remains in custody in the Pennington county law enforcement center in lieu of $50,000 bond.

A district court hearing scheduled for Tuesday was not held due to the inability of Quevedo's court-appointed public defender to appear in his behalf. No definite date was set for a future appearance.

Quevedo was charged by the Thief River Falls police department following a stabbing in which Keith Melvie, 22, was hospitalized following an altercation outside the Rusty Nail lounge

Snow Removal Policies Set By City Dept's.

In an effort to remove the snow from the streets and avenues within the city, the street department and police department have adopted the following policy:

After a snowfall, and when the street commissioner determines that the blades must be used, all vehicles will be towed at the owner's expense prior to the blade-cleaning of the street. The police department and wreckers will proceed down the respective street or avenue for the particular day, as noted below, and remove all vehicles.

After the initial cleaning is completed periodic clean-up will be done. All vehicles plowed around at this time will be tagged with two notices, and if the vehicle remains after 24 hours, it will be towed.

Snow removal schedule will be displayed on Cable 3 and announcements will be made over the radio as to when the plows will be operating and what streets they will be cleaning. If you are still uncertain as to where to park your vehicle, call the law enforcement center at 681-6161 and ask the dispatcher.

The cost for towing a vehicle will be $10 plus storage fees assessed by the owner of storage lot. These fees will be $5 the first day and $2 each day thereafter.

Following is the new schedule for snow removal: 1) Avenues (North & South) 6 a.m. (0600 hrs.) to 9 p.m. (2100 hrs.) on Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays; 2) Streets (East & West) 6 a.m.(0600 hrs.) to 9 p.m. (2100 hrs.) on Tuesdays, Thursdays, Saturdays. Do not park on Avenues on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. Do not park on Streets on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, 6 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Tommy Dorsey Orchestra To Be Here Jan. 19

Big band sound of the Tommy Dorsey orchestra will fill the Lincoln high school auditorium Friday evening, January 19, when the third concert of the Thief River Falls concert association series is held here. Curtain time is 8 p.m. and admission will be by season membership only.

Conductor of the orchestra is Buddy Morrow, whose own orchestra immortalized the song "Night Train". Morrow played with dance groups at the age of 13, won a New York audition for a scholarship to the Julliard school of music, played with the Yale Collegians during high school and later played with bands conducted by Artie Shaw, Eddy Duchin, Paul Whiteman and then Tommy Dorsey, who became a lifetime friend. He did his first conducting with the Jimmy Dorsey orchestra.

City Okays Budget On Revenue Sharing

First meeting of the Thief River Falls city council in 1979 was held Tuesday and included various actions regulated by state statute and the adoption of the federal revenue sharing budget for 1979.

Ambrose Wysoski was elected acting mayor to preside in the absence of Mayor Bob Carlson. The Thief River Falls Times was designated as the official newspaper and Northern State bank, First Federal Savings and Loan and First Northwestern bank were designated as official depositories.

Council committee appointments remained the same as in 1978, Chief of Police Ken Froschheiser was reappointed process server and John T. Anderson was reappointed to serve on the Northern Municipal Power agency board of directors. State statute also called for the review of the council's bylaws and rules of procedure and the approval of official bonds filed with the city clerk.

Prior to the commencement of the regular council meeting, a federal revenue sharing hearing was held at which a budget for 1979 revenue sharing funds was adopted. Balance on hand for 1979 was $96,809.86 with items under consideration totaling $110,738. Eliminated from the budget was the purchase of 11 vote-a-matic machines which it was determined were not essential for the local elections in 1979. It was determined that a $5,000 allocation made in 1978 for senior citizen subsidy for sanitation fees would cover 1979 with an excess of approximately $1,800. The council cut that allocation $1,500 to help cover 1979 costs and also transferred $169.94 left from the installation of tennis lights at the community college to items under consideration for 1979.

With the cuts the difference between proposed expenditures and funds available was $8,758.20 and the council agreed to decrease a $50,000 allocation to help cover the fire hall project by that amount. Fire hall costs beyond the bond issue and federal revenue sharing allocation would be taken from general funds.

Art Cloutier, owner-operator of Fred's Cab, was in attendance at Tuesday's council meeting to inform the council that he would not be remaining at the present cab site. The city had offered to let Cloutier rent the present facilities for an additional three months until he could relocate, but the cab owner indicated he would be moving to the former Four Seasons Realty site at 3rd and Horace.

De-Regulation Threatens Air Service

by Kim Blaeser
Times Reporter

"1,500 Welcome North Central First Plane on Arrival Here Jan. 1" was a headline in a 1953 issue of the Thief River Falls Times. The article which followed noted the inauguration of scheduled passenger and mail service on New Year's day of that year by North Central airlines.

The first flight schedule included a morning plane from Minneapolis to Grand Forks with stops in Thief River Falls on the way to Grand Forks and on the return flight to Minneapolis. An afternoon flight stopped in Thief River Falls on the way to Grand Forks but bypassed the local airport on the return flight until runway lights were installed. The first plane used was a 22-passenger affair with a crew of three. Round trip fare to Minneapolis was $30.50.

Prior to the commencement of scheduled service at the Thief River Falls airport, Harry Simons, Thief River Falls mayor at that time, was quoted as saying, "I believe the extension of air service to Thief River Falls will be a great factor in placing our area in a more favorable position for future development and advancement in business, agriculture, industry, health and recreation. I believe we should proceed with the necessary developments and improvements to our present airport and facilities to adequately provide for this transportation service."

During a Times interview this week, Simons outlined some of the improvements that were made at the airport to accommodate the new service including extension and widening of the runway, modification of the wind signal, updating office and waiting room facilities, erection of runway lights and improvement of various other safety factors at the airport.

Preparations for the advent of scheduled airline service began as early as 1950. "At that time," Harry Explains, "there was a lot of enthusiasm. And we had good support from the towns, especially north of here, like Greenbush, Roseau, Warroad and Karlstad. They all supported us here in our efforts to get the line in."

A 35-page brochure was prepared by the city to convince the civil aeronautics board (CAB) that there was both need and support for a scheduled passenger air service in Thief River Falls and the document included, besides Mayor Simons' endorsement, a letter from the president of the local civic and commerce association of 1950, William LaFave, urging the CAB to favorably consider the city's application for a franchise and operating permit for air service. In his letter on behalf of the commerce association, LaFave stated that "on a per capita basis, Thief River Falls is the greatest retail center of northern Minnesota" and "on a per capita basis Thief River Falls is one of the greatest wholesale distributing points in the entire state." Facts and figures in the accompnaying report supported those statements.

The city officials and area persons apparently convinced the CAB that Thief River was ready for scheduled air service and on New Year's day 1953, after three years of preparation, North Central began serving Thief River Falls.

We asked Simons if he thought getting North Central here had a large affect on the growth of Thief River Falls following that time.

"I think it did," he said. "It more or less put us on the mpa and drew quite a little attention. The surrounding area realized the importance and convenience of having an airline into Thief River Falls. It gave connections for people coming here who had business with the industry that was already here." "Arctic" Harry thinks, "is probably one of the biggest users of the airline," and he feels the fact that Thief River had scheduled service affected that corporation's choice to locate here.

Boardings at the local airport increased from 423 in 1953 to 1,243 in four years time but in the late 50's and early 60's use increased at slow rates and in some years actually declined. It was during this time that a "Use It, Or Lose It" airline program was instigated. The policy was that if the air service was not utilized at a rate of 150 passengers per month or 1,800 a year the airline could justify pulling out of the community. In Thief River Falls a promotional effort was undertaken to boost airline use and boarding figures were increased with the local chamber and businessmen subsidizing use of the airline by sports teams and other groups.

The early promotional efforts were successful and boardings have increased steadily since 1964. Necessity

Johnsrud and Lundeen Vows Spoken at Oklee

Marriage vows were exchanged recently at Oak Park Lutheran church, Oklee, by Candyce Ann Johnsrud, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Johnsrud of Goodridge, and Timothy Wayne Lundeen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Merle Lundeen of Trail.

Rev. Charles Keeler officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Marian Marquis, a friend of the bride, was the organist, playing "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," for the processional. During the ceremony, Jodi Stolaas, a friend of the couple, sang, "Wedding Song," "Follow Me," "Lord's Paryer" and "Praise to the Lord."

Blue and white bouquets graced the altar, matching the ribbon bows that marked the pews.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a white satin gown styled with a long-sleeved lace bodice. An overlay of sheer chiffon complemented the skirt which flowed into a chapel-length train. A headpiece of lace in rose pattern, embroidered with seed pearls, held her fingertip veil of bridal illusion. She carried a bouquet of white pompons, daisies and babies' breath, tied with blue and white ribbon streamers. Her cross pendant, centered with a diamond, was a gift from the groom.

Cheryl Nybo, a cousin of the bride, was personal attendant.

Maid of honor was Kristi Johnsrud, a sister of the bride. Other attendants were Barbara Lundeen, Trail, and Gayle Hilgeman, Oklee, sisters of the groom. All wore pale blue, sleeveless gowns with a deep blue velvet panel down the front. A cameo accented the bodice. Topping the gowns were matching velvet capes. In their hair, they wore pale blue velvet ribbon and at the neckline were gold crosses, gifts from the bride. Their bouquets were similar to the bride's.

Attired like the bride was the groom's cousin, Deanna Ferry, East Troy, Wis., who served as mini-bride. Her heart-shaped pendant was a gift from the bride. The rings were carried by Jarod Hofstad of Trail, a cousin of the bride. He wore a navy blue suit with a white shirt and a white carnation tipped in blue pinned on his lapel.

Attending the groom as best man was Jeffrey Capp, Brooks, a friend. Groomsmen were Tony Lundeen, brother of the groom, and Greg Hilgeman of Oklee, a brother-in-law. The ushers were Gary Johnsrud, Goodridge, a cousin of the bride, and Mark Lundeen, Spicer, a cousin of the groom. They wore navy blue suits with light blue shirts and white carnation boutonnieres, tipped in blue. Their dark blue ties were gifts from the groom.

Perry Lundeen, a brother of the groom, distributed the wedding programs.

The mother of the bride was attired in a pale blue floor-length gown with long sleeves. Her corsage was of yellow daisies with white ribbon accents. A similar corsage was worn by the groom's mother, who was attired in a long-sleeved gown of a pale blue floral print.

Honor guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. William Mostrom, Gonvick, Mr. and Mrs. Enock Johnsrud, Goodridge, grandparents of the bride; Mrs. Luella Lundeen, grandmother of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Gilmer Oftelie, Gully, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Johnsrud, Goodridge, godparents of the bride; and Mr. and Mrs. Erling Lundeen, Spicer, and Mr. and Mrs. Darrow Lundeen, Trail, godparents of the groom.

A reception for 300 guests was given by the bride's parents. Sandra Armstrong, cousin of the bride, registered the guests at Teresa Gehrke, Janell Bjerklie, Doreen Halvorson and Shari Lundeen served the punch. The gifts were carried by Dale and Jeff Lundeen, brothers of the groom.

Cheryl Nybo and Lana Ferry, cousins of the bride and groom, respectively, cut and served the four-tiered chocolate wedding cake, iced in white and blue with blue roses. White wedding bells in a lace arch topped the cake. On the candle-lit steps were replicas of the wedding party.

Presiding at the coffee service were Betty Mostrom, aunt of the bride, and Betty Hagen, aunt of the groom. Shirley Gross and Gelene Lundeen arranged the gifts. Norma Gross and Connie Lundeen pinned the flowers and Kevin Nybo, a cousin of the bride, distributed the personalized match books. Waitresses were Marla Lind, Gwen Johnsrud, Evonne Halvorson, Diane Holen and Lori Marquis. Assisting in the kitchen were Mrs. Robert Burstad, Mrs. Robert Johnsrud, Mrs. Gary B. Johnson, Mrs. Erling Dahlen, Mrs. Glenn Hofstad, Mrs. Allan Homme, Mrs. Clayton Johnsrud and Mrs. Leroy Johnsrud.

For traveling on the wedding trip along the North Shore Drive, the bride wore a black jumpsuit. The couple is now at home in Goodridge. The bride is a graduate of Goodridge high school and the groom is a graduate of the Oklee high school. He is employed by Arctic Enterprises, Inc.

Rhonda Jean Curtiss and DelRay Beito Vows Said

Miss Rhonda Jean Curtiss and DelRay Eldon Beito exchanged marriage vows on Saturday, December 2, at 3 p.m., at the United Lutheran church in Gatzke.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Curtiss of Middle River. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Beito, Strathcona.

Rev. Robert Amundson officiated at the double ring ceremony witnessed by approximately 350 relatives and friends. At the organ was Joni Thompson, a friend of the family. She played "Nadia's Theme," and the traditional wedding marches. Vocalists were the groom's sisters: Diane Klemetson, who sang "The Lord's Prayer," and Audrey Beito, who sang, "Evergreen". At the end of the ceremony, they joined in singing, "Walk Hand in Hand."

Two baskets of fresh carnations and roses graced the chancel lighted by pewter candelabra with cranberry tapers. Ivory ribbon bows marked the pews.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was attired in an ivory organza gown, styled in empire fashion with a high collar and long, full sleeves gathered into wide cuffs. Enhancing the bodice was an embroidered lace U-yoke, edged with a lace ruffle. Coordinating lace, edged her skirt which flowed into a cathedral length train. A matching lace headpiece with fingertip veil completed her ensemble. She carried a cascade of cranberry silk roses, accented with babies' breath.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was Jean Beito, Middle River, sister-in-law of the groom. Other attendants were Diane Klemetson, Thief River Falls, Audrey Beito, Strathcona, sisters of the groom; Pam Nelson and Geri Hodne of Middle River, sisters of the bride; and Margaret Hanson, Middle River, a friend of the couple. All wore cranberry colored, floor-length gowns featuring blouson bodices with ivory lace collars and long, raglan sleeves gathered at the wrists. Their headpieces were cranberry colored hats with matching netting. They carried bouquets of silk roses in mauve and cranberry with babies' breath. Their gold initialed pins were gifts from the bride.

Attired like the bride was her niece, Kerry Nelson, Middle River, who served as miniature bride. Serving as flower girls were the groom's nieces, Denise Beito, Badger, and Traci Klemetson, Thief River Falls. ~~Their~~ long-sleeved, floor-length, cranberry-colored gowns were styled with tie belts and front yokes trimmed with ivory lace.

The rings were carried by Corey Hodne, Middle River, a nephew of the bride. Like the men of the wedding party, he wore a gray tuxedo with black velvet lapels and a boutonniere of cranberry silk rose buds and babies' breath. His shirt, corresponding with the groom's, was in ivory. All the other attendants wore pink ruffled shirts.

Keith Charbonneau, a friend of the couple, was best man. Groomsmen were Toby McAdam, Marques Doppler, friends of the groom, Dan Beito, Middle River, a brother of the groom; Roger Nelson, a brother-in-law of the bride, and Wayne Klemetson, a brother-in-law of the groom. The ushers were Howard Hodney, Middle River, brother-in-law of the bride, and David Beito, a cousin of the groom.

The mother of the bride was attired in a pink qiana gown styled with a draped bodice. Her corsage was of silk mauve roses with babies' breath. A matching corsage complemented the aqua floor-length gown with sheer printed jacket worn by the mother of the groom.

Special guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Ray Curtiss, Middle River, grandparents of the bride; Mrs. Leora Osse, Middle River, grandmother of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Abrams, godparents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Don Osse, the groom's godparents; and Margaret Hanson, the bride's personal attendant.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a reception in the church parlors. Serving as reception hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Kenny Beito and Mr. and Mrs. Hjalmer Hanson. Charlene Keena, a cousin of the bride, registered the guests as Mr. and Mrs. Doug Martell, friends of the couple, served the punch.

Centering the serving table was a wedding cake creation featuring three two-tiered cakes joined by stairs with replicas of the bridal party on the steps. The center cake featured a flowing water fountain between tall Grecian pillars. Topping the cake were a miniature bride and groom. A wreath of mauve and cranberry roses surrounded the base. Between the pillars that supported the side cakes were white wedding bells filled with cranberry roses. Matching silk roses and babies breath filled the Grecian urns that graced the upper tiers. The cake, baked and decorated by Mary Chaplinski, was cut and served by Dorothy Vonderbecke, aunt of the bride, and Wilma Beito, aunt of the groom.

Pouring coffee were Dorothy Osse, aunt of the groom, and Debbie Deftwiler, cousin of the bride. Denise Beito and Traci Klemetson were in charge of distributing the groom's cake.

Waitresses were Diane Hanson, Dawn Scramstad, Julie Jesme, Darlene Osse, Shirley Beito, and Susie Wojciechowski. Becky and Ben Beito arranged the gifts.

Both the bride and groom are graduates of the Middle River high school. The bride is employed as computer operator at North Star Transport in Thief River Falls; and the groom is a self-employed carpeter in the Middle River community. The couple is at home in Middle River. Photo, Lund Photography, Roseau.

Fieldman For Congressman Pushes Service

names are the same, and Ray is kidded that he got the job so that the congressional office wouldn't need to print new stationery.

Actually, he isn't exactly sure how he did get the job. He was encouraged to make an application by Independent-Republican party people, sent in a resume of his qualifications, was interviewed and placed on the staff. The job has become more than it was projected to be at the time he applied, but Arneson feels the expansion has been good.

"Our field office staff and the congressman's staff in Washington really do try to help anyone who asks for help in our district," Arneson said. "Whenever possible we try to get the job done from our Moorhead office because it is quicker that way. And we don't concern ourselves with political affiliation of people who ask for help. As long as Rep. Stangeland was elected to serve the district, he feels he is obligated to all of the people in the district."

Development of the field staff is Congressman Stangeland's effort to stay in as close contact as possible with conditions, attitudes and concerns in the district. He counts on field staffers to keep him advised on local and area matters which could involve attention from the federal level.

"We have to focus on the federal issues, of course," Arneson said, "because that is the level where we can be most effective. But we want to be aware of local problems as well and often we can provide help which people on a local level don't even know is available."

Maintaining that contact with the people in the 10-county area causes Arneson to travel about 30,000 miles a year, plus putting in some time with the mobile van which the congressman operates throughout the district during warmer months. In addition to the monthly courthouse visits to the county seats in the 10 counties he serves, Arneson has begun a schedule of office hours in other communities to make it more convenient for people to meet with him. This afternoon, for instance, he has office hours in Badger.

Arneson is the first to admit that the fact he is single and that he has an understanding family at home makes his job possible. He farms with his father, Raymond Arneson, south of Halstad and during the busy spring and fall seasons juggles his schedule to permit spending a good deal of work time on the farm.

"Most of our demand for service is during the slack time," he says about the field representative job. "When we are busy with seeding and harvest, so are the other farmers of the district and the business people who serve them. When they have time to visit, we take the time to listen."

One of the bizarre cases Arneson had called to his attention involved a woman living in the district whose husband left her after nine years of marriage. He was relocated in a penitentiary in Washington through cross-checking of fingerprints and was found to have been married under an assumed name. Out of prison for a short time he disappeared and for seven years had made no social security payments. The woman assumed he was dead but the social security administration wanted proof of death before making child support payments.

"The woman said the social security people should prove he was alive and the social security people said she should prove he was not," Arneson said. "I turned that one over to our Washington staff and I don't know if it will ever be resolved," he said.

"If I didn't like to meet people and to do what I can to help them with their problems I guess I would be in the wrong job," he said. "Most of what I do involves other people's problems. And while I talk politics if that's what someone wants to talk about, I usually try to avoid it as a general rule. Arlan said he intended to take the Seventh district's message to Washington rather than bringing Washington's message to the Seventh district."

Arneson said the best way for people in this area to inquire about something is to write a letter to Rep. Arlan Stangeland, 403 Center Avenue, Fourth Floor, Moorhead, MN. 56560. "Writing a letter usually causes a person to be specific and results in fewer misinterpretations of needs or requests," Arneson noted. "It enables us to respond better and therefore be of greater service to the individual or group involved."

Field service for a congressman wasn't the kind of field work Ray had in mind when he sandwiched academics between farm work periods in spending eight years to earn a BS degree in agricultural economics from the University of Minnesota in St. Paul. And driving 205 miles from Halstad to Baudette in January and February is not without its hazards. But the opportunity to be involved and the challenge of helping ordinary people make government work for them has its rewards.

"Sometimes there's an awful lot of satisfaction in this job," Arneson smiles. "It makes the frustrations a lot less frustrating."

Budget Change For AVTI Is OK'd By Board

addition was set for October 11 — the 30th anniversary of the designation of an AVTI for Thief River Falls by the state board of education.

Bid of $2,600 from Leonard Thompson was accepted for the house located at 209 State av. N. Two other bids received were for $611 and $1,550.

New rate of $2 per day for drivers education cars supplied by members of the Pennington county auto dealers association was approved, an increase from the previous $1.50 per day rate. The dealers association pointed out the increase requested was necessary due to inflation and primarily the floor plan interest rate which has increased from seven per cent when the $1.50 rate was started to the present rate of 13 per cent.

The board endorsed participation by Lincoln high school in a statewide sportsmanship contest sponsored by the Minnesota state high school league. By resolution the board voted to ". . .support the teams, coaches, cheerleaders, fans and student body in their accepting this challenge to convey to visiting teams and officials the great pride the Thief River Falls community has in its hospitality."

Permission was granted to Northland community college student association to use the Lincoln auditorium free of charge for a concert to be presented January 29 at 7 p.m.

He was preceded in death by one son and two brothers.

One reason why we apply manure back to soil is to return needed nutrients to the soil. For optimum nutrient value, one should incorporate the manure as soon as the manure has been spread so that the nutrients do not escape into the atmosphere.

NUTRITION LABELING

What You Need To Know

If you have difficulty understanding nutrition labeling, you're not alone. A recent Food and Drug Administration (FDA) survey found that fewer than a third of the country's food shoppers actually know how to read labels and use the information they find there.

What nutrition information should you expect to find on a label? Well, nutrition labeling should contain the amounts of calories, protein, carbohydrate, fat, vitamins and minerals per serving.

Most people seem to understand the listing of carbohydrate, fat, and calories. However, a source of confusion appears to be the section containing the percent of United States Recommended Dietary Allowance (U.S. RDA) for vitamins, minerals, and protein. To help you understand the U.S. RDA, here are a few facts you should know:

- The U.S. RDA is defined as the daily amount of vitamins, minerals, and protein established by the FDA as essential for maintaining good nutrition.
- There are U.S. RDA's for four categories of people: adults and children 4 or more years of age, infants, children under 4, and pregnant and lactating women.
- The U.S. RDA's stated on a particular package depend upon which of the above population groups the food is intended for.

Because of consumer confusion, the FDA is planning to review the contents of nutrition labels. The most controversial aspect will be whether to include more information—or less. Some consumer advocates feel nutrition labels should list only calories, fat, and cholesterol. Others insist that these labels should be lengthened to include all factors contributing to good nutrition.

Food manufacturers will request and utilize consumer ideas for nutrition labeling. These ideas will then be thoroughly tested for consumer understanding.

Marshall Co. History Society Plans Contests

Marshall County Central high school library in Newfolden was the site for last week's meeting of the Marshall county historical society. Plans were announced for two county-wide contests to be held soon. Neil Mattson, president, announced a photography contest with all entries being utilized for display at the county fair (details will be forthcoming) and for winning entries to be reproduced on post cards. Nancy Solum, director, discussed plans for a naming contest for the historical recreation of a turn-of-the-century village on the county fairgrounds.

Long range planning for the fairgrounds historical site was discussed by Mark Carlson, a member of the board of governors. President Mattson named Don Johnson, Nelder Broten and Solum to serve with Carlson in developing the area adjacent to the newly constructed historical visitor center situated next to the turn-of-the century log cabin, school and church. Carlson, Solum and Dennis Hjelle also serve on a committee involved with moving the Soo Line depot in Warren to the historical village complex on the fairgrounds.

New board members Don Johnson of Alvarado, Kent Broten and Joyce Kron of Viking were welcomed into the historical society. (Eighteen-year-old Kent Broten, elected to replace Ken Borowicz, is the youngest board member ever elected to serve on the historical society.) Raynard Huglen represented the Folden church committee in making an offer to deed over the original church site (located five miles southeast of Newfolden) to the historical society.

A progress report was given on construction of the visitor center, detailing the wood and brick materials being used on the eight store units of the 80x160 foot structure.

A program relating to the centennial birthday of Marshall county at the county fair was described. One of the features of a pageant planned for July 22 at the fair would include an antique agricultural machinery parade organized by the county historical society working in conjunction with an ad-hoc committee. The county historical society's package celebrating the county's centennial has been planned to include the role of agriculture in the pageant, dedication of the new visitor center, organizing an old-time melodrama to be presented in a new mini-threatre, and the historical photography contest added to the premium list. Preliminary plans were also made for the mini-fair (within the big Marshall county fair) known as the old time settlers fair, a festival of arts and crafts from the past.

Labor Officials Simplify OSHA Regulations

Secretary of labor, Ray Marshall and assistant secretary Eula Bingham jointly have announced another step in the administration's program to simplify regulations and eliminate unneeded rules.

Following is the complete text of Marshall's statement issued at the press conference held at the U.S. labor department:

— *The action we are an*nouncing in today's press conference marks another step in our effort to improve worker health and safety.

The logic behind our actions is to apply basic common sense to the administration of OSHA so that we can eliminate many bureaucratic practices that confuse employers without providing any additional health and safety protections for workers.

We have learned that cumbersome and complicated rules do not protect anyone. For OSHA regulations to be effective, they must be clear, concise, consistent, simple, tough and enforceable.

Back in May of 1977, Dr. Bingham and I announced a new approach to OSHA aimed at simplifying government regulations and going after serious workplace hazards. We have made signigicant progress since then. We have completed our standards deletion project which eliminated over 900 so-called "nit-picking" standards.

Today's effort represents a new stage in our battle to clarify and simplify the OSHA rule book. The OSHA rules regarding fire protection are the starting point for our first major rewrite and simplification of the remaining sections of our safety standards.

Our approach to the revision of the fire protection rules is two-fold. First, we recognize the obvious fact that the best protection is for workers to get away from the scene of the fire as quickly as possible. Second, many of the existing rules relate mainly to property protection rather than worker safety.

This proposal would eliminate the need for employers to comply with some 2,400 consensus standards that will now only be used for nonmandatory guidance. Nothing in this proposal weakens the protections available to workers. All we have done is to make our rules clearer, simpler and more enforceable.

As always, we take particular pride when we can reduce the volume of regulatory prose an employer must read to understand his responsibilities in this area. Up to now, the OSHA rulebook was written like a legal brief, filled with references to the the voluntary guidelines of groups like the national fire protection association. By eliminating these citations and replacing them with performance-based standards, we have taken another step toward clarifying OSHA's requirements.

For example, we have replaced 169 pages of complicated wording on automatic sprinkler systems with just one page in the federal register. Equally dramatic reductions in regulations cover such topics as portable fire extinguishers and standpipe and hose systems.

I just want to close by commending Dr. Bingham for continuing to fight the good fight for intelligent regulations based on common sense.

Plummer Girl Is Corpsman Of The Month

"Corpsman of the Month" is the title given recently to HN Helen M. Helley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Helley of Plummer, at the naval regional medical center in San Diego, Calif. In June of last year she was selected senior corpsman of Ward 26-4D.

A letter of appreciation stated: "Mature and conscientious, you demonstrated growing leadership abilities. Your participation in the orientation of newly assigned corpsmen and willingness to perform direct patient care in addition to your senior corpsman duties exemplifies the enthusiasm and efficiency you bring to your duties.

"Your loyalty, devotion to duty and professional pride reflect great credit upon you and makes you an asset to the navy as a member of the health care team." Helen is one of the twin daughters of retired LCdr. and Mrs. John Helley.

Fridley Crime Prevention Test Works

Crime prevention experiment based on neighbors looking out for their neighbors has shown its worth in five months of operation in Fridley, a suburban community north of Minneapolis.

Crime decreased dramatically after residents, with police help, took on the responsibility of watching for suspicious activity in their neighborhood, marked valuable property and upgraded home security.

Crime prevention experiment covers the Benjamin-Briardale neighborhood, an area of 104 homes out of Fridley's 10,000 residences, said Tim Turnbull, crime prevention coordinator.

Neighborhood is new and home values range from $60,000 to $100,000. "These are high value targets for burglars," he said. "Most have color televisions, hi-fi systems and a wide variety of appliances and valuable tools."

Benjamin-Briardale residents have suffered from a much higher crime rate than Fridley as a whole. Annually, burglars struck one out of every 10 houses in the neighbrohood. Fridley-wide average showed a comparative burglary rate of one out of 32 homes during a year.

"Crime prevention program has proved very successful," said Julie Fling, police technician. "There have been no successful burglaries in the area since August, a month after we began organizing the neighborhood."

"There's also been a drastic reduction in vandalism and theft from yards. These are just petty now, such as teenagers throwing eggs at a friend's house or stealing of bicycles left carelessly in a yard," she said.

Significant drop in crime in Benjamin-Briardale is no fluke, said Turnbull. Experimental area is set within a larger neighborhood and this surrounding area still continues to have the same high crime problems as before."

"Fridley program is very valuable to show that effective methods are available today for reducing crime," said Charles Rix, coordinator of Minnesota crime watch, part of the state department of public safety.

"Success of this program should convince other homeowners that home security surveys, Operation Identification and block watch groups can minimize crime, especially residential burglaries," he said.

Crime watch, started in 1973, has concentrated on reducing property crime, mainly through operation identification which shows how to mark property with permanent I.D. numbers that are registered with local police. A marked item found in someone else's possession is evidence for conviction, said Rix.

Benjamin-Briardale neighborhood was perfect for the crime prevention experiment because people were highly motivated, said Turnbull. After 16 cases of burglary and vandalism in a two-week period in July, residents were really fed up and wanted police help.

The area, like most suburban districts, was very fragmented and lacked any neighborhood identity. One first step was to get residents acquainted with others who live in the neighborhood.

Turnbull and Fling organized "block watch" clubs of 14 to 30 families apiece. Each club has an elected or volunteer captain.

"This is a self-help program. Police are just tools to help the block watch groups. But we teach residents how to approach the police to get the best results," said Turnbull.

"We show residents how to watch for suspicious persons and vehicles and how to describe suspects to police. We get people to mark their property with idenfifying numbers and do a home security survey that suggests improvements to make homes more burglary-resistent.

Basic strategy is "to eliminate the opportunities for crime, so the neighborhood becomes an unpleasant environment for vandals and burglars," he said. "If the criminal is ignorant enough to operate in these areas, chances are increased that he will be caught.

PROMOTIONAL ACTIVITIES for the Minnesota American Dairy association for 1979 were outlined by George Johnson of the state office at the annual Region One meeting held Tuesday at the Best Western Inn in Thief River Falls. Attending the meeting were delegates and alternates from the 11 counties comprising Minnesota ADA Region One.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

This letter is actually only to people who are interested in sports and especially hockey in Thief River Falls. We are curious as to why a town the size of Thief River Falls only has an amateur hockey association for grade and junior high school boys to participate in? Why isn't there a hockey program in the grade and junior high school system so that every boy who desires to play hockey may have a chance? They do for basketball.

We realize, from experience, that you must be a "good" hockey player to make it in the amateur association, but what about the fellows who are tired of sitting on the bench in the A.A., but enjoy playing hockey for the fun of it (even though they aren't a natural-born hockey player); or the ones whose parents can't afford or chose not to afford making weekend hockey trips with their grade school child, or for the boy who is tired of playing hockey nearly all of every weekend during the winter months (and by the time he's a 10th grader he's "tired of playing hockey because I've already played for 10 years, played hockey everywhere and I'm tired of it now"); or for the boy who didn't get chosen to play on the amateur teams? Doesn't it seem fair that every boy should have a chance?

Maybe there are boys in Thief River Falls who, with some practice and guidance and a little growing up, could eventually be "good" hockey players without all the pressure of those early years playing on the amateur teams. We realize it would take some work and organization to have an in-house hockey program between schools in Thief River Falls in the grade and junior high level as they do in basketball or between sponsored teams. We also realize it works in other towns where hockey is just as good and better than here.

We also personally feel it doesn't hurt any potential hockey player to learn to skate well before he considers playing hockey. We don't have the answers, but we sure are curious; however, we do know it couldn't possibly hurt the hockey we already have here. Besides, it may surprise some to see there really is a lot more talent in this area than realized or hoped for and that there still are some boys out there who like to play hockey "just for the fun of it." But who cares??

Sincerely,
Mr. & Mrs. Paul Tangquist

P.S. Who says that to play high school hockey you have to have played amateur hockey?

MN Coalition On Battered Women To Meet

Minnesota state coalition on battered women will hold a 10 a.m. meeting in St. Paul January 13 at 584 Portland Avenue. The purposes of the coalition are to work toward expanding services and programs for battered women, to serve as a facilitator of communications among groups working on the issue, and to work toward eliminating battering. While the primary focus at this time will be on legislation and expanding state funding of battered women's programs, the coalition will continually redefine its tasks to meet the overall goals.

Groups wishing to join must have two or more members, be working in or developing programs and services for battered women, and have non-sexist, non-racist philosophies. The co-ordinator for this area is Doris Heroff of St. Hilaire and details concerning the coalition may be obtained from her. This area now has only two community-based organizations working on the problem of adult abuse. They are Women's Resource Center in Crookston and the Agassiz Chapter of the National Organization for Women. Other groups are encouraged to form and join the coalition so that victims from this largely rural and isolated area can be better served. Any questions regarding the coalition or the groups which are serving this area can be obtained from Doris Heroff at 964-5438.

Girls Outshine Boys On Horse Show Circuit

Girls dominate horse show events and win more ribbons than young boys in almost every competitive riding event.

Margo Shanley, Galesburg, Mich., a horse show judge, writer, rider and mother of riding sons, explains why boys are the minority group in horse show competition.

"It all starts with the difference in sex," she writes. Shanley notes that girls are taught to be "motherly." When a girl first gets her hands on a horse, she is apt to think, "Here is a very big baby doll to love and care for."

Little girls, Shanley states, are convinced that their horse thrives on an unlimited amount of tender loving care.

The young boy, on the other hand, sees the horse as something that can take him someplace — preferably fast.

He will not spend the time grooming and caring for the horse that his female peer will. According to Shanley, the boy might be willing to give the horse as much care as he does his bicycle. That is, he might clean off the dirt and keep it out of the rain.

Shanley says that the boys she sees competing in horse shows are usually there because of one of three reasons:

(1) He has a horse loving mother who wants him to share her interest;

(2) He has sisters who ride and he is encouraged to ride with the whole family; or

(3) Both of his parents are horsemen and expect him to be the same.

Shanley says parents can help the young boy overcome the feeling of being out of place at the horse shows which are dominated by confident and neat little girls.

Start the boy young, she says, with a suitable horse and give him lots of encouragement. Try to teach him to enjoy the horse. Don't force too much of the cleaning and concentrated training on him.

Properly encouraged from an early age, she says, the boy may become an advanced or even a professional horseman. He will enjoy the pleasure of having succeeded at one of the most respected and demanding of sports.

Russet Potato Diversion Is Considered

Executive committee of the Red River Valley potato growers association has decided to apply for the valley's share of a national russet potato diversion program. . .and, at the same time, poll its members on the question of applying for a local diversion program on red and white variety of potatoes.

Feeling of the executive committee was that the diversion of russets from the Red River Valley would not be substantial enough to stabilize the market in this area. Russet potatoes constitute 20 per cent of the total potato production in the Red River Valley, while the red and white varieties total 80 per cent. Association office has mailed out a ballot to all member growers on the question of whether to apply for local diversion or not.

It is believed the valley would qualify for the program because of a combination of over-production and the lack of available transportation. With the shipping season well underway, it is imperative that these ballots be returned immediately. All ballots should be in by January 6, so they can be tabulated on January 8. The procedure of application for diversion is expected to take a minimum of six weeks. After application the proposal is either accepted or rejected by U.S.D.A.

National russet diversion program was initiated by the potato growers of Idaho and is applicable to five western states. All other states wishing to comply with the program must file with their state department of agriculture. This national program is designed to divert nine million hundred weight of russet type potatoes off the market and into a cattle feed program. The price to the grower will be $2 per hundred weight for the first 30 days and $1.75 per hundred for the second 30 days.

Growers wishing to apply for the program must apply at the county office of the Agricultural Stabilization Conservation service (A.S.C.S.). Any questions regarding the program can be directed to that office. Each state's quota of potatoes eligible for diversion will be determined by the percentage of total U.S. production in that state. The U.S. crop reporting service division of the statistal reporting service (S.R.S.) will supply the figures.

Several mechanisms are available to finance a potato diversion program using Section 32 funds derived from U.S. customs revenues. These funds are earmarked for use in buying up commodities when over-production threatens to disrupt prices. Funds for the program would not come from tax receipts. Section 32 money is derived from import duties on automobiles, cameras and other imported items. Some 30 per cent of this money is earmarked for commodity purchases through U.S.D.A. The fund contains more than $600 million, and U.S.D.A. officials said the potato diversion could use $25 million of that money.

A diviersion program already is in effect in Maine, where poor quality potatoes in 27 townships have been diverted for livestock feeding. These purchases were made to bolster prices to producers. The Maine potato diversion could be worth $10 million to growers in that area. It began on November 20 after drought led to production of small, cracked potatoes in some districts.

The concept of potato diversion is a controversial subject. Many growers oppose the idea because they don't want the federal government to interfere with their operations. Some feel if growers are bailed out by the federal government this year, they will over-produce again next year and the problem will get worse. On the other hand, many go along with the program because it supplies a market for the spuds that would probably be dumped this year and also retruns the grower revenue for that portion of the crop.

The Red River Valley received a potato diversion program in 1968 from U.S.D.A. In 1972, growers filed for a program, but because it was so late in the season, the proposal was dropped.

A GUEST EDITORIAL

Is the national pocketbook headed for intensive care?

Many people are concerned that it might be. We spend more than $163 billion on health care each year, an average of $737 for each American more than we spend on clothing or recreation. Health care is now our second largest industry (after defense) and it's growing faster than any other.

High technology, improved facilities, and general advancement of the science and art of healing have unquestionably meant better health care for Americans. Combined with inflationary pressure, it has also meant a staggering bill for services, but few are prepared to recommend anything but an all-out and continuing program of health care for everyone.

Is there any hope of cutting this ever-increasing tab for health without cutting the quality and amount of service?

"Yes," says a new nationwide survey by one of the country's top pulse-takers, Louis Harris, sponsored by a major source of health insurance, Pacific Mutual: "We need to change the focus of the current debate on national health care to give greater importance to good health maintenance."

The survey found a strong consensus in favor of shifting health-care emphasis from cure to prevention—an area of the science that is now receiving only one to three per cent of the total expenditure and is the least costly form of care.

"A concentrated national focus on preventive health maintenance would have the overwhelming support of the public, business, and labor," the survey notes. "Such a consensus is clearly absent in the divisive and prolonged debate over the specific design, provisions, or cost of proposed legislation involving a national health care system."

State To Help "Economically Disadvantaged"

Socially and economically disadvantaged business owners will receive special assistance from the state of Minnesota through two recent actions taken by Governor Rudy Perpich and the Minnesota department of economic development.

Perpich issued an executive order establishing a governor's council on equal business opportunity and ordered the heads of all state agencies to develop plans to insure purchasing and contract opportunities for businesses owned by socially and economically disadvantaged persons.

In addition, the department of economic development has applied for and received preliminary approval from the federal economic development administration for a $150,000 grant to create an equal business opportunity division within the department.

Small business owners were given special assistance by the legislature in 1975 when it passed the set aside law. The law provides a program whereby 10 per cent of all requisitions for state purchases must be set aside so that small businesses in Minnesota may bid on them before the process opens for general bidding. Additionally, 10 per cent of that 10 per cent, or one per cent of total state requisitions, is set aside for small businesses owned by persons who are socially or econonmically disadvantaged.

The law also requires that assistance be provided to persons who have difficulty performing on awards. The commissioner of the department of economic development was given the responsibility to promote, identify small businesses and encourage participation in the state's set aside program.

"The department has given new priority to the promotion of equal business opportunity and the set aside program. This grant will enable the department to develop fully its program and better serve those in the small business sector," said acting commissioner Mark Dayton.

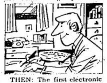
Services provided by the equal business opportunity division will include counseling and referral regarding procuedures for establishing corporations, partnerships and sole proprietorships; business and financial management techniques; identifying sources of and methods of securing capital; the value of and procedures involved in marketing and advertising; bonding and licensing information; availability of contracts and bidding procedures; and other business related information.

The new governor's council on equal business opportunity will consist of the commissioners of administration, economic development, human rights, transportation, economic security, education and the executive director of the Minnesota housing finance agency. The council will report directly to the governor on its activities. It will devise and sponsor purchasing related taining courses, collect and distribute information to other government agecnies and promote a general awareness of programs to assist businesses owned by socially and economically disadvantaged persons.

According to the department of economic development, Chapter 383 on the set aside law defines socially and economically disadvatnaged persons as those who have been deprived of the opportunity to develop and maintain a competitive position in the economy because of social or economic disadvantage. This disadvantage may arise from cultural, social or economic circumstances or background, physical location if the person resides or is employed in an area declared as a labor surplus area by the United States department of commerce, or other similar cause.

THEN and NOW

While only a relatively recent invention, computers have come a long way.



THEN: The first electronic computer was completed in 1946. Called the Electronic Numerical Integrator and Computer (ENIAC) it was designed and built under the direction of J. Presper Eckert, Jr. and John W. Mauchly of the Moore School of Electrical Engineering of the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia. It was housed in a room 30 feet by 50 feet, contained approximately 18,000 vacuum tubes and required 130 kilowatts per hour.

NOW: Computers today are much smaller and much more sophisticated. Even many small businessmen find them just about indispensable. One top quality, desk-top microcomputer, Radio Shack's TRS-80, helps businessmen save time spent on paperwork. The system can make out the payroll, handle general ledger accounts, record accounts receivable and control inventory.

Former Resident Featured In Forum

FORMER RESIDENT of the Thief River Falls area, Thordis Swensgaard, has been involved in humanitarian efforts in the Fargo, N.D., area for many years. The above photo for a Fargo Forum article was taken by Bruce Crummy of the Forum staff.

(Editor's Note: Thordis Swensgaard, youngest sister of Charles Svendsgaard and Mrs. Walter (Dagney) Lendobeja of Thief River Falls, was featured recently in an article by Chet Gerbert in the Fargo Forum. She graduated from Lincoln high school in the early 1920's and shortly thereafter moved to Fargo, N.D., where she has since resided. Gerbert's feature article follows:)

When she gets around to sending the Cass County Bar Association a bill for her services, Thordis Swensgaard of Fargo knows the lawyers will pay up.

Neither she nor the association officers remember when she last billed them for writing and mailing their monthly meeting notices.

A similar question arose once before, says Tom Wold of Fargo, president of the bar group. That was 8 or 10 years ago, and it finally was determined that Thordis hadn't sent a bill for several years.

Urged to check her records, Miss Swensgaard eventually came up with a figure of about $500 owed.

They paid without cross-examining the claim.

Thordis has only been doing the job for them and others for 50 years come next Jan. 1.

Now she says "in a couple of weeks" she might get around to figuring how much the current bill is. "I can't get it ready as fast as the weekend is coming," she says, and adds:

"Well, you see that's one of the things about me. I don't get bills out very fast. But most people pay me anyway. It runs for four or five years at a time."

She says she becomes so immersed sometimes with all of her interests that sending statements and even paying her own bills get delayed.

The bar association will have Miss Swensgaard sitting as a guest at its noon meeting today in the Town House Motor Hotel.

She won't be giving the lawyers an inkling about her bill, but they will let know their appreciation for a job well done over the years. In addition to sincere thanks, they will give her a plaque — and then pay her bill — when it comes.

The luncheon will be a different experience in several ways for Thordis.

Eating out isn't a novelty for her. She does it every day. "I never learned to cook," she says matter-of-factly in explaining that she eats breakfast in the cafeteria at St. John's Hospital.

But, more than that, Thordis Swensgaard isn't an organization person. She's in the vanishing breed of individualists who prefer to do their thing in the background, away from the organizational plan, at their own speed and intensity.

Also, she describes herself as "not one to seek personal recognition."

So, who is this apparently carefree owner of a 50-year-old business, a free spirit who, as she nears 73, says she's far from ready for retirement? That is, she's not ready at least until getting closer to seeing a long-unrealized goal of having a full-fledged animal shelter in Fargo-Moorhead for the discarded, the abandoned, the stray cats and dogs, many of which end up at her home until she can find a permanent home for them.

Visits with her quickly make one aware of characteristics that few persons possess.

Foremost, she has a deep, sincere love for people, especially the handicapped. Having been handicapped herself, she knows the loneliness and problems that come.

She carries that concern over to animals and birds of all kinds.

Example: Monday afternoon. She is driving downtown from her home at 1205 3rd Ave. S. She spots an injured pigeon on the street. Rescuing the bird from almost certain death in the traffic lane, she takes it home to recover in a cage. The pen is necessary because she has 14 cats that once were unwanted.

She shares that kind of concern for people.

Several years ago she had $2,500 put aside to buy a new car to replace a beat-up foreign station wagon that still runs, in good weather, but largely on reputation only.

About the time she was ready to look in earnest at available new cars, she heard about some Concordia College students having a tough time making their tuition payments. She gave her car money to the college, asking that it be distributed among needy students.

Then she saved another $100 and bought a rusted clunk of a pickup truck that continues to be a second, and reliable, vehicle for her.

"I've given away a lot of the money I've made," says Thordis Swensgaard.

"That was a vow I made to God if I could make my own living," she explains. "That I would keep enough to live on but I would, with charity and church and whatever, where I felt it was needed, I would try to provide it."

She started life on Dec. 12, 1905, on a farm 12 miles out of Thief River Falls, Minn.

Hers was a sickly childhood. She had bronchial asthma, a touch of polio and a spinal injury — all of which made it impossible for her to run and play or attend school, so her sisters brought home school lessons for her. She graduated with honors from Lincoln High School in Thief River Falls.

She learned to make the best of her handicaps. Usually left home by her family "because I would wheeze so loudly it disturbed everybody," she mastered crocheting by age 9. She soon was making women's corset covers, then called camisoles and slip tops today, for 35 cents each and crocheted petticoat edgings for 25 cents each.

With $3.50 saved, she ordered an English-language Bible from a Sears catalog and became an ardent reader at age 11. Her mother had a Norwegian Bible, but she couldn't understand it.

She read about the wisdom of Solomon and asked her mother if she asked God to grant her a wish, would God do so, and her mother said He would if she would have the faith that He would.

Thordis said she asked God that He would never let her hate anyone ("That has always been granted me.") and, as a second choice, would He, when she became of age, help her to earn her own living so she wouldn't have to depend on anyone.

Coming to Fargo at age 19 and with $2 in her pocket, Thordis registered at Interstate Business College, intending to use what was left of a sister's tuition. Three days into the term she was sent on temporary assignment to the Pierce Co., a Fargo print shop still on 1st Avenue North.

Put to work in the mailing room, she was selected nine days later over 10 other girls to be the department supervisor. The job lasted four years, until she decided to attend Concordia.

Before leaving, she told the late Joseph A. Pierce she was going to start a little mailing bureau of her own "because what little an individual like me could do couldn't hurt them very much. And Mr. Pierce was very happy for me. He said 'You go right ahead.'"

Jan. 1, 1929 was the start of the letter service that brought her into contact with the Cass County Bar Association, and today's luncheon meeting.

A psychology class assignment to try to find a job in the economically troubled summer of 1929 became the start of Swensgaard Employment Service, which she sold two years ago.

While others in the class, including the daughters of the college dean and another business school operator, reported no success at finding jobs, Thordis came back to class with seven job offers.

"So then I decided I would have to start an employment office to help students get work. That's how I started my employment agency," she says.

Later she added regular printing equipment to her shop and set type for a few years along with running her letter and employment services.

That wasn't enough, so she took on being the night and holiday Western Union office. A telephone answering service was added, reaching a maximum of about 50 clients, including two clinics in Fargo.

Miss Swensgaard handled most of the Western Union night work herself "because we had to take those messages and they had to be right, and we even had foreign money orders to write out."

She also helped organize the Realtors Multiple Listing Service, which today continues to use codes and forms she devised for the listing of properties for sale.

Those are selected highlights of her professional life.

She prefers to talk about helping others. Such as teaching asthmatics how to breathe. Or taking in two boys and girls who made it through high school "but parents and teachers alike had given them up as no good."

She likes to remember the six students a year she took in for several years running and worked with because of the challenge to prove a conviction:

"I don't think there is anyone that God ever allowed to be born that cannot be maneuvered into something, into something that you can work with and give them something they can learn."

She tells of the joys coming from a couple of girls she worked with on typing and shorthand. "They worked up to be office managers, and then hired people from me. That was the plum, the reward."

Her conversation keeps coming back to her pet goal, the hoped-for animal shelter. She has contributed several thousand dollars since her first $1,000 donation to the Fargo Humane Society to start the project idea off in 1967.

Her idea is to start a fund for a building "and, if by the time I get enough money for everything, if the society can take care of it, fine. But, until then, I will handle it on my own. Then I don't have to be under the board of directors telling me you gotta do this and you gotta do that.

"When I get an idea, I gotta go run and do it right then and there. Because if you wait all that time, by the time you get ready to do it, your enthusiasm is half gone."

That's Thordis Swensgaard, the individualist and the non-organizational woman.

FORMER MAYOR HARRY SIMMONS was in office during the time Thief River Falls was preparing for the beginning of scheduled passenger air and mail service. It is his letter of endorsement that forwards a 35-page document prepared in 1950 to convince the civil aeronautics board (CAB) that they should approve an application by the city for a franchise and operating permit for air service. Simons says he has enjoyed "seeing what has been accomplished at the airport since the early 1950's: the extension of the runways, the new facilities." Unless a new airline deregulation bill is properly implemented Simons may witness in the coming years withdrawal of certificated carrier service from the local airport.

Mike Barle is probably the best-known banker in Coleraine. That's because Mike Barle also coaches a Greenway high school hockey team that ranks among the state's best. The first-year head coach will bring his highly-regarded Raiders to Thief River Falls Saturday for a 7:30 p.m. game against the Prowlers.

Barle moved up from the Bantam ranks, where he won a state title in 1977, to become Greenway head coach following the resignation of Paul Rygh at the end of the 1977-78 season. Despite a 15-6 record that ranked among the best in the school's history, Rygh and the community found themselves frustrated at not landing a berth in the state tournament where the Raiders were regular visitors from 1966 through 1970. But they haven't returned since. Current Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand served as an assistant under Rygh before becoming coach of the Prowlers in the 1976-77 season.

"I'm not surprised at our success," said Barle. "As Wendell Grand knows, Greenway has always had a lot of talent." And apparently the coaching change has that talent playing inspired hockey. "The kids have had a terrific attitude," reported Barle. "It's not that I've done such a fantastic job, but it was something different for them. It's like they said, hey, let's give this guy a chance and see what he can do. We've been on a honeymoon so far."

Barle, who said he had the "utmost respect for Rygh," felt the former coach fell into a situation where, "All of a sudden the caliber of hockey you needed to play to reach the state tournament moved up two rungs. When Greenway fielded state tournament teams, "People came to expect perfection," he explained. In recent years, though, most of the hockey perfection in the Iron Range Conference has been shown by Grand Rapids, an intense neighboring rival.

Miscellaneous

+Warroad Lakers will play the St. Paul Parkers in a men's senior amateur hockey game in the Thief River Falls sports arena Sun., Feb. 4 at 4 p.m. The game, sponsored by the Thief River Falls amateur hockey association, will feature former Lincoln high school hockey standouts Tom Goddard, one of the top performers for the Lakers, and Marv Jorde, player-coach of the Parkers. Advance sale tickets, priced at $2 for adults and $1 for students, will be on sale at the arena ticket window during Saturday's Thief River Falls vs. Greenway-Coleraine hockey game.

+Ron Falenschek, a 6-10 center, scored 18 points, pulled down 11 rebounds and blocked 10 shots Saturday to lead Brainerd to a 52-40 high school basketball win over Bemidji. The decision ended an 11-game Bemidji winning streak against Brainerd.

+Fergus Falls' 3-0 Section 8 high school hockey loss at Roseau Friday was the Otters' first shutout loss since the 1974-75 season. Roseau scored three second period goals, two on the power play, in the rematch of the 1978 Section 8 tournament championship game won by the Rams 8-1. It was the first regular season meeting ever between the two teams. "We wanted to give Roseau a good game so we could keep them on our schedule for next year," commented Fergus Falls coach Wayne Horgen. "We were able to skate with Roseau, but we failed to put any real pressure on their goalie." Fergus Falls netminder Mark Hedstrom recorded 37 saves while Jim Pelowski of Roseau earned a 25-save shutout. Roseau's Aaron Broten returned from Europe in time to play, but failed to score a point. He was the leading scorer on the United States team that finished with a 2-3 record in the recent world junior games in Sweden.

+Crookston high school basketball coach Marshall Olson said, "It was bad scheduling on my part," after his Pirates absorbed an 84-57 drubbing at the hands of Moorhead Friday. It was the first game in three weeks for the Pirates. "We were just klutzy," he told Lori Mateer of the Crookston Times. "You can't come off a three-week break and expect to click like you were before."

+Aitkin high school basketball coach Ron Meyer, after watching 6-5 Wadena center Brad Willis score 29 points and pull down 10 rebounds in a 67-51 win by the Indians over the Gobblers, said, "It's almost impossible to stop Willis inside." Wadena coach Lowell Roisum agreed. "Brad played one of his best games ever, offensively and defensively for us," he said. Wadena's strong cagers will visit Thief River Falls Fri., Jan. 26.

Strong Greenway Hockey Squad Here Saturday

How do you beat a hockey team that has good quickness, excellent defensemen and a superb goaltender?

"That's a good question," said Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand whose Prowlers host a Greenway-Coleraine team Saturday at 7:30 p.m. that has all those qualities, according to Mike Barle, coach of the Raiders.

"With those qualifications, they must be something," quipped Grand who served as an assistant coach at Greenway before moving to Thief River Falls three years ago. "I know every kid on their team. They have good personnel," he confirmed.

Strength of the Greenway club rests with its veteran defensemen. "We have an excellent defensive corps," said Barle. That includes three-year starters Gino Peluso and Don Hanson and sophomore Mike Guentzel, a regular at the blueline as a freshman. Peluso is outstanding, an offensive defenseman.

That defense plays in front of senior goalie Rick Troumbly who has asserted himself following the ballyhooed move of standout netminder Jon Casey to rival Grand Rapids. "Rick has done a really fantastic job," stressed Barle. "I can't imagine anyone playing better."

Barle said his team has "very good quickness," that, combined with the ability to "really move the puck well," makes the Greenway offense a real threat.

Most of the offensive load is carried by an all-senior first line that features Jim Lawson at center and Scott Johnson and Dale Wright, a 190-pounder, on the wings.

It'll be the first varsity meeting between Thief River Falls and Greenway since a 1968 Region 3 playoff game between the Region 8 and Region 7 runner-up teams for a state tournament berth. Barle was a member of that Coleraine squad that beat the Prowlers 4-1 en route to a state tournament title. However, Pee-Wee and Bantam teams from the two communities have met frequently over the years.

"If we play well, we'll play a similar style that they play," mentioned Grand.

Prowlers Skate Past East Grand Forks 3-1

A major Section 8 high school hockey win was notched by Thief River Falls Tuesday as the Prowlers skated past East Grand Forks 3-1 to stretch their modest winning streak to three games. The Prowlers are 5-2 for the year.

"We skated well," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "We played well defensively, and that includes everybody, not just defensemen. We eliminated the big mistakes."

Thief River Falls started with a 2-0 first period lead. Jim Thompson, on assists from Jeff Ulrich and Paul Drees, opened the scoring at 6:21. It became 2-0 when Bob Fitzgerald, on assists from Brian Ranum and Tom Bjorkman, scored at 9:55.

Scott Sabo became the third Thief River Falls marksman, on an assist from Fitzgerald, at 11:04 of the second period.

Despite suffering the effects of a bout with the flu, Thief River Falls goalie Bill Jury shut out the fast-skating Green Wave until Todd Gregoire scored on a power play at 9:57 of the third period. It was the only goal the Prowlers surrendered in five shorthanded situations. "We killed penalties extremely well," mentioned Grand. Jury finished with 27 saves. East Grand Forks goalie Charlie Sehler turned aside 20 shots.

East Grand Forks is 5-3 for the year. Thief River Falls remains among the Section 8 leaders with a 5-1 points won-lost mark. East Grand Forks fell to 1-3 in that category.

TRF, EGF Eying NWAC Lead In Friday Contest

An opportunity to move into a first place tie in the Northwest Athletic Conference basketball points standings will be at stake for both Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks Friday when the Prowlers and Green Wave meet in a 7:30 p.m. contest at East Grand Forks.

East Grand Forks overcame an eight-point halftime deficit to surprise Crookston 57-51 Tuesday on the Pirates' court, snapping a season-long five game winning streak for the Green Wave.

Thief River Falls, beaten 60-54 at International Falls last week, is 1-1 in conference play. The Prowlers own a 48-46 overtime win over Bemidji but were saddled with a 58-56 loss at the hands of Crookston.

Grand Rapids Beats Greenway

Jim Malwitz collected a "natural" first period hat trick — three consecutive goals — Tuesday to lead Grand Rapids to a 7-3 victory over Greenway-Coleraine in a feature Iron Range Conference hockey game played before an estimated 2,500 fans in the 2,200 capacity IRA arena in Grand Rapids.

Leading 3-2 after the first period, Grand Rapids dominated play to score three unanswered second period goals. Other marksmen for the 9-0 Indians were Tim Casey, Kurt Kleinendorst, Mike Brill and Todd Lempe. Mike Guentzel scored twice for the 8-1 Raiders and Dale Wright added a single goal.

Greenway goalie Rick Troumbly played well in a 36-save performance. Grand Rapids netminder Jon Casey turned aside 30 shots.

Scheduled to play in Thief River Falls Saturday, Greenway will first visit Chisholm Friday.

Swimmers Host Fosston Friday

Another chapter in the interesting Thief River Falls-Bemidji-Fosston high school swimming triumvirate will be written Friday when the rival Prowlers and Greyhounds clash in a 7 p.m. dual meet in the Franklin middle school pool.

"It should be a good meet," promises Thief River Falls coach John Kopari. "We're looking forward to it."

Thief River Falls already owns a 47-30 dual meet victory over Bemidji. Friday will mark the first dual outing for the Prowlers since that Dec. 21 triumph at Bemidji. The last three Thief River Falls assignments have been multiple-team affairs, including a Saturday invitational at Fosston where the Prowlers were third behind co-champions Bemidji and Fosston and Tuesday at Bemidji when a triangular involving the northwestern Minnesota rivals found Bemidji scoring 211 points, Thief River Falls 172 and Fosston 149.

Earlier this year Thief River Falls and Bemidji shared the Prowler relays title, one point ahead of Fosston.

Friday's Thief River Falls-Fosston match should be close, but Kopari says, "I think we should win because of our depth." Top individuals belong to Fosston, however, in Eric Rustad and Scott Daniels. "They've got some outstanding swimmers," acknowledged Kopari.

Thief River Falls came up with a pair of wins at Bemidji Tuesday as Bruce Storhaug won the 100-yard butterfly in 1:00.05 and Dave Beito won the 500-yard freestyle in 5:33.1.

Beito also turned in a personal best 1:55.13 for a second place finish in the 200-yard freestyle behind Rustad's 1:55.24.

Karl Kuyath bettered his own school record with 182.3 points in the diving competition where he placed second behind Dave Smith of Bemidji who finished with a 205.2.

Thief River Falls will also be competing in the Franklin pool Monday afternoon when Grand Forks Central and Detroit Lakes will be here for a 4 o'clock meet.

SCORING A basket and drawing a foul on the play, Northland community college guard Joe Kraska drove down the lane in the second half of Monday's basketball game against Lake Region. The Royals beat the Northmen for the second time this winter, 97-80.

Northmen Begin MJCAA Play Against Mesabi

Still searching for a defense, the Northland community college basketball team begins a string of 11 consecutive season-ending MJCAA Northwest Division-counting games Saturday when the Northmen host Northeast Division power Mesabi at 2 p.m.

Northland defensive woes were magnified Monday when Lake Region riddled the host Northmen 97-80. The loss dropped Northland's nonconference season record to 7-4.

Minus strong scorers Mike Carriere and Keith Charbonneau who are recovering from the effects of a bout with the flu, and playing with a defense that appeared equally as weak, Northland threatened Lake Region only briefly, rallying from an early 14-8 deficit with a 10-point flurry in 2½ minutes that produced its only lead of the game. Sophomore forward Jon Nelson scored eight of his team-high 20 points during that span for an 18-16 lead with 12:46 remaining in the first half.

However, the perpetual motion Lake Region offense exploited the slow-reacting Northland defense for a never-ending series of easy baskets as the Royals pulled away to a 45-36 halftime advantage.

The margin climbed to 70-50 nine minutes into the second half. Northland managed to get it down to 82-71 with 4:30 on the clock, but Mark Griffin and Jeff Erickson stopped the comeback with four free throws and Griffin came up with a steal and a fast break lay-up for an 88-71 cushion with 3:38 left.

Erickson, a 6-4 sophomore forward, poured in 32 points, 20 in the second half. Roger Mertens, a 6-7 freshman center, added 26 points, and Griffin, a guard, contributed 17. Joining Nelson in double figures for Northland were guards Scotty Gilbert with 14 points, Doug Engelman 13 and Vince Parker 10.

Both teams scored 76 points from the field, but Lake Region benefited from Northland's out-of-position defense that produced 23 fouls to sink 21 of 27 free throw opportunities. Northland, meanwhile, made four of nine gift tosses. And Lake Region, getting the inside shots, shot 58 per cent from the field (38-for-65) while Northland shot 45 per cent (38-for-84).

Squirt B team lost its first game of the year, a 3-0 setback at Bagley.

Pee-Wee A team participated in the Bemidji tournament, beating Minneapolis Roosevelt 13-0, losing to Fergus Falls 6-1 and falling to Bemidji 6-4 in the third place game. Licenses Valid Until March 1, Reminds DNR

Department of Natural Resources reminds fishermen, hunters and trappers that their 1978 licenses are valid until March 1, 1979.

This means that sportsmen who will be fishing, hunting or trapping after Jan. 1 will not be required to purchase new licenses after the new year but may continue using their present licenses through Feb. 28, 1979.

Officials said a change was made in the law three years ago establishing a March 1 to March 1 "license year" for the convenience of sportsmen.

Grand Rapids Is Repeat Winner In Invitational

Grand Rapids, hosting the 20th annual Indian invitational wrestling tournament Saturday, won its 18th title in the longest continuing running invitational wrestling tournament in the state with 215 points.

Aitkin was second in the eight-team field with 175½ points, followed by Hibbing 144½, Bagley 141, Robbinsdale Armstrong 104½, International Falls 74, Fargo North 61 and Thief River Falls 24.

Grand Rapids won six individual titles. Bagley's Dave Skunes won his second 180-pound Indian invitational title in impressive fashion to win the meet's most valuable wrestler award, recording two pins and a 21-0 decision.

The Times—A Great Gift!

Fast-Starting Lakers Beat Wrestlers 43-18

Opening with four pins, the Detroit Lakes high school wrestling team coasted to a 43-18 win over Thief River Falls Tuesday in the Lincoln gym.

What was expected to be a close encounter quickly turned into a 24-0 lead for the Lakers who received match-opening pins from Al Foltz in 26 seconds over Scott Muzzy at 100 pounds, Tad Dubois in 47 seconds over John Dyrdal at 107, Gregg Blank in 4:18 over Clay Sorteberg at 114 and Joe Neuman in 4:15 over Tim Ehling at 121.

The Detroit Lakes assault was finally stemmed by Cory Nelson at 128 as the Prowlers won four of the next six matches before surrendering 12 points with forfeits at 187 and heavyweight.

"I thought it was alright," said Thief River Falls coach Jesse Schmike of his team's performance that dropped the Prowlers' dual meet record to 0-6. "We made some dumb mistakes; some inexperienced mistakes."

Nelson, a junior, produced a reversal and a three-point nearfall in the final 28 seconds of the third period for a 10-8 decision over Ken Seim.

Freshman Dan Odegaard made it two in a row for the Prowlers when he ended a 2-2 match with a 2:50 pin of Gregg Johnson at 134.

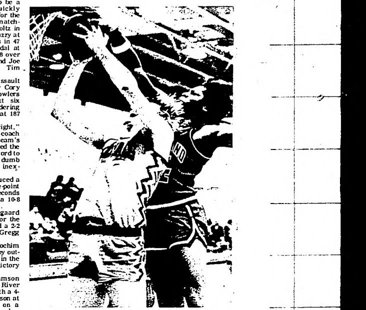
Detroit Lakes' Scott Jochim broke open a 4-2 match by outscoring Mike Selves 7-2 in the third period for an 11-4 victory at 140.

Junior Mark Williamson earned the third Thief River Falls win of the night with a 4-0 shutout over Jeff Atchison at 147. Williamson scored on a first period takedown and a third period reversal.

Mike Meyer of the Lakers trounced Troy Lundstrom 13-4 at 157, but Thief River Falls finished the wrestling activity with a 3:41 pin by freshman Robbie Jorstad over Joe Anderson at 169. Jorstad scored seven first period points before ending the match in the second period.

Six junior varsity matches produced an 18-13 Thief River Falls win as Kurt Konickson (114), Steve Jorstad (147) and Pete Sharpe (169) all won on pins.

Thief River Falls faces Ada Friday in a 7:30 p.m. match in the Lincoln gym.



A BLOCKED shot by Northland community college freshman Tom Jordan prevented Lake Region's Roger Mertens from scoring on this play during Monday's basketball game played in the Northland gym. A 97-80 loser, Northland opens MJCAA play Saturday at 2 p.m. in the Northland gym against Mesabi.

NCC Coaches Will Address Sports Boosters

Northland community college coaches Chet Engelman (basketball) and Bob Lundbohm (hockey) will be guest speakers Thursday at the weekly Thief River Falls Sports Boosters club 12 noon luncheon meeting in the basement of the Rex cafe.

The meeting is open to the public.

Plummer Remains Undefeated, Grygla Girls Lose First Game

Plummer remained unbeaten but Grygla fell from the ranks of the undefeated Monday in girls high school basketball action.

Facing Oslo in a storm-postponed make-up game, Plummer was a 38-32 winner for a 3-0 record. In a District 32 showdown against Roseau, Grygla came out a 27-26 loser for its first loss in six games.

In another Monday contest, Marshall County Central improved its record to 2-3 with a 44-32 victory over Warroad.

On Tuesday, Goodridge crushed Reed Lake Falls 54-25.

Roseau — Grygla

Shirley Kotta's ricochet shot bounced through the basket with five seconds remaining to give Roseau a come-from-behind 27-26 win at Grygla.

Grygla fell behind 6-2 in the first quarter and trailed 14-10 at halftime before carrying a 24-19 lead into the fourth quarter. The margin rose to 26-19 before the Eagles went into an ill-fated delay game that produced nothing but turnovers.

Jill Saurdiff of the Eagles with 16 points was the game's only double figure scorer.

MCC — Warroad

Denise Stokke, a 5-6 forward and the only senior on the team, scored 15 points and pulled down 22 rebounds to lead Marshall County Central to a 44-32 win over Warroad at Newfolden.

Marshall County Central built quarter leads of 11-6, 20-13 and 34-23.

Janet Marvin of Warroad shared game-high scoring honors with Stokke with 15 points.

Marshall County Central plays at Middle River Thursday and hosts Plummer Saturday.

Plummer — Olso

Diane Fisher scored 18 points and grabbed 18 rebounds to lead Plummer to a 38-32 victory at Oslo.

Plummer led 8-4 at the end of the first quarter, made it 19-12 at halftime and remained on top 26-21 through three quarters.

Nancy Zimpel joined Fisher on the boards with 12 rebounds. Kim Holter scored 10 points for the Bobcats.

Plummer will play at Alvarado Thursday, visits Marshall County Central Saturday and hosts Middle River Monday.

Goodridge — RLF

Three Goodridge scorers reached double figures as an impressive showing by the Huskies produced a 54-25 home court win over Red Lake Falls.

Fern Horachek and Mary Kiesow both scored 14 points for the winners and Vanassa Sand added 12.

Goodridge jumped out to a 16-4 first quarter lead, made it 31-12 at halftime and enjoyed a 46-20 third quarter cushion.

Now 2-3, Goodridge plays at East Grand Forks Sacred Heart Thursday and travels to Gonvick Saturday.

Group Proposes A Wood Bank Forest Program

A proposal to establish a "wood bank" — similar to state and federal water bank programs — will be discussed at a meeting of the Minnesota forestry association in St. Paul on Sat., Jan. 13.

The meeting is scheduled to start at 1 p.m. in the continuing education center on the St. Paul campus of the University of Minnesota.

The association is a private group urging more intensive management of Minnesota forests.

Under the proposed wood bank, owners of forest land would enter into a contract with the federal government to keep the land in timber production in return for an annual payment.

An association spokesman explained that the non-industrial private forests make up over one half of the commercial forest land in the United States.

"These lands are not contributing their share of forest benefits to the country", he said. "The purpose of the proposed wood bank is to encourage the small private woodland owner to intensify management of his forest lands."

Al Lindner's In' Fisherman Tips

THE IN' FISHERMAN CALENDAR

Believe it or not, fish pay no attention to man's clock, his calendar, or his seasons. They do, however, have a "year" of sorts, which roughly corresponds with ours. This "year" can be broken down into the 10 periods of what we call the IN' FISHERMAN CALENDAR.

The first period of the IN' FISHERMAN CALENDAR is the PRE-SPAWN period. This occurs during the time when the fish are on their way to, or in the vicinity of, their spawning areas prior to spawning. Fishing can be very good.

The second period is the SPAWN period. It is a brief and variable time span directly linked to the range of preferred temperatures for the spawning of each species of fish. Generally, feeding activity is minimal.

The third period on our calendar is the POST-SPAWN period. The length of this time span is highly variable, depending on lake or river conditions, the species of the fish, and even the sex of the fish. Male fish seem to be more responsive than females, which often return to their deeper haunts shortly after spawning. Females remain difficult to catch for some time. This is a "slow" period as a whole.

The fourth period is the PRE-SUMMER period. This is a catch-up or transition period. All species-except possibly smallmouth bass - will be through with the three prior periods. The fish will be in the process of establishing themselves in their respective summer patterns. Fishing can be tough and sporadic as the fish go through this time of adjustment. This period usually arrives just before a body of water will be comfortable for swimming. (Of course, some lakes never get comfortable for swimming!)

The fifth period is known as the SUMMER PEAK. It is a short time - 10 to 14 days as a rule - but potentially "red hot" for all species. The SUMMER PEAK begins after the first hot spell that remains for several days, and, more importantly, nights.

The sixth period is called the SUMMER period. The fish still hold to the location patterns which they have established in the SUMMER PEAK. But algae blooms, cold fronts, increased natural food supplies, and many other factors make this time span unpredictable. Night movements occur and can be good. Feeding activity depends heavily on the local weather activity.

The seventh period is the POST-SUMMER PERIOD. It takes place during the tail end of any region's summer and can mean about a week or more of terrific fishing! Days can heat up to 90 degrees F, but nights are cool. This period is often marked by several dead-calm days, with food fish breaking the surface. All fish eat actively.

The eighth period is called the FALL TURNOVER. It is a three or four day time period when the lake is in turmoil. A mixing or "turning over" of the water takes place as cold surface water settles and warmer water from below rises.

The ninth period is known as the COLD WATER period. This is the only period which occurs twice in the "manmade" calendar. It first takes place in early spring between FROZEN WATER and PRE-SPAWN. Secondly, it occurs in late, late fall in the cooling off period between the FALL TURNOVER and FROZEN WATER. For a brief time, in bodies of water that freeze, all water is 39 degrees F. Then the surface water cools and eventually ices up, while the deeper water remains at 39 degrees. Fish of the same species might be found at vastly different depths, and stragglers are much more common than in any other period.

The last period is the FROZEN WATER period. This term describes the time when a body of water is mostly or completely covered by ice. This period has many, many exceptions and the IN' FISHERMAN staff is still continuing active research to more clearly define it.

In order to learn more about the fantastic work that is being accomplished in the study of the sport of fishing, the IN' FISHERMAN SOCIETY has prepared a special FULL COLOR pamphlet for YOU that is chock full of maps, charts, drawings, and photos that show how the experts go about unraveling the mysteries of fishing. 328,000 Catfish Stocked By DNR

Department of Natural Resources stocked more than 328,000 catfish in Minnesota waters during 1978, according to a report issued recently in St. Paul.

Charles Burrows, DNR fisheries chief, said the fish were placed in streams and lakes located in the southern and western part of the state.

"Though the catfish is a native of Minnesota, being found in the St. Croix, Mississippi, Minnesota and the Red River, there are many waters suitable for them that have not been utilized," he said.

Burrows said flathead catfish are known to feed heavily on small bull heads.

"Hopefully, the catfish will eventually help control the over population of bull heads found in many southern Minnesota waters," he said.

A total of 16 lakes and seven streams were stocked in 1978. Both flathead catfish and channel catfish were included in the stocking program.

Most of the catfish were of fingerling size, however some larger yearling size and a few adult catfish were stocked as a research project to evaluate the flathead as a biological control on bull heads.

Public Notices

Card of Thanks

We walked the road of sorrow,
A road so dark with care,
So lonely, we were certain
That no one else was there.

But suddenly around us
Were beams of light stretched wide,
And then we saw that someone
Was walking by our side.

And when we turned to notice
This road which we had trod
We saw two sets of footprints —
Our own — and those of God.

Without faith in God and His help and without the loving compassion extended by you, the people of this community and elsewhere, our great loss would have been unbearable. Our thanks to you all, especially to Rev. Henke, the staff and employees at the Times, Falls Clinic and the Law Enforcement Center, and to the Green Funeral Home. May God Bless you all.

The Board advised the group that the road was scheduled for grading in 1980 according to the 5 year plan for roads. No bituminous surfacing is scheduled at the present time but it was pointed out that in order for a 5 year plan to be kept current it is necessary to update such a plan periodically and the scheduling of bituminous surfacing depends on the availability of funds and the count of cars over those various roads in the County.

Commissioner Koop introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Stenberg and declared unanimously carried.

The Board then discussed with the Engineer the programs being considered to be entered into with the City of Thief River Falls for installation of signals along 1st Street, the widening of the 1st Street Bridge and the possible widening of 1st Street from Main Avenue East to Pennington Avenue. The Engineer was asked to obtain estimates that could be looked at to allow the Board to make a decision on how much involvement they can afford.

Moved by Stenberg seconded by Tasa that the sum of $277.33 be appropriated and paid to Kittson County the fiscal agent for the Four County Board of Health to reimburse that body for Pennington County's share of the overspending during 1978 for expenses of the various Boards. Motion declared unanimously carried.

The Board then discussed the request of Myrl Carlson for authorization and funds to operate the Veterans' Service Office on a full time basis. Moved by Stenberg seconded by Grabanski that the Veterans Service Officer be paid an adjusted salary of $518.00 per month with the provision that 2 half days a week be added to the schedule and those additional 2 half days provided for be used at the Officers descretion. De-Regulation Threatens Air Service Here of service was never challenged again and North Central airlines has served this community for over a quarter of a century without interruption. A lot has been accomplished since the first flight came into Thief River Falls in 1953. We have seen new facilities erected at the airport and have witnessed the boardings increase with over 12,000 recorded in 1978. Thief River Falls is now served by three flights a day with 48-passenger Convair 580s. "We have," former mayor Harry Simons believes, "an airport we can be proud of."

With the passage of an airline deregulation bill by the 95th congress, many feel the service this community has enjoyed for the last 26 years now may be threatened.

In the past, essential airline service to small, remote communities such as Thief River Falls has been subsidized by the federal government. In 1977 North Central received subsidies totaling $13 million, approximately $1.5 million of which was for service to Minnesota airports. There are 11 airports in Minnesota served by North Central, but two-thirds of the subsidy funds paid to the airline for service in Minnesota is allocated for service to Thief River Falls, Bemidji and Brainerd. Subsidy allocations for these airports are $213,000, $436,000 and $311,000, respectively, or a total of $960,000.

A brochure put out by North Central following its merger with Southern Airlines states, "The policy of the two carriers has been and will continue to be, that as long as adequate subsidy support continues, they will continue to serve all small cities now being served." Intent of the airline deregulation bill is to phase out sibsidy over a period of 10 years. It is unlikely that the same level of service could be continued without some form of government subsidy.

South Dakota Senator George McGovern stated his opposition of the bill in the "Congressional Digest" saying, "Airline deregulation carries with it the downgrading of service with smaller aircraft to many of the nation's smaller communities which are now served by certificated carriers. As envisioned by this bill, the existing jet and prop-jet aircraft will be phased out and the substitute equipment, regardless of frequency, will be much smaller, many without all-weather avionics."

McGovern is concerned that small communities have invested large sums of money into their airports, such as Thief River Falls has done, to accommodate the larger aircraft they believed would continue to serve them. Although Thief River Falls has no long-term bonds involved at the airport, many communities of similar size do and may have trouble maintaining their facilities if the result of the deregulation bill is that the larger airlines pull out of small, less profitable communities to compete on the more profitable runs.

Phillip Boucher, spokesman for Trans World Airlines (TWA), testified before the House subcommittee saying, "We might choose to drop service on routes operating well below allocated cost, choosing instead perhaps to challenge another carrier on its routes where we think our profit opportunities would be better." TWA opposed the deregulation bill and Boucher commented, "No one has yet effectively described what may happen to air service to smaller communities in a deregulated environment." He contended that, although the small communities might not lose all service, they would probably be on the high end of competitive pricing and that "commuter operations may move in to replace regional services. In our view," the TWA spokesman stated, "the eventual impact of a deregulated system . . . will inevitably be a decline in small community service, unless support appears in the form of massive federal subsidies."

Even Illinois Senator Adlai Stevenson III, who supported the bill, stated during senate debate, "In some cases this (the implementation of the deregulation bill) will mean the loss of service by a major carrier using large planes and the substitution of local air carriers using smaller planes."

At a January 3 meeting with LASAC (Local Air Service Action Committee), representatives of a number of Minnesota cities took the stand that they did not intend to accept service from a carrier smaller than presently serves them. Bob Wurst, Thief River Falls attorney who served as president of LASAC, commented to Thief River Falls city council members saying, "We don't necessarily have to let this happen. There may be some sort of confrontation coming."

If indeed there is confrontation coming it can be expected at a January 29 - 30 hearing in Minneapolis with the civil aeronautics board (CAB).

In the deregulation bill, the CAB was given the task of meeting with community and state agencies and determining what "essential service" would be for the various points now served. The bill defines minimum service as "two daily round trips five days a week or the level of service provided in 1977, whichever is less."

On January 29-30 CAB will hold a hearing in Minneapolis to consider the views of state and local government and industry representatives for a six-state area including Minnesota on four major topics: The determination of essential air transportation, determination of subsidy, how additional points can be designated as eligible for service and how subsidy applications can be processed.

In preparation for the hearing, LASAC held a meeting with representatives from Minnesota communities at which Thief River Falls was represented. The cities presented their ideas regarding service to small communities and a position paper will be forthcoming from LASAC. At the CAB hearing Bob Wurst will speak on behalf of LASAC and it is expected that the Minnesota communities present will voice their support of the LASAC position and offer comments on their particular concerns.

In an outline of the views of the city of Thief River Falls it was stated, "The city of Thief River Falls would not accept service by any aircraft or flight personnel which would be inferior in any manner to any airline service in the areas of safety and dependability." The city also asks CAB to recognize that there is a substantial portion of the population that equates size of the aircraft with safety. It was recognized by city representatives that the size of the aircraft serving Thief River Falls will no doubt affect the frequency of service. It was also noted, however, that there is a great percentage of local users of the airline who would not patronize the service if CAB chose to substitute, for example, commuters for the scheduled North Central carriers.

City personnel suggested that it be emphasized to CAB that the scheduled carriers also provide an important service to the community by hauling freight and mail and providing easy access to continuing flight reservations. They also asked that CAB become more involved in consumer protection, making sure that small communities pay substantially the same fares for the same services available in large communities.

Regarding subsidy, the city asked CAB to recognize that "Local governments already substantially subsidize carriers and the public outside of the local tax district by contributing to the capital cost of airports and by maintaining airport facilities on an operating loss basis." They feel that additional contributions for subsidy to airlines "must be on a broader basis than the individual city or county tax district."

Exactly what is in store for small communities in regard to air service is unknown at this time. The intent of the airline deregulation law was to "encourage airline industry competition by increasing airlines' flexibility to set fares and enter new routes." Unless implemented to insure continued, high quality service to small communities, many fear it may have the same effect on the airline industry as the deregulatory law in the Transportation Act of 1958 had on the railroad passenger industry subjection to a single rule of profit, resulting in downgrading of service and mass abandonment of less profitable lines.

Without proper implementation of the law, Mayor Harry Simons' generation, who worked hard to see the inauguration of scheduled passenger service at communities the size of Thief River Falls, may yet see the dissipation of that service. Thief River Falls city personnel and the state LASAC organization intend to take a stand to prevent that from happening.

City Okays Revenue Share Budget Tues.

The city agreed to instruct street department employees to aid Cloutier in removing the base of his radio antenna and to designate a parking space on the west side of Horace as a cab stall. They also set April 1 as the date by which the present cab stand would have to be removed from city property. Cloutier stated that he hoped to be operating out of the new site Saturday.

Appearing before the council to discuss the need for a scale was John Lang of Land O'Lakes. The city informed Lang that they were not interested in having another city-operated scale but would be willing to help an individual or group set up a scale. They also indicated that they might be willing to make some city land available for a scale site. Lang agreed to talk to other area businesses which feel the need for a scale, investigate costs and report back to the council.

A number of representatives from local clubs were present at the meeting to discuss the reissuance of gambling licenses. Since the license committee had not received all club reports the matter was referred back to committee with those possessing a license to be invited to a license committee meeting for discussion of any problems.

The need for a sidewalk ordinance was also referred to a committee, city attorney Bob Wurst reported on a January 3 LASAC meeting regarding the airline deregulation bill, and the council was informed that John Nelson had exercised the option on 2.7 acres of city property on highway 59 south. With Nelson buying the city property it can be assumed that Adolph Oseid is going ahead with plans to build a new Red Owl store on the 59 strip.

The city endorsed Lincoln high school's participation in a statewide sportsmanship contest sponsored by the Minnesota high school league. Under the program, all Prowler teams, coaches, ~~cheerleaders and fans will be~~ observed and graded a number of times by out-of-town judges.

Auditions For Local Theatre Production Set

Northland community theatre announces auditions for the forthcoming production of George Herman's "A Company of Wayward Saints." The two-act play deals with a troupe of commedia dell arte players, the roving comedy groups who played throughout Europe in the sixteenth through the eighteenth centuries.

These troupes are credited with having developed many of the ideas of slap-stick comedy and buffoonery which persist today. This play offers actors the opportunity to alternately play scenes of broad slapstick farce and more subdued realism.

"A Company of Wayward Saints" is being planned as a dinner theatre presentation, slated for production in mid-March. Try-outs for this show will be held Monday and Tuesday, January 15 and 16, from 7 to 9 p.m. in room A13 at Northland community college.

"Participation in Northland community theatre productions is open to anyone in Thief River Falls and the surrounding areas," said Tim Ingeman, community theatre director. In addition he stated that, "Actors as well as people interested in publicity, costume and prop work are being sought, and an assistant director-stage manager is also needed."

Persons who have questions or who may wish to audition at another time may call Ingeman at the college, 681-2181.

Regional ADA Votes Funds For Dairy Promotion

Expenditure of funds for dairy promotion in the coming year was voted by delegates and alternates attending the annual meeting of Region One of the Minnesota American Dairy association Tuesday at the Best Western Inn in Thief River Falls.

The group voted to spend $500 for dairy promotion in the region during the coming year, to purchase two restaurant-promotion kits for each county in the region and to buy a case of styrofoam cups and napkins with the 1979 theme "Milk's The One" for each county for use at public events during the year.

Murl Nord of Blackduck was reelected regional chairman and Mayo Rusten of Gonvick as vice chairman while Bill Harstad of Fertile was elected secretary-treasurer to succeed Bertrand Thompson of McIntosh. Thompson declined reelection after having served in the secretary-treasurer post for the past 20 years.

George Koch of Puposky, regional director on the Minnesota ADA board, reported on state activities and sought opinion from the delegates on two questions being considered by the board. One was the proposed change in Princess Kay contest rules to permit daughters of herdsmen and dairy managers to compete in the contest although the family did not receive a direct payment from farm milk sales. The other was in the scheduling of malted milk trailer units owned by ADA of Minnesota to permit more equal distribution of use among ADA member groups.

Cliff Markuson, Minnesota ADA manager, and George Johnson, director of public relations, outlined dairy promotion plans for the coming year and reviewed the operations of the organization during the past year. They also discussed proposed changes in the organization's dairy bar at the state fair which had sales of $140,000 at the 1978 exposition. Changes would be designed to reduce congestion in the area and increase the number of persons who could be served.

Farm Show To Have Seminar On Quilting

The northern farm show will feature a quilting seminar as part of its 1979 ladies' program.

Quiltmaking teacher and lecturer, Bonnie Ellis, will conduct morning and afternoon sessions on both January 19 and 20 at the Minneapolis convention center. Seminars will include, traditional methods, modern quilting design, history of quiltmaking, a slide program, and question and answer period.

Ellis has done much consignment work including the designing and making of the official Minnesota state quilt which hangs at the Minnesota historical society; a "Mississippi River Quilt" used as a moneymaker for a stitchery show in St. Paul; and a quilted wall hanging in the office of Agricultural Economics at the University of Minnesota.

Teacher of adult classes for many years at the Gibbs Farm Museum in St. Paul, Ellis has also taught classes at the Minneapolis Institute of Arts; University of Wisconsin, Stout, and various community educational programs.

Along with other quilters, Mrs. Ellis helped to organize the "Minnesota Quilters", a nonprofit group formed this year to unite quilters and quilt enthusiasts.

Ellis is a graduate in journalism and foods and has lectured on a variety of subjects including quilting, needlework, pioneer life, food in the last 200 years, and the Shakers.

The northern farm show will feature the latest in farm equipment for 1979 and farmers planning to attend are encouraged to contact their local farm equipment dealer for free tickets. Farmers living outside of Minnesota and South Dakota can pick up their free tickets at the door of the Minneapolis convention center.

Arts Council Needs Member From Penn. Co.

Northwestern arts council is seeking an applicant from Pennington county who is interested in coordinating and assisting the arts development in Region 1. The position is open immediately.

Counties included in Region 1 are Kittson, Roseau, Marshall, Polk, Pennington, Norman and Red Lake. The arts council developed as a committee of the Northwestern regional development commission. Staff from the commission began working with the Minnesota arts board in 1975 to develop regional arts programming. Two members from each county serve two and three-year terms on the council. Meeting sites are rotated.

Minnesota's Northwestern arts council reviews grant applications, disseminates information regarding arts in the region, and develops an annual work plan. It has also compiled a directory of regional artists and arts producing organizations. Application forms for the position are available from arts planner Sari Clark at the regional development commission in Crookston, located at 425 Woodland. Inquiries may also be sent to Nancy Solum, Marshall county courthouse in Warren, MN 56762 or to Becky Hastad at Halstad, MN 56548.

The first private pension plan offered by a company was established by the American express company in 1875, according to the U.S. Labor Department booklet, "Labor Firsts in America."

Nominations For Conservation Teacher Sought

Nominations are being accepted for the sixth national "Conservation Teacher-of-the Year" awards program according to Leonard Skaar, chairman of the Pennington soil and water conservation district.

Competition is open to all full-time teachers working at the kindergarten through high school level who have developed an outstanding program of environmental education.

National conservation teacher of the year will receive $1,000 in cash and an expense-paid trip to Houston, Tx., for the 1980 annual convention of the national association of conservation districts.

National second-place winner receives a $500 cash award and the first-place regional winner will be given $200.

Cosponsored by NACD and the Allis Chalmers corporation, the purpose of the awards program is to encourage the development of creative learning experiences in conservation for young people. "Any teacher is a public or private school in our conservation district who puts emphasis on environmental conservation as a regular part of the instructional program is eligible for nomination", said Leonard Skaar. Interested teachers can obtain additional information and nomination forms from the Pennington SWCD at 1305 Dale street in Thief River Falls, or by calling 681-3348.

Awards program also includes equivalent prizes for the conservation district judged nationally to have provided the most effective stimulus and help for conservation education programs within the district.

Support Group Planned For Abused Women

A support group is being formed to aid women in the Thief River Falls area who have been victims of abuse. Sponsors of the group are women who have found remedies for themselves in the situation of abuse and wish to explore the rights and remedies available. Group members may include women who have been assaulted in degrees of severity ranging from slapping to rape.

The first meeting is to be held Monday, January 15, in Thief River Falls. Sally Hirsch and Rosemary Henderson of the Northwestern Mental Health Center will be in attendance to help the group establish goals and format. Anyone wishing to attend should contact Doris Heroff of St. Hilaire at 964-5438.

When Congress passed the Fair Labor Standards Act in June 1938, President Roosevelt said it would provide "a fair day's pay for a fair day's work."

Big Discovery

Nostalgia, nostalgia. Everything that was seems better than anything that is, to most of us. We go for Tiffany lamps and Currier and Ives prints, and now it's "in" to have a beard.

But we don't go all the way.

Why? Why doesn't the present measure up? Could it be we who are at fault, at least partly, for the buildup of pressures and the breakdown of moral values today?

If we're going on a nostalgia trip, let's take it all the way. Let's make the big discovery that people made back in the old days which is just as valid now as it was then . . .

. . . the Church.

America For Sale

Following comments are by Kenneth C. Crowe, author of "America for Sale":

My favorite analogy for summarizing the implications of the ongoing surge of foreign investment in the United States is the early use of DDT. That toxic chemical was wonderful for killing mosquitoes and other pesky creatures. The problem was that those spreading it across the countryside created a threat to the ecology before the public realized what they were doing.

Similarly, foreign investment is wonderful for those for whom it provides jobs (steelworkers in mills in New York State and South Carolina, auto workers in Pennsylvania, lobbyists in Washington), or fat commissions, or fat fees or billion-dollar bank deposits.

Foreign investment in the United States in its many forms (direct acquisitions of corporations, stocks, bonds, bank deposits, land and other securities) amounts to about half a trillion dollars, and there is a lot more coming in every day, particularly as the value of the dollar drops.

The United States, whose multinational corporations have several hundred billion dollars invested abroad, traditionally has expoused the free flow of capital across national lines. American bankers and investment executives who make fortunes from the movement of this money reverently point to the words of Alexander Hamilton, the first secretary of the Treasury, on the joys of foreign investment: "Instead of being viewed as a rival, it (foreign capital) ought to be considered as a most valuable auxiliary, conducing to put in motion a greater quantity of productive labor, and a greater portion of useful enterprise, than could exist without it."

When he made that statement in 1791, Secretary Hamilton was managing the United States investments of a British member of parliament (his brother-in-law) and was putting pressure on Dutch banking interests to invest in a corporate venture in New Jersey. He later went on the Dutch bankers' payroll to lobby against a New York State law prohibiting ownership of land by foreigners.

Until the last decade, foreign investment in the United States was insignificant. The surge began in 1968 and has continued unabated ever since for a number of complex reasons, including the new self-confidence of the Japanese and European corporations, the hunger for the vast American market, a desire to escape from the frustrations and dangers of socialist nations, diversification, an excess of dollars and the stability of the American nation.

British Petroleum, whose dominant stockholder is the British government, owns 54 per cent of Alaska's rich Prudhoe Bay oilfields-about $70 billion worth of oil. The Flick Group of West Germany spent $110 million to buy 12 per cent of W.R. Grace & Company, which is no longer in the steamship business but has evolved into an international chemical and natural-resources giant. The Japanese, of course, are building ministeel mills and television factories everywhere, buying vast quantities of coal and lumber and most importantly, are emerging in banking-with 52 banking institutions whose assets exceed $24 billion.

At the end of 1972, foreign interests controlled banking assets of $26.8 billion in the United States. That figure has since swelled to $99 billion.

The foreigners with the greatest potential — the Middle Eastern oil producing nations and their citizens — have yet to emerge in a dominant position in any part of corporate America. Their $20 billion in deposits in American super-banks such as Chase, Morgan Quaranty, Bank of America and Citibank, gives them impressive leverage over the banking establishment and the dollar. Their billion-dollar home markets have brought prosperity to hundreds of American companies and workers. Their business associates and hirelings include an impressive list of national political figures.

All these components add up to a growth in Arab influence in the United States that will soon neutralize the powerful Israeli lobby in Washington and diminish the impact of that lobby each year. The softening of American support for Israel appears inevitable. We have already seen the first indications of this in the sale of jets to Saudi Arabia. Conversely, without the blossoming of Arab economic power and influence in the United States, it is doubtful that the peace talks between President Sadat and Prime Minister Begin at Camp David could have taken place.

At what point does foreign investment become a negative factor? Like the early users of DDT, we really don't know. We don't have enough information yet. Every foreign investment is an infringement when those investments are made by foreign governments, openly or through corporate fronts. Such investments have been made by the Germans, the British, The Canadians, the Saudis, the Kuwaitis, the French and the Libyans.

The United States must formulate the economic equivalent of the Monroe Doctrine — a national policy that clearly prohibits foreign governments or their intermediaries from making controlling investments in corporate America. We also need a policy requiring a rigid disclosure of all substantial foreign investments so that the American people will know what is happening and won't be surprised to discover suddenly that the power to control their economic and political destiny has been acquired by absentee owners in Tokyo, London or Riyadh. -Kenneth C. Crowe, author of "America for Sale."

Our Saving Ways

Following editorial is from the Renville Star-Farmer:

Back, only a few moons ago in recent hisotry, when the suggestion that the world would be running out of fuel was suddenly thrown out, some suggested that gasoline ought to retail for $1 a gallon to discourage travelling. The upward climb in gasoline prices since then ought to convince motorists the suggestions were no idle ideas. Those who proposed them were only too smart to push the prices to that level in one leap.

Have drivers heard the word and begun conserving fuel? We didn't think so, until the other day it suddenly occurred that what we had been accepting as just plain sloppy driving habits really might be conscious efforts at saving gasoline. Consider, for instance:

The speeder. He's going faster, even than law prescribes, so he can reach his destination sooner. That means his vehicle's engine is going to be running a shorter period of time. And that ought to be saving.

The corner cutter. You've seen him coming toward you on the highways, cutting down onto your lane on the curve. Sloppy? No, he's just taking the shortest route to reach his destination. And everyone ought to know that travelling shorter distances saves fuel.

The speeder through slow speed zones. Well, that's simple enough for anyone to understand. It takes more fuel to regain the speed you lose when you slow down while passing through town. Why waste the inertia, you've built up, and then waste more gas regaining it?

The sloppy parker. That's easy to understand too. It takes gas to jiggle any vehicle around until it fits neatly into a parking space. Why not just make a pass at it and then stop, even if it appears more like abandoning than parking a vehicle. Besides, if you take up two spaces for one vehicle you'll keep someone else from parking there and probably wasting more fuel in the process.

These are probably the most readily discerned "conservation" practices to be noticed. Doubtless, there are many more. And if there aren't, be assured some eager driver will soon invent new ones.

Borrowed Nonsense:

St. Peter: "Where are you from, son?"

Man at the Pearly Gates: "Thief River Falls, sir."

St. Peter: "Well, come on in . . . but you won't like it."

The father of a freshman college student wasn't too concerned whether his son was going to be a doctor, engineer, attorney or educator. He was more concerned if the boy was going to become a sophomore.

"One more mouthful like that," admonished the father, "and you will leave the table."

"One more like that," the son replied, "and I'll be finished."

"Do you," the minister asked the perspiring bridegroom, "take this woman to be your lawfully wedded wife, for better or worse, for richer or poorer, in sickness . . ."

"Please, pastor," the bride interrupted. "You're going to talk him out of it!"

"My mother can tell the future with cards," the little boy said. "She took one look at my report card and told me exactly what was going to happen when my dad got home."

Helping To Win Fight Against Cancer

Baseball players are going to bat against cancer for four-year-old Dawn Cox. Kansas City Royals players Jerry Terrell (far left in photo) and mustachioed Al Hrabosky, along with other teammates, held baseball clinics in Dawn's hometown of Poland, Ohio, to raise funds for St. Jude Children's Hospital, where she is being treated.

Prime organizer of the event and other benefits to aid the hospital is Avon Representative Connie Coloutes (holding Dawn). Co-chairman of St. Jude fund-raising in the Poland area, Mrs. Coloutes first heard of Dawn's plight three years ago when, with little hope for survival, Dawn was referred to St. Jude.

Mrs. Coloutes and other representatives in the vicinity championed Dawn's cause with a variety of fund-raising events that resulted in the group's recent $2,500 donation to the hospital. Today, a plaque at the hospital reads in brief: "Dedicated to Dawn Cox from her friends, the Avon Ladies, District 281."

Commenting on the donation, Mrs. Coloutes says, "This was our way of helping Dawn's family show their appreciation for all St. Jude has done."

Founded 16 years ago by entertainer Danny Thomas, St. Jude is the largest childhood cancer research center in the world and treats children without charge. If you want to help Dawn and other children like her, send your tax-deductible donation to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, P.O. Box 2214, Youngstown, Ohio 44504, Attention: Connie Coloutes.

Hints For Homeowners

HOME IMPROVEMENT, SAFETY AND ECONOMY

SAFETY AROUND THE HOUSE

How can you make your home safer? Here is a handful of "hints" to start the wheels turning.

Install child-proof latches on doors of cabinets where household cleaners and chemicals are stored, put plastic safety caps over unused electrical wall and baseboard outlets, and don't leave matches where little hands will find them.

Keep outside steps and walks free of ice or packed snow. If it is too solid to melt or chip away, scattered kitty litter will make it less slippery.

Use a hand tool only for the work it's designed to perform. Fine Wiss fabric scissors might cut cardboard, but their utility snips will do the job safely, easily and without damage . . . and cut metal, too.

Secure loose carpeting on stairs, and add non-slip backing strips to small rugs on highly-polished floors.

A blown fuse or tripped circuit breaker signals a fault in the electrical system. Find out where and why!

When you need to replace a broken storm door panel, install break-resistant acrylic sheeting like plexiglass.

Some household paints, removers and thinners are flammable or vapor harmful. Read labelled cautions and use with care.

When soldering, even with a UL-listed Weller iron, don't let that hot tip go astray.

Periodically make a safety inspection tour. Keep potential fire hazards in mind, particularly in the furnace area.

Now, while the subject of safety around the house is on your mind, why not begin your own list of precautions.

YOUR AMAZING NOSE

Your nose is nothing to sneeze at: without it your food would be tasteless, your life duller.

Few people know how sensitive noses are. They can register a quantity of fragrance so tiny, the most delicately calibrated machines in existence can't detect it. Everytime you dine, the aroma of the food rises through your mouth to sensitive olefactory nerves that help you tell how well things taste.

Your nose can even perform some psychological sleight-of-hand. A British psychologist once uncorked a bottle of citronella and his subjects "heard" mosquitoes.

Experts say our sense of smell is tied to the part of the brain that evokes emotions. We are able to recognize and catalog odors and even recall smells from our childhood, often attaching emotional associations to a specific fragrance.

Because of this, a highly specialized chemical science has evolved around the development of fragrances appropriate to all types of products. Laundry detergents, for instance, often are formulated to have a "clean smell."

YOU MAY OWE YOUR NOSE more than you know.

One fine fabric detergent and softener, Handle With Care, took four years to develop and required over 35 fragrance variations to be tested. The final choice was a floral bouquet that stays with the clothing after the washing and drying was over.

Clean clothes that even smell clean, it would seem, are a nice reward for your amazing nose.

We're on your side.

Worcestershire Makes The Pie

A mainstay in England for many years, Shepherd's Pie was originally a hash of leftover roast meat, usually lamb or mutton, combined with gravy and vegetables and topped with a "crust" of mashed potatoes. Nowadays, we hear from our English friends, it is almost always made with ground beef—easier, more available and economical. The real difference in this recipe, however, is its seasoning—provided by that English invention, Worcestershire sauce. "Worcester sauce," as they call it, brings this recipe out of the category of just meat-and-potatoes and into the realm of a really special main dish.

SHEPHERD'S PIE A LA WORCESTER

- 1-1/2 pounds ground beef
- 1 package (10 oz.) frozen peas and carrots
- 1/4 cup minced onion
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 cup water
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 2-1/2 tablespoons Lea & Perrins Worcestershire Sauce
- 2 cups seasoned hot mashed potatoes

Preheat oven to 400 F. In a large skillet brown beef, stirring to break up large pieces. Add peas and carrots, minced onion, salt and water. Bring to the boiling point. Reduce heat and simmer, covered, for 5 minutes. Blend flour with Worcestershire sauce; stir into meat mixture. Cook and stir until slightly thickened. Spoon into a 2-quart casserole. Spoon or pipe mashed potatoes with a pastry bag fitted with a star tube over the top of the meat mixture in any desired pattern. Bake until potatoes are golden, 20 to 25 minutes. Or, if desired place under a preheated hot broiler until potatoes are golden. Yield: 6 portions.

Volume 68 (USPS 627-360) Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota Monday, January 15, 1979 Number 5

SUNDAY FIRE at the Marvin Markstrom home at 513 S. Markley turned into a three-hour battle for 20 Thief River Falls fire department members who worked in the 20 below weather to put out the blaze. Both Mr. and Mrs. Markstrom were at home at the time the fire started but escaped without injury. Markstrom was attempting to thaw out a sewer pipe with a blow torch and the north wall of the residence caught fire. The fire department was called to the scene at 4:40 p.m. Fire moved up the walls and into the roof of the Markstrom home with newspaper insulation speeding the spread. It was close to 8 p.m. before the blaze was completely out and fire department personnel left the scene. The home was judged to be a complete loss with the roof gone and smoke and water damage to the interior.

Board Meet Set At Goodridge

There will be a special meeting of the Goodridge school board at the Goodridge school at 3:30 p.m. on Monday, January 22.

ELEMENTARY LIBRARIAN Martin Keegan reviews procedure for finding book titles and authors for a class at Mark Twain elementary school. Observing at right are Mark Koehn of Devils Lake, N.D., and Wendy Rupprecht of Thief River Falls, Northland community college students. Mark and Wendy are enrolled in the college's internship program in human services, a three-credit course in which they work with the elementary librarian two hours a day Monday through Friday. Both Koehn and Rupprecht are planning on going into education and wanted to work with elementary students.

Fire Department Has Normal Year

If there is such a thing as a normal year in fire department activity, the Thief River Falls fire department had one during 1978, according to Duane Noel, fire chief.

"We usually have between 65 and 85 fire calls a year," he said. "Last year we answered 80 calls and I would say the total damage from the fires totaled less than $100,000. A couple of years ago we had an exceptionally large number of calls because the weather was so dry and there were grass and brush fires all over the place."

There were three deaths in the fire department report for 1978, one as a result of a fire and two by drowning. Dan Kezar of rural Thief River Falls died when his mobile home caught fire, apparently from a heat tape. Anthony Wilson drowned while swimming with other Northland community college students near the Eighth street birdge and Gene Peterson's body was recovered after he apparently fell from the First street birdge.

There were 19 small fires in homes and 19 car and truck fires, according to the fire chief's report. Eleven fires were in mobile homes and two of these were total losses. In one house fire during the year there were convictions for arson, Noel said, and there were eight false alarms, primarily from accidental triggering of alarm devices.

Chief Noel said there were no major commercial or business area fires during the year. Rocksbury township had the most rural calls with eight followed by four in Smiley, three in Norden and one each in North and Silverton townships. These rural townships have firefighting agreements with the local department.

The other major activity for the Thief River Falls fire department in 1978 involved the department itself. The old fire hall was demolished after the department had moved its equipment into a nearby building and a new fire hall is presently in the process of construction on the site of the old building on Second street at Atlantic avenue.

NCC Enrollment Increase Tops State Listing

Northland community college's head count enrollment increase of 31.9 per cent headed the listing of 62 Minnesota public institutions of post-secondary education for the fall quarter of 1978. The figures were reported recently by the Minnesota higher education coordinating board.

Northland's jump from 423 students in the fall of 1977 to 558 in 1978 represented the 31.9 per cent increase, which led the community college system overall increase of 4.2 per cent. This community college gain also was the largest of the systems included in the report, which were community colleges, state universities, AVTI's and the University of Minnesota system. Community colleges also led the percentage head count change over the five-year period covered by the report, 1974-78, with an increase of 26 per cent.

Alex Easton, Northland president, commented "it is gratifying to see Northland at the very top of this list."

Art Adventure, Art In The Park Are Discussed

Preliminary plans for Art in the Park '79 and report on a new program called "Art Adventures" were discussed at the regular meeting of the Thief River Falls community arts council recently at the Northwest regional library meeting room.

Dates of July 6 and 7 were selected for art in the park events, with Northland community college designated as the site for the event this year. Artists and craftsmen from the area who wish to display and sell their art work and craft items are again encouraged to participate and are invited to contact Carol Tranby at 819 Alice Drive in Thief River Falls for information and registration.

Working cooperatively with the community arts council on the "Art Adventures" program are the Zehlian art group, local chapter of the American association of university women and the Jaycee Women organization. Because of the wide acceptance of people to become involved in the program, it will be introduced into the third, fourth and fifth grades at local elementary schools.

Volunteers will bring paintings, drawings and sculpture from their own collections to the schools and discuss them with the students, hoping to encourage the development of creativity among the pupils as well as an appreciation of the arts.

Persons participating will visit two assigned classrooms each month and discuss the art objects brought with them to the classes. They are also asked to keep a record of the visits made and turn it in at the Northwest regional library by May 25.

Next meeting of the council will be on February 12 at 11:30 a.m. at the library meeting room.

Dr. Humphrey

Humphrey Joins Medical Staff Of Local Clinic

Newest member of the medical staff at the Falls clinic in Thief River Falls is Dr. David Humphrey who began his practice in orthopedic surgery here on January 1. He was discharged from the army in September after two years of military practice in Germany.

A native of Fargo, N.D., where he graduated from Central high school and received a BS degree from North Dakota state university with a major in chemistry, he attended two years of medical school at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks. The UND study earned for him a Bachelor of Medicine degree.

He then enrolled at Northwestern university in Chicago and earned his MD degree, taking his intership and serving four years of residency in surgery at Rush Presbyterian St. Luke's medical center in Chicago. His year of internship was in surgery, followed by a year of general surgery residency and three years of orthopedic residency.

Dr. Humphrey and his wife Sharon have moved to Thief River Falls. He enjoys hunting and fishing, corss-country skiing, collecting antiques, refinishing antique furniture and repairing and collecting old clocks.

Elementary Library Has Assist From NCC Interns

Need for assistance in the elementary library program in the Thief River Falls public school system and availability of a special program at Northland community college in Thief River Falls have created a situation of mutual benefit to two Northland students, the elementary librarian and many community elementary students.

Martin Keegan, elementary librarian, found himself alone with five libraries and hundreds of students to take care of this year when budget cuts in the local school district eliminated the positions of elementary library aides. By arranging his schedule to spend one day each week at each of the five school libraries at Washington, Northrop, Knox, Mark Twain and St. Hilaire, he ran out of time to attend to other necessary library duties.

When Northland president Dr. Alex Easton and Thief River Falls superintendent of schools Dr. William Corliss discussed the student intern program of the college, the subject of elementary library assistance was presented. A call went out at the college for students who might be interested in elementary library work.

Responding to the call were Wendy Rupprecht of Thief River Falls and Mark Koehn of Devils Lake, N.D. Both are planning on going into the field of education and were looking for an opportunity to work with young students.

According to John Steidl, Northland instructor and coordinator of the student intern program, the students earn credits for work experience in the areas of study they have selected. Mark and Wendy, for instance, each earn three credits in human services in exchange for providing two hours of satisfactory library assistance each day. The program will continue through the winter quarter and it is hoped that other students can be found to gain similar experience during the spring quarter. Mark and Wendy will work through approximately the first week in March.

As library assistants, Koehn and Rupprecht will be assisting librarian Keegan in his library classes, providing instruction to youngsters in library procedures. They will also assist with supervision, read to some of the younger groups of students, help students with book selection and other duties. It is hoped, Keegan said, that the interns will be able to take over some of his classes so that he will have time for work that has been pushed into the background this fall and early winter.

Mark and Wendy are among a dozen students enrolled in the Co-op Education in Human Services program which Steidl coordinates. Others include the following:

Lynn Sauve, Thief River Falls, Discovery Place child care center; Pam Engelstad, Thief River Falls, nursery school; Randy Bohm, Mentor, physical education assistant at Mentor school; Mike Johnson, Thief River Falls and Alan Luoto, Middle River, Pennington county sheriff's STUDENT ASSISTANCE with a worksheet on how to find books by title or author in the elementary library card catalog is provided by Northland community college students Mark Koehn and Wendy Rupprecht. Mark and Wendy are participating in an internship program through the college which gives them credits in the human services curriculum for providing the library assistance.

Briefs Filed In Suit On Indian Hunting Rights

First round of written briefs in the Red Lake boundary suit have been filed with the case expected to be taken under advisement by U.S. Judge Edward J. Devitt by the end of this month, according to an article by Jerry Doggett in the Bemidji Pioneer.

Pennington is among eight counties which have joined the suit in supporting state authority over lands in question. The suit was brought by the United States against the state of Minnesota in December of 1976, seeking a declaratory judgment restoring hunting, fishing, trapping and ricing rights within the area which comprised the Red Lake Indian reservation in 1889. The area comprises about three million acres.

U.S. Attorney Francis X. Hermann said that four initial briefs were filed by the January 2 deadline and that all parties have 20 days from that date to prepare response briefs.

In addition to the federal government as plaintiff, the state as defendant and the counties as intervening parties, the Red Lake band of Chippewa Indians is participating and has filed an initial brief as "a friend of the court," according to Hermann.

The case was presented to Judge Devitt in Minneapolis on December 1. Both sides,

Diane Kay Floberg and Tim Waterworth Wed

Miss Diane Kay Floberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Floberg of Viking, and Tim Waterworth, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Waterworth of Newfolden, exchanged marriage vows recently at an evening ceremony at the Zion Lutheran church at Viking.

Officiating at the double ring ceremony was Rev. K. David Gabrielson. Mrs. Lowell Hogberg, a friend of the bride, was the organist. She played "The Hands of Time," for the processional; "Trumpet Voluntary," as the bride was escorted to the altar by her father, and "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," for the recessional. Vocalists were Celeste Leach, a friend of the bride, who sang "The Lord's Prayer," and Mark Halvorson, a friend of the couple, who sang "My Sweet Lady," and "The Wedding Song."

Burgundy and pink carnations and roses, accented with babies' breath and greenery, graced the altar. Matching sprays trimmed the candelabra complemented by pink tapers. Pink satin bows marked the pews.

The bride wore a floor-length gown of white bridal satin completely over-laid with lace. The gown was styled with sheer lace sleeves and rounded yoke featuring a high collar and deep cuffs trimmed with ruffled lace and seed pearls. Attached sashes at the waistline created the empire-look. Creating back interest was a sheer lace train with scalloped edges. A lace and pearl trimmed cameo headpiece held her fingertip veil, edged with matching lace. She carried a cascade of two dozen pink roses with babies' breath and greenery.

Jayne Broten was the bride's personal attendant.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was her only sister, Dorene Floberg of Viking. Other attendants were Jodi Holthusen, Bethel, friend of the bride; Gail Waterworth, Newfolden, sister of the groom; and Lori Waterworth, Thief River Falls, a cousin of the bride. All wore identical floor-length gowns of pink quiana in empire styling with collars, extended shoulder lines and back ties. Topping the gowns were pink sheer shawls. Pinned in their hair, was a pink pixie carnation surrounded by babies' breath. All the attendants carried sweetheart bouquets of pink and burgundy carnations, babies' breath and greenery backed by a circle of lace.

Attired like the bridesmaids and wearing a pink crocheted shawl, was the flower girl, Stacy Anderson, Viking, a friend of the bride. The rings were carried by Michael Bring, Newfolden, a friend of the groom. Like the groomsmen, he wore a burgundy tuxedo with pink ruffled shirt, burgundy bow tie and a pink carnation boutoniere. A pink rose with babies' breath was pinned on the groom's burgundy tuxedo with long tails.

Steve Waterworth of Thief River Falls attended his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Donald Waterworth, Newfolden, a brother; Duane Floberg, Viking, a brother of the bride; and Joel Waterworth, Thief River Falls, a cousin of the groom. Serving as ushers were David Waterworth, a cousin of the groom; Jeff Sorenson, a cousin of the bride; and Bruce Bjorgaard, a friend of the groom. All are Newfolden residents.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Floberg selected an empire fashioned, green and white floral gown with long ruffled sleeves. Her corsage was of pink carnations and pink and burgundy roses. A similar corsage was worn by the groom's mother, who was attired in an off-white A-line gown tipped by a matching jacket trimmed with lace.

Honor guests were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Halverson, godparents of the bride.

A reception for 250 guests followed the ceremony. Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lull, cousins of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bjorgaard, friends of the couple.

Centering the serving table was a four-tiered wedding cake baked and decorated by Mrs. DuWayne Olson of Newfolden. Ornate pillars decorated with pink roses and green leaves, similar to the decorations on the cake, separated the tiers. Topping the second tier was a flowing water fountain. A pink satin bell with a white lace heart topped the cake.

Cutting and serving the cake were Darline Broten, a friend of the bride, and Milly Horien, aunt of the groom. The coffee was poured by Bonita Fulton, cousin of the bride, and Blanche Waterworth, aunt of the groom.

Lori Waterworth, sister-in-law of the groom, registered the guests as Bev Byklum and Kristy Knutson, friends of the bride, served the punch.

At the gift table were Kim Fulton, a cousin of the bride; Jayne Broten, a friend; Kristi Schmitke, a cousin of the groom, and Carol Waterworth, a sister of the groom. Kelli and Kinzie Anderson, friends of the bride, distributed the rice packets.

Waitresses were Sherry Shele, a cousin of the bride, Tami Bjorgaard, Diane Anderson and Susan Larson, friends of the bride.

Following a wedding trip to the Black Hills and Badlands in South Dakota and to Yellowstone National park, the couple is now at home at 1116 18½ Street South, Moorhead, where they are attending Moorhead State University and are employed part-time. Both are graduates of Marshall County Central high school, Newfolden. The groom is also a graduate of Northland Community college, Thief River Falls. Photo, Steven's Studio, Viking Appoint Worth President Of Scorpion, Inc.

Arctic Enterprises, Inc. announced Thursday, that it has named Roger Worth president of its Scorpion Industries, Inc. subsidiary based in Crosby.

Arctic acquired Scorpion — manufacturer of snowmobiles, snowmobile clothing and accessories — in March of 1978.

Worth joined Arctic in 1970, and previously served as corporate vice president, general counsel and secretary. Before that, he was vice president and general manager of Kiekhaefer Aeromarine Motors, Inc., Fond du Lac, Wis.

Worth holds mechanical engineering and law degrees from the University of Louisville.

N. Fox Named Chairman Of Heart Fund

"One of every two people who will die this year in Thief River Falls will die of cardiovascular disease. The frightening statistics are that 89 Pennington county deaths and over half of all Minnesota deaths from all causes are the result of diseases of the heart and blood vessels," noted Neal Fox, new city chairman of the 1979 annual Heart Fund campaign.

Fox's new appointment was announced by Mrs. Larry Shetler, Pennington county chairman of the Minnesota affiliate of the American Heart association.

"Heart disease is far and away America's number one killer," said Fox. "With over 17,500 Minnesotans killed last year and thousands more who have been affected, these statistics could very well have been brought home, literally, to families here. And in addition to the deaths, many will pay their share of the $28.5 billion national 1979 cost for lost output due to disability, medical care, drugs, hospitalization and rehabilitation."

File Early For Quicker Tax Refunds

Taxpayers who file their federal income tax returns early in the tax filing season will get their refunds sooner than those who file closer to the April 16 deadline, the internal revenue service says.

Due to the lower volume of returns processed in January and February, taxpayers who file during those months may expect to receive their refunds in four to five weeks, according to the IRS. Those who do not file until April may wait as long as eight weeks for their refunds.

IRS also cautioned taxpayer to double check their returns, especially the computations, before filing. Errors can delay any refund due.

Taxpayers can also save time this year by checking their tax instructions, which are keyed to lines on the form for easier reference. Instructions often can lead a taxpayer to some overlooked deductions.

Farmers May Boost Yields On Crop Acres

Farmers in Pennington county who believe their established yields of wheat, barley or corn are too low have an opportunity to bring these figures into line, according to Phillip Bergland, executive director of the Pennington county agricultural stabilization and conservation committee.

Proven yields are the actual production of the farm for the past three years. Farmers who are able to prove the yield of wheat, barley or corn only for 1978 may benefit from a provision which now allows the averaging of yields for the past three years.

"If a farmer's established wheat yield is 32 bushels per acre, for instance," Bergland said, "and he can produce evidence that the 1978 yield was 50 bushels per acre, we can average the three years to provide a higher established yield.

"Using 32 bushels as the yield for 1976 and 1977 and 50 bushels for 1978," he said, "we have a total of 114 bushels of wheat per acre for the three years. Divided by the three years of production, the average becomes 38 bushels per acre instead of the established 32 bushels.

"Deficiency payments are based on farm yields. At 1978 rates this change would have meant an additional $3.12 per acre for that farmer, multiplied by the number of acres seeded. If 1978 production was higher than the established yield we show for the farm, it might pay producers to bring that information to our office."

Bergland also noted that sign-up for participation in the wheat and feed grain program will start February 15 and end April 16. Target prices remain the same on wheat and barley at $3.40 and $2.40, respectively, with a 20 per cent set-aside on each. Corn target price is $2.20 with a 10 per cent set-aside requirement and a payment to be made for the voluntary diversion of an additional 10 per cent.

The county executive director also called attention to the January 31 deadline to file for incentive payment on 1978 marketings of wool and unshorn lambs.

Plan Seminar On Cooperation By Government

March 7 and 8 elected officials of Region I and other interested are invited to attend a seminar at the Best Western motel in Crookston designed to help local governments relate to and cope with issues of an intergovernmental nature.

Legislators believe this is an important program and have supported it with financing. MILE ONE (Minnesota Intergovernmental Learning Experience) can help local government officials gain additional insight into how intergovernmental cooperation can solve problems at all levels of government.

The MILE ONE simulation, which is part of the program, is based on data received from public officials around the state. The simulation offers a chance to get involved in making decisions from a different perspective. In the programs that have been run, people commented that they were dealing with real issues and that they enjoyed the opportunity to make decisions from another perspective. They also felt it helped them better understand the problems officials had in other units of government.

Approve Otter Tail Budget For Construction

The 1979 and five-year construction budgets for Otter Tail power company have been approved by the company's board of directors, it has been announced by Robert M. Bigwood, president of the Fergus Falls, Minnesota-based company.

About $79.9 million is scheduled to be spent in 1979 and about $298 million during the next five years, according to Bigwood.

$47.7 million of the 1979 budget is earmarked for the Coyote power plant project near Beulah, N.D., an investment commensurate with Otter Tail's 35 per cent ownership share of the plant. "Our portion of the project is budgeted for $30.9 million in 1980 and $9 million in 1981." Bigwood said.

Coyote is expected to have a net operating capability of 410,000 kilowatts when it goes on the line in 1981.

"Inflation and environmental protection have had devastating impacts on construction costs," Bigwood emphasized. "The owning partners expect to spend more than $980 per kilowatt of capacity at Coyote; but the Big Stone plant, a similar plant to Coyote which was completed in 1975, cost less than $400 per kilowatt. Higher interest costs, depreciation and other carrying costs associated with Coyote," he continued, "are the primary reasons we expect we'll have to raise our electric rates by about 30 per cent in 1981."

Other smaller but vital expenditures in the budget include $21.6 million in 1979 — nearly $100 million in the next five years — for construction of transmission and distribution facilities. Interest chargeable to projects under construction but not yet completed is expected to reach $5.2 million in 1979 and $24.3 million during the next five years. Internal combustion peaking units will require less than one-half million dollars in 1979 because the company's third unit is essentially complete. No new peaking units are contemplated in the next five years.

Zachar Plays Own Music At SCS Concert

When Steve Zachar of Thief River Falls presented a student piano recital last Wednesday at St. Cloud state university's Stewart Hall auditorium, a number of people from the Thief River Falls community were in attendance.

Zachar, a graduate of Lincoln high school who also attended Northland community college for two years, played and sang a number of songs which he had written himself. Assisting in the concert were other student musicians playing saxophone, guitar, bass guitar and drums.

The hour and one-half concert, which prompted a standing ovation from the audience, was attended by Thief River Falls residents Mrs. Edward Johnson (Steve's mother); Mrs. Pearl Sheedy (his grandmother); Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dicken; Mrs. Paula Joppru, Cindy, Randy, Dawn and Kary; Roger Vaughan; Dan Reed and Steve Muzzy. Also attending was Tony Solem of Oslo who wrote the lyrics for one of the songs presented by Steve in the concert.

A feature article in the St. Cloud State University Chronicle, student newspaper, reviewed how Zachar formed a band at the college after meeting one of the eventual band members while standing in line at school. Zachar does vocals as well as play piano for the group which includes seven other people. He and other band members write much of the music the band plays. They are reportedly in the process of releasing the band's first album.

Botany Class Students Earn Special Award

Mark Koehn, Devils Lake, N.D. and Holly Anderson, Plummer, students at Northland community college and members of Dr. Charles Samuelson's botany class, were recipients of the third annual "Green Thumb" award at the end of fall quarter.

Mark and Holly received their awards because they raised the best plants of all the potted garden beans that had been started as a class project on September 15. These potted beans were taken home from school and grown under each student's care until November 15 when the plants were returned to the classroom for the contest.

Dr. Samuelson's instructions to the class at the start of the project were to take the plants home and give them plenty of tender loving care. The students were advised to give their plants names, talk to them and do anything that would make the plant respond to the new environment.

When the plants were returned to the class, each of the 14 participants was given a chance to explain how he or she cared for the plants. Because the plants grown by Holly and Mark had so much in common, a tie was declared.

Koehn, a graduate of Devils Lake high school, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Koehn of Devils Lake, N.D. Miss Anderson, a graduate of Pershing high school, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erling Anderson of Plummer. Both are freshmen at Northland.

Briefs Filed In Suit On Indian Hunting Rights

said Hermann, made their presentations through documents "with no live testimony presented."

Judge Devitt at that time set the briefing schedule with the last responsive briefs to be filed by January 22. The case, said Hermann, will then be taken under advisement by the court.

Hermann said the briefs in the case were "massive" and "voluminous," with the counties' brief totaling more than 140 pages.

The suit claims that the Red Lake Indians did not give up their hunting, fishing, trapping and ricing rights under the 1889 federal law that ceded the land to the federal government.

If the suit is successful, it would remove state jurisdiction over those rights in an area that includes all or portions of nine counties, running roughly from Lake of the Woods to Thief River Falls to Alida in Clearwater county, then northwesterly across Beltrami county to the Rainy river in Koochiching county.

The eight counties that have joined the suit are represented by Tom D. Tobin, a Winner, S.D., attorney.

CAR TELEPHONE

The Wikstrom Telephone Company, Inc. is planning to install mobile telephone service that will cover the area of Kittson, central and eastern Marshall, Roseau, Lake of the Woods, and Pennington counties. This system will be UHF, as all VH channels are used. The service that we install will cover the area as stated above, plus any other area offering UHF. The UHF systems will be expanded over the country in the next few years, as the VH channels are all filled. Before a system can be installed, we have to obtain an FCC license and approval of rates from the Minnesota Public Service Commission. Before these can be obtained, it is required that we have signed up enough users to support the system. Anyone interested in mobile telephone service, contact the Wikstrom Telephone Co., Inc., at Karlstad, Minnesota, 436-2121.

Sincerely,
Wikstrom Telephone Co., Inc.

DFL Criticizes Gov. Quie For Closed Doors

DFL chairman Rick Scott states that Alternate oil pipeline routings are public issues that must be discussed in public. He criticizes Governor Al Quie for holding these discussions "behind the newly closed doors of the Quie administration.

"I can't think of an issue more critical to the lives, health and future job security of all Minnesotans than our future energy supply," Scott said. "Key to the energy supply is oil availability, and that availability may well depend on the Northern Tier pipeline siting decision. Already, Governor Quie has held two closed meetings in which the pipeline was discussed — and no open ones. The Quie vs. Openness record now stands 2 to 0, with no prospect of improvement in sight.

"The public will have to live with administrative decisions on pipeline routing, yet Mr. Quie is locking the public out of key meetings leading to his administrative decision. Even while he promises an open administration, Governor Quie slams shut the open doors of Governor Perpich. The recent DFL administrations have shown that open meetings are possible. Minnesotans should demand the same open government from our new Republican governor that they willingly received from his DFL predecessors."

Adult Education Classes Start January 29th

Free classes for adults who want to study for the high school diploma exam or who want to improve reading, spelling and math skills will begin in Thief River Falls the week of January 29.

These classes are called ABE-GED classes. The letters stand for adult basic education and general education development. Classes are entirely free to any out-of-school adult.

Classes generally meet two evenings a week from 7 to 9 p.m. and are held at the area vocational-technical institute in Thief River Falls. Any adult can join simply by showing up for a scheduled session.

Classes are informal and friendly. Each student starts at his-her own level and works invidually or in small groups, according to Dr. Fred Rohde, regional director of the Northwest Minnesota educational cooperative service unit.

The ABE class gives special instruction in reading and provides a review of fractions, decimals and per cents for students who need to learn or relearn these skills.

The GED classes are particularly designed to help adults who may not have graduated from high school pass the high school equivalency test and get their high school equivalency certificate diploma. GED classes will use television to help teach necessary skills. These T.V. cassettes are interesting and helpful, Dr. Rohde said.

In addition to GED and ABE classes, tutoring for low level readers is available through the Minnesota literacy council. There are several volunteer Laubach tutors in this area who teach free of charge on a one to one basis.

For further information call the Northwest educational cooperative service unit at 681-2700 (ext. 280) or the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute at 681-5424 (ext. 30).

Send your name, address and phone number to Northwest Educational Cooperative Service Unit, P.O. Box 160, Thief River Falls, Minnesota 56701 to be enrolled in the ABE-GED class.

Job Service Is Agency For New Vets Program

Veterans readjustment appointment (VRA) is a means by which federal agencies may noncompetitively hire eligible and qualified Vietnam era veterans for jobs at federal grades one through seven and, after two years of satisfactory employment, convert them to career conditional appointees in the competitive federal service, according to Jerry Okland of the Thief River Falls job service office.

Okland listed eligibility requirements as follows:

All VRA eligibles must:

(1) Have served more than 180 days (except for disabled vets) military active duty — 6-months reservist or National Guard trainees are excluded from VRA appointments;

(2) Have served at least one day between August 5, 1964 and May 6, 1975;

(3) Have (except for service-disabled Vietnam era vets) completed no more than 14 years of education;

(4) Been separated with other than a dishonorable discharge (unless dishonorable discharge was later upgraded); and

(5) Agree to participate in a one-year training or education program which could include any combination of the following: Planned on the job training, classroom training, etc.

Any permanent federal position at grades 1-7 may be filled by a qualified and eligible VRA appointee. These include, but are not limited to, professional, laboring, scientific, clerical, technical, trade and crafts positions.

For further information contact Jerry Okland at the Thief River Falls Job Service office, 681-1100.

1979 Plans Approved By Health Agency

An area wide health systems plan and an annual implementation plan were approved and adopted by the board of directors of the Agassiz Health Systems Agency at its December 21 board meeting. The plans were available in draft forms subsequent to initial board approval on October 26 and were then subject to public review and comment at a public hearing held on November 30.

Comments received were reviewed by the board and incorporated into the plans before the final December adoption. The published plans will be available to the public on January 17 at county libraries; Headwaters regional development commission, Box 584, Bemidji; Northwest regional development commission, 425 Woodland Avenue, Crookston; Red River resource conservation district, Box 633, Grafton, N.D.; North Central resource conservation and development, 224 W. 4th, Devils Lake, N.D.; and at the Agassiz offices.

Under public law 93-641 the Agassiz health systems agency, a private, non-profit corporation, is responsible for comprehensive health planning activities throughout 22 counties in northeast North Dakota and northwest Minnesota. The agency is governed by an elected, volunteer board of directors, the majority of which are consumers.

The health systems plan attempts to describe and analyze the health status of area residents and the health care delivery system and to develop goals for affecting improvements in those areas. Priority goals for 1979-80 which resulted from the agency's planning effort concern the development of federally certified home health agencies in selected counties; lowering of the infant mortality rate; development of one coordinated perinatal high risk care service system; and an improvement in the utilization rates of area hospitals and a reduction in the number of underutilized general acute care hospital beds. The annual implementation plan addresses these priority goals and defines strategies for their achievement.

If more information relative to current health planning is desired, contact the Agassiz Health Systems Agency at 124 DeMers Avenue, East Grand Forks, MN 56721, 218-773-2471.

Microviewer Program Seeks Participants

International trade representatives with the Minnesota department of economic development are seeking more participants in the Minnesota Products Microviewer program, set up to increase foreign export sales and distribution of Minnesota made products. Hydra-Mac, Inc. is presently participating in this program.

According to Hank Todd, acting commissioner, department representatives are planning trips to Europe and the Far East this spring where they will set up microviewer exhibits in the U.S. trade centers.

At the exhibits, sales representatives interested in products made in Minnesota view microfilmed sales literature projected on a 3M microviewer screen. With an internal copying device, they can receive a full-sized copy of any product information shown. Since the program began in 1974, numerous Minnesota companies have established contacts with foreign buyers and distributors in prime market areas.

Firms interested in taking advantage of this free promotional service are asked to call 612-296-5011, or write the Department of Economic Development, 480 Cedar st., St. Paul 55101.

EPA Program Helps Local Governments

Midwest office of the U.S. environmental protection agency is announcing a newly established program that will provide technical assistance to state and local governments to deal with solid waste management problems.

Program is part of a national effort to provide information on and improve methods of solid waste handling. Its several dimensions can be tailored to a community's needs.

For instance, a city is considering a recycling program as an answer to its disposal problems. Information may be needed on whether or not the recycled material produced would be locally marketable.

Or, a township may have an open dump that is filling up to its capacity and they want to create a sanitary landfill to satisfy new federal regulations. A geologically sound site would be needed that wouldn't affect the community's winter supply.

EPA can provide information and assistance to these communities and others that are working to solve their solid waste problems. For a community to be eligible, EPA must determine that there is a real need, and that technical assistance would be a substantial help to the community.

One method EPA may use is a new program called Peer-Matching. This program allows public officials to meet with others from across the country who have successfully handled the same problems.

EPA's own specialists, supplemented by a private consulting firm, also are available to provide technical, marketing and financial expertise.

Any state, county or other local governmental agency may apply for assistance. For further information contact, Mr. Robert L. Duprey, Regional Technical Assistance Panels, U.S. EPA, Region V, 230 S. Dearborn street, Chicago, Illinois 60604.

20 Counties To Participate In D-day Campaign

Local health officials in 20 Minnesota counties are signing people up for Minnesota D-Day this year. Annual anti-smoking event is set for January 25.

Local sign-up effort is being coordinated through the Minnesota department of health. Official D-Day pledge sheets are available to the public through local community health services and public health nursing agencies in the participating counties.

Individuals who participate in the five-year-old D-Day observance must pledge in advance to stop smoking for that entire day, but D-Day organizers are hoping that the event will have a lasting impact on at least some people. "This isn't just a one shot thing," said D-Day committee member Buddy Ferguson. "We want to see people stop smoking permanently. We want them to get involved with stop-smoking clinics, and other programs designed to help them achieve that goal. Our slogan this year is 'This time, quit for good.' "

Signing an official pledge sheet is an important part of D-Day according to Ferguson. "If you publicly pledge to quit, you're going to have an extra incentive to actually do it," he noted. "And the pledge sheets can be used to measure the effectiveness of D-Day. Last year we did a survey of D-Day participants four months later, and 15 per cent of them still weren't smoking."

This year marks the first time local health agencies have participated in a coordinated D-Day sign-up campaign. "Better than 20 per cent of the counties in Minnesota are involved in this," said Ferguson, "and we think that's excellent for the first time out." Participating counties are Marshall, Kittson, Crow Wing, Redwood, Clearwater, Pope, Houston, Blue Earth, Kandiyohi, Douglas, Grant, Stevens, Traverse, Nobles, Rock, Fillmore, Becker, Mahnomen, Norman and Carver.

Governor To Address MSBA Convention

Minnesota school boards association (MSBA) holds its 58th annual convention today through Wednesday in the Minneapolis auditorium and Leamington hotel. Attending from Thief River Falls school board will be Larry McDowell, Robert Sorvig and Harry Sjulson.

Governor Al Quie is the keynote speaker and addressed the opening session on Monday at 10:30 a.m.

Major addresses will be given by Dr. Erling Johnson, president, Minnesota state board of education; Dr. Margaret Buvinger, Enid, Okla. attorney and president of the National school boards association; Jonathan Howe, Chicago attorney and president of the Illinois association of school boards; and W.R. Bryan, executive director of community services for the Goodyear Tire & Rubber company.

Over 3,000 school board members, superintendents and school business officials are expected to be in attendance for the three days of in-service training. Four general sessions and over 30 workshops are scheduled along with one of the largest educational exhibits in the nation.

MSBA's 1979 legislative positions will be established on Wednesday during the association's annual business meeting. Delegates will consider some 40 resolutions and review the association bylaws.

MSBA is the eighth oldest school boards association in the nation. Founded in 1920, membership in the non-profit corporation is voluntary and all 436 public school districts in Minnesota belong to the association.

Hold Hearing On Termination Of Utilities

Minnesota public service commission has scheduled a hearing on January 24 at 2 p.m. at the Fergus Falls United States post office, regarding the public service commission order to show cause to prohibit regulated gas and electric companies from shutting off service during the 1978-1979 winter heating season.

"Ottertail power company customers as individuals or as representatives of organizations are most welcome to have their opinions heard on this important matter" stated public service commission chairman Richard Parish.

On December 4, 1978, the public service commission issued its order to show cause prohibiting winter season gas and electric shut-offs. Since then 17 of the 18 regulated gas and electric companies serving Minnesota customers have filed temporary tariffs stating they will not shut off service for non-payment in the 1978-1979 winter heating season. Ottertail power company is the only regulated gas or electric to contest this matter.

This public service commission order to show cause does not affect electric cooperatives and municipal electric service because the Minnesota public service Commission does not have regulatory authority over these utility providers in the state of Minnesota.

March Of Dimes Marathon Set Near Brainerd

On February 2, 3 and 4 over 2,000 Minnesota snowmobilers and 35 national and local celebrities will converge on Cragun's resort near Brainerd for the 7th annual Scorpion-March of Dimes celebrity marathon.

According to Jim Engen, vice president of marketing for Scorpion, "We're happy and proud to be associated with such an organization as the March of Dimes. Not only because of the support they have given snowmobiling throughout the state, but for the outstanding work they do in the state to combat birth defects."

Scorpion will pay for room and board for two representatives from each club which holds a March of Dimes snowmobile marathon as well as the accommodations for the celebrities.

Last year over $120,000 was raised in Minnesota to combat the number one crippler of children — birth defects.

School Lunch Meeting Set At Detroit

U.S. department of agriculture (USDA) has selected Detroit, Mich., as one of three sites nationwide where the department will hold a public meeting concerning the sale of competitive foods during the school lunch period.

According to Monroe Woods, regional administrator of the USDA's food and nutrition service which is responsible for administering the school lunch and school breakfast programs, the meeting is being held to gather public suggestions on what foods or food groups should go into the proposal relative to the sale of competitive foods. These foods include candy, soda water, frozen desserts and chewing gum in competition with the "type a lunch" required in the national school lunch program.

Public meeting will be held on February 6, 1979, in the Henry Ford hospital's Robin C. Buerki auditorium, which is located on the main floor of the hospital. Meeting will begin at 9 a.m., at the hospital which is located at 2799 west Grand boulevard. Woods indicates the meeting will focus on numerous subjects including health, nutrition education and the local administration of, and impact on, the banning of competitive foods from sale until after the last school lunch period.

Persons wanting to testify at the Detroit, Mich., meeting should contact Frank Johnson at 536 south Clark, room 966, Chicago, Illinois (312) 353-1044; or Bill Hairston at (313) 226-4930.

Those who cannot attend the public meeting but wishing to comment may do so by writing Margaret Glavin, SPD, FNS, USDA, Washington, D.C., 20251, by February 15.

Metropolitan Unemployment Rate Is 2.9%

Unemployment rate in the Minneapolis-St. Paul metropolitan area for November was 2.9 per cent, down seven-tenths of a per cent from November a year ago. It is the lowest November rate since the present method of keeping statistics was initiated in 1970, acting commissioner Marijo Olson of the Minnesota department of economic security reported recently.

Record November rate compares with the October rate of 2.6 per cent, which was also the lowest monthly rate in eight years. Statewide unemployment rate for November was 3.5 per cent; the comparable national rate was 5.5 per cent.

Increase in the unemployment rate from October to November results from seasonal employment cutbacks in construction and agricultural industries.

Since November a year ago, the number of persons employed has increased 30,800 while the number of unemployed has decreased 6,600.

Civilian labor force in the metropolitan area in November was 1,070,800. This is the number of persons 16 years of age and older who are seeking work and are either employed or unemployed. Number employed in November was 1,040,000; the number unemployed, 30,800.

In November a year ago, the metropolitan civilian labor force was 1,046,600; the number of employed, 1,009,200; the number of unemployed, 37,400.

Metropolitan civilian labor force in October of this year was 1,072,500; the number of employed, 1,044,500; the number of unemployed, 27,900.

UMC Ag-Arama Scheduled For January 19-20

Usually subdued winter scene at the University of Minnesota — Crookston (UMC), will erupt briefly January 19-20 as students vie for honors in the college's fourth annual Ag-Arama.

Ag-Arama is a student-run, fun, frolic and competitive activity sponsored by UMC's agriculture division. While only UMC students are allowed to compete for awards in the more than 50 events, students' parents, alumni and the general public are invited to watch the fun free of charge.

Most of the activities, including an indoor picnic, will be staged in the Red River Valley winter shows building in Crookston.

"Event has a great deal in common with a county fair," notes Tom Hruby, faculty chairman of Ag-Arama. "It gives students a chance to get together and test their strength and skills against each other in friendly competition."

Ag-Arama's main emphasis is on student participation and putting learned skills to use. Livestock showmanship, crop judging and farm management problem solving, to name a few, test student excellence.

Other events are just for fun. Tobacco spitting, match splitting and people pulling challenge more baskic skills. Each of UMC's seven agricultural departments is represented in some sort of serious or downright silly activity.

Following the indoor picnic Saturday afternoon is the evening program, featuring the crowning of Ms. Ag-Arama. She is chosen from sophomore students majoring in agriculture as the one best demonstrating the goals of the division and college. She and her court host the contest finals and present awards to the winners.

Traditional climax of Ag-Arama is the presesentation of the True Grti award. This is presented in honor of Todd Opsahl, a student at UMC in 1973-74 who participated enthusiastically in agriculture division activities while quietly suffering from terminal leukemia.

True Grit award goes to the student who best demonstrates Todd Opsahl's spirit and involvement.

Lemons In Congress

Following editorial is from the Wadena Pioneer Journal:

The Federal Trade commission took five years to conduct a study and compile a 564-page report on used cars. Conclusion? Some used car dealers cheat their customers. Solution? Federal intervention. Pass a law and let the FTC enforce it. Make used car dealers put a sticker on each vehicle disclosing its condition.

Now, we do not for a moment (or 5,000 miles, whichever comes first) deny that the reputation of used car dealers has been sullied by the cheating of some of them. The sharpsters in the business are the heirs to the American folk tradition of trading horses.

Nor do we minimize the problem. Some used car buyers, the gullible and perhaps the poorest, are being ripped off. But we suspect that the FTC's proposed cure would be worse than the disease. It is another example of the tendency to try to solve every problem by passing a law and expanding the bureaucracy.

If anyone still believes that all problems, from lemon cars to poverty on earth, can be solved by Washington throwing money and regulations at them, he has somehow been isolated from the newspapers and newscasts.

No, the federal government officials have sold the public at least as many lemons as the nation's used car dealers. Would you buy a used car from Congressman Diggs or Congressman Flood or any bureaucrat from HUD, HEW or OSHA?

But, in this FTC proposal, the public may be able to strike a compromise. Maybe we could insist that Congress adopt the same standards for itself that it sets for the dealers. If a Congressman is caught cheating, he would have to pay back wages he has drawn and give up his pension rights.

We bounced the idea off a couple of local used car dealers and they said, "Sure, we'd go along with that."

Appointed Sheriffs?

Following editorial is from the Lake Region Press at Alexandria:

It's not surprising to hear that the Minnesota State Sheriffs Association plans to lobby state legislators in hopes that a new law will be enacted that would require a sheriff's deputy to take a leave of absence if the deputy runs against his boss. Some 16 incumbents were defeated at the polls last November. . .with several deputies listed among the winners. Stating that a law requiring a deputy to take an unpaid leave of absence if he decides to run for sheriff "is needed for maintaining the solidarity of the office during an election campaign," Chisago County Sheriff Floyd Pinotti urged a change. He is chairman of the sheriffs' association legislative committee. The purpose of the law, sheriffs pointed out at a recent state convention in Rochester, would not be to prevent deputies from challenging their bosses, but to maintain morale and discipline in the departments during political campaigns.

As we see it, any morale or discipline problems within a sheriff's department would tend to surface long before a political campaign started. Indeed, chances are it would be because of morale and discipline problems that a sheriff would be challenged by a deputy in the first place.

Protecting incumbent sheriffs from deputies by enacting state laws making it prohibitive for potential challengers to seek office is a good way to help the "ins" keep the "outs" out. (Show me a deputy who can afford to take an unpaid leave of absence and I'll show you someone who doesn't need a job).

We have long felt that a sheriff should not be an elected position anyway. After being elected, the sheriff turns his destiny over to the county commissioners. The State of Minnesota sets a minimum of $7,000 salary for elected sheriffs in counties with a population between 20,000 and 30,000 which is the category Douglas county finds itself.

Present state law says the county commissioners must establish the budget for the sheriff's department; determine the number of permanent deputies and determine their salaries. The county commissioners are the people who say how much the county sheriff is going to make a year. They tell him how much he can spend, they tell him how many deputies he can have and how much they get paid.

We contend that if the county commissioners have the authority to do all that. . .they should also have the authority in hiring the man for the job. Police chiefs are hired and not elected. Why should sheriffs be placed in a position of weighing their every action by thinking of reelection. The mayors and city councils run their own law enforcement personnel. It should be no different at the county level.

So, several sheriffs lost their jobs to deputies last fall. Why is that so bad? We can understand the jitters being experienced by those sheriffs who didn't lose and why they're seeking protection. If they are saying the voters didn't know what they were doing by electing the deputies. . . then all the more reason they should favor the appointment procedure.

We can see the value of electing the county commissioners. That's our handle to grab and our means of local control. They set the budget, spend the money, establish policy, and regulate the rules. Getting the right people for the right jobs in county government is best handled by the commissioners. While there are also reasons why the county treasurer, auditors and other offices could be appointed as well, the idea of taking the chief county law enforcement officer out of the political arena seems long overdue.

We know the state sheriffs' association is on record opposing the appointment route. However, in our opinion, state legislators would only be opening more wounds of dissension if they were to adopt the kind of law the sheriffs are proposing. Arguments of turning county law enforcement into a so-called "police state" by taking it out of the hands of the electorate have long been used to defend the present system. A woeful argument at best.

If a new law is needed to maintain morale and discipline in the sheriff departments during political campaigns, as the state sheriffs are suggesting, then lets eliminate the political campaigns!

It's A Start

Following editorial is from the Redfield (S.D.) Press:

A more efficient federal government seems a step closer with congressional action recently on the civil service reform plan. This will affect far more than 2.8 million U.S. Workers. With government reaching into our lives on a daily basis, any move to make the machinery work smoothly benefits us all.

The plan shaped by the U.S. House and Senate cracks, for the first time, the near-total job security that isolates federal employees from reality and helps accumulate deadwood. Under the current arrangement, it's almost impossible to fire a federal worker. "The sad fact is," President Carter said in urging Congress to change the rules "that it is easier to promote and transfer incompetent employees than to get rid of them." This helps perpetuate the image of the U.S. bureaucrat as "underworked, overpaid and insulated from the consequences of incompetence," the President added.

What the new civil service plan does is give federal executives much more elbow room in firing and demoting, while still preserving legitimate employee rights, including protection for "whistle-blowers" who buck the system. It would encourage excellence among executives themselves by creating a "senior executive service" in which high-ranking officials could swap job security for higher pay based on performance. And it would break up the Civil Service Commission into two bodies, one promoting efficiency and the other safe-guarding employee rights. Handling both chores has often led to the former being sacrificed for the latter.

So the stage has been set for progress in achieving a tighter, more streamlined and more intelligent federal bureaucracy. We still may not like some of the things government is doing for us (or to us), but it will help to feel there are people in Washington who at least know what they are doing.

Borrowed Nonsense:

"I suppose," sighed the husband, "that because the next door neighbor has a hat just like yours, you'll have to buy another one."

"Well," rationalized his wife, "it would be cheaper than moving."

How hard it is for a rich man to enter heaven concerns us less than how hard it is for a poor man to remain on earth.

"Just think," said the suitor, "tomorrow is your birthday, darling, and a year ago I didn't even know you . . ."

"Let's not discuss our past," the girl replied, "let's talk about my present."

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Sports fans invent countless ways to vent their anger and dis-esteem, from bopping fielders with beer cans to flying a banner over the stadium from a small airplane.

Frustrated football fans of the New York Giants hired the airplane and equipped it with a banner reading: Fifteen years of lousy football and we've had enough.

One of the outlets not chosen is membership in FANS, a brainchild of Ralph Nader. You may recall that FANS, whose initials stand for "Fight to Advance the Nation's Sports," was formed in 1977 to mold the nation's sports lovers into a consumers' rights organization, providing protection against fraud, deceit, ticket gouging and other practices frowned upon by Mr. Nader and millions of other Americans.

But not much happened. So it came as little surprise a few months ago when the FANS office in Washington was quietly closed for lack of funds to keep the staff and pay office expenses. It was announced that the remnants would be shifted to San Francisco and a new attempt made to "build it up from the bottom".

The development is worth more than an item on the sports pages because it graphically illustrates the fundamental weakness of the professional consumerist movement in this country.

If the largest television audience to watch a U.S. sports event is a fair indication, there must be at least 75 million sports fans — the number who watched the seventh game of the 1975 World Series. But there were only 1,500 members in FANS when it closed up shop in the Nation's Capital.

Sports fans are consumers, and the nation's 200 million plus consumers have demonstrated that no one single person or group speaks for them. After trying for almost a decade, consumer activists found this out when the 95th Congress rejected the Nader proposal for a so-called consumer protection agency in Washington, manned chiefly by lawyers. The House of Representatives, which three times before had approved such a proposal, turned it down, and it was not brought up in the Senate, despite White House lobbying.

Mr. Nader, whose rise to fame rests on a book, "Unsafe at Any Speed," published in 1965 and since then disproved in key respects, never hesitates to treat his pet schemes and the public interest as one and the same. Perhaps it is an honest mistake. But one critic has noted that Mr. Nader's "promiscuous use of the phrase raises serious moral questions with which Mr. Nader has never grappled."

What the Naders of this world forget is that the American public rejects self-proclaimed leaders and their causes and with good reason. We already have in place democratic processes that enable us to choose our legitimate representatives to carry out our wishes. There are 535 members of Congress paid to represent the tax payers and the consumer interest. They are elected by a constituency that has the right to remove them from office if they fail to do the job.

The single most important problem facing consumers in this country today is inflation. To control inflation substantial change must be made in the tax and spending policies of the federal, state and local governments. This does not mean that business and organized labor are without sin. But the major sources of the problem are government spending and government regulation.

Mr Nader is part of the problem. He has been one of the leading advocates of policies calling for greater government intervention and regulation of people's lives, particularly through regulation of business.

But Americans increasingly are revealing that they are against the kind of solutions Mr. Nader prescribes, as shown by Proposition 13 and similar tax-spending protests in the recent midterm elections.

Scandinavian Students Seek Host Families

American host families are being sought for 500 Scandinavian high school students from Sweden, Norway, Demark and Finland for the school year 1979-80, in a program sponsored by the American Scandinavian student exchange (ASSE).

Interested families in this area should contact Warren Clague, 2800 Tanager's Lane, Excelsior, Minnesota 55331. Telephone number is 612-474-7208.

Letters should contain the writer's phone number.

The students, age 16 and 17, will arrive in the United States in late August 1979, attend the local high school, and return home in late June, 1980. The students, all fluent in English, have been screened by their school representatives in Scandinavia and have pocket money and medical insurance. American families with small children are welcome to participate in this program.

ASSE is also seeking American students, age 16 and 18, who would like to spend a high school year with a Scandinavian family or participate in a five-week family stay in the summer of 1979.

Persons interested in either of these programs should contact the person listed above immediately.

ASSE is the official Swedish high school exchange program in the United State operating under the auspices of the Swedish board of education. Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

Your editorial entitled "The Debt Grows" which appeared in the January 1, 1979 issue of the TRF Times is a good example of the half-truth nature of much of the economic information reported by the press.

Had you reported additional information the growth of the public debt would look very different. Below is an illustration listed in the order of year, federal debt, gross national product (national income) and debt as a per cent of GNP. (Figures stated in billions).

1940, 51, 99.9, 51.0; 1945, 260, 212.3, 122.4; 1950, 257, 286.2, 89.7; 1955, 274, 399.3, 68.6; 1960, 291, 506, 57.5; 1965, 323, 688.1, 46.9; 1970, 383, 982.4, 38.9; 1975, 544, 1,528.8, 35.5.

Also listed below are the year, per capita income, per capita public debt, per capita public debt as a per cent of per capita income.

1940, 757, 325, 42.9; 1945, 1,517, 1,849, 121.8; 1950, 1,889, 1,688, 89.4; 1955, 2,416, 1,651, 68.3; 1960, 2,801, 1,572, 56.1; 1965, 3,541, 1,616, 45.6; 1970, 4,795, 1,807, 37.6; 1975, 7,016, 2,496, 35.5.

As you can see the current debt position in relation to income is very favorable, in fact, the most favorable in three decades. The debt as a per cent of the income in 1975 is only 35.5 per cent, while in all other years the per cent was higher. The same is true for per capita debt.

Another factor concerning the public debt is that much of the debt is internal, that is, we owe it to ourselves. Take for example a family of four that has $1,000. The son asks for and receives a loan of $500 from the father. The daughter asks for and receives a $250 loan. After the loan action, the family has a debt of $750 but no reduction in wealth. Their debt is internal; they owe it to themselves.

Let's carry the example one more step by saying that the mother receives a $500 loan from the son. Now the total debt is $1,250 (son's loan $500, daughter's loan $250 and the mother's loan $500). Will the family go into bankruptcy because their debt is now $1,250 or $250 more than their wealth of $1,000? Of course not; they owe themselves. They still have the $1,000 in wealth and they will still have the $1,000 if all loans were to be repaid.

There are other important factors to consider concerning the debt and how it influences our economic system, but the limitation of space does not allow their inclusion here.

I might suggest that in the future we become more concerned about the lack of economic knowledge displayed by many rather than spreading half-truths which are easily misunderstood.

Sincerely,
-s-Allen Nichols

List Events For Saint Paul Winter Carnival

"Frosty Fascination" is the theme for the 1979 Saint Paul winter carnival, which will celebrate its 93rd anniversary in Minnesota's capital city on the Mississippi, January 26 through February 4.

Legend has it that the winter carnival was envisioned when Boreas, King of the Winds, proclaimed St. Paul the capital of his demain. In elaborate costume, surrounded by pageantry, this monarch of ice and snow reigns each year throughout the festivities with his Queen of Snows. His trouble-making arch rival, Vulcanus, King of Fire, symbolizes the coming of spring.

Highlighting the 1979 carnival will be a giant snow slide sponsored by the Saint Paul companies and the Toro company, to be erected in St. Paul's Highland park. Slide will be adorned with a snow sculpture.

Among the 90-plus events scheduled for the annual celebration of ice and snow are 12 new attractions, including a Minnesota Patchwork exhibit, Spades tournament, Winter Fantasy National Quilt show, Scrabble players tournament, two snow sculpturing contests, Sno-Tona II snowmobile race, Payne Reliever disco dance contest, U.S.V.B.A. volleyball tournament, Women's Slo-Pitch on Ice tournament, an amateur photo contest, and a queen candidate's "Get Acquainted" luncheon.

Forthcoming festival will also feature the 14th annual International 500 snowmobile race covering some 500-plus miles between Winnipeg, Manitoba and St. Paul the preceding week, signaling the official opening of carnival. This 14th annual marathon will feature hundreds of snowmobile drivers from the Unived States and Canada, competing for fame, trophies, and their share of an estimated $45,000 in cash and awards. First prize is $12,000, with Kawasaki offering $10,000 in contingency money in the top three finish places. Registration and rules are available through the St. Paul winter carnival offices, Bremer building, 98 east 7th street, 55101.

Broadwell In SJU Freshman Colloquium

Brian Broadwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Broadwell of Thief River Falls, has recently completed the first semester of the freshman colloquium at St. John's university.

Freshman colloquium is a required St. John's program stressing the development of communications skills — writing, reading and discussion.

"Colloquium intends to inspire the student with a conviction of the importance of communication of ideas and with enthusiasm for the subject being studied," notes Robert Spaeth, colloquium director.

Colloquia are limited in size to 15 students in order to allow for close contact of instructor and students and to maximize opportunity for the student's academic growth.

St. John's is a private liberal arts college for men situated on a campus of woodland and lakes about 75 miles northwest of the Twin Cities.

DNR Discussing Roseau River, Red Lake WMA

Department of Natural Resources is asking the public to contribute ideas for the future management of two major wildlife management areas in northern Minnesota.

A public meeting will be held in Baudette on Feb. 6 to hear views on management of the 417,000 acre Red Lake wildlife management area. The meeting will start at 7:30 p.m. in the county courthouse.

Under state law the DNR's fish and wildlife division is required to prepare 10 year plans for the management of its largest wildlife areas.

Roseau River WMA comprises 61,333 acres in northwestern Roseau county and is noted chiefly for hunting of geese and other waterfowl.

Red Lake WMA is popular for deer and grouse hunting.

Wildlife officials emphasized the the purpose of the meeting is to obtain the public's views before the management plans are prepared.

Written comments will also be accepted at the meeting, or they may be sent to the Department of Natural Resources, Section of Wildlife (Planning Team) Box 7 Centennial Building, 658 Cedar Street, St. Paul, 55155.

National Wildlife Week Scheduled March 18-24

"Conserve Our Wildlife" will be the theme for the 1979 observance of national wildlife week, March 18 through 24.

More than 13 million school children, teachers and conservation-minded citizens are expected to participate in the 42nd annual observance of the week — first proclaimed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1938 as wildlife restoration week.

A cougar, poised to spring from a mountain crag, is this year's poster animal. More than 400,000 copies of the cougar poster, and another 200,000 copies of a second poster, bearing photographs of 16 species of wildlife, are being distributed to schools and conservation groups in all 50 states, Guam, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

Three hundred thousand education kits, containing posters, badges and activity booklets are being mailed to teachers. In addition, 55,000 smaller kits are going directly to children — throughout the country, with letters urging them to spread the conservation message.

"This year we want to emphasize the meaning of conservation," said NWF president Dr. Fred R. Schoggin, a Dry Ridge, Ky., physician. "Conservation means planning for the future, knowing the needs of people and wildlife, and working to make sure those needs are met. It means using our natural resources wisely."

The cougar, photographed for the national wildlife week poster by John S. Flannery of Hyde Park, Utah, is an excellent example of why we must learn the needs of animals, and plan for their future, Scroggin pointed out.

Once the most widely distributed land mammal in the western hemisphere, the cougar was the target of "pest" control for nearly two centuries. Until recently, a number of states enouraged the killing of cougars by paying bounties.

Today, there are only about 16,000 cougars in the western portions of the U.S. and Canada. Two subspecies, the Florida panther and the Eastern cougar are endangered and protected according to wildlife management principles.

Fortunately, most states have discontinued bounty payments, and in many states the cougar is managed as a game animal which can be hunted, but only under conditions restricting the number taken. Meanwhile, biologists are conducting research on the cougar to improve and expand conservation efforts.

On the reverse of the NWF cougar poster is an illustrated explanation of how conservation can help the cougar and other wildlife, with "comeback" stories of how the beaver, pronghorn, and trumpeter swan, once in danger of extinction, were rescued by wildlife management and research.

Also available to participating groups this year is a color slide show with printed guide and script explaining how sound management can help the cougar and other wildlife by protecting their habitats.

"Wildlife management based on scientific research is essential is we are to have healthy wildlife populations," explained Scroggin. "Professional wildlife managers are best equipped to solve the biggest problem facing wildlife — the loss of habitat, he said. "But all of us can help. Look around where you live, talk to officials, see what you can do to save habitat. Become informed. Give your support to measures preserving habitat and resist construction projects that needlessly invade wildlife haunts — projects that if needed, could just as well be built elsewhere."

"If just one more person learns the importance of wildlife habitat to man's and nature's well-being," said Scroggin, "then wildlife week will be a success."

FWS Restoration Programs Issue Impact Findings

A final environmental impact statement has been issued on two federal grant programs designed to strengthen state efforts to manage and restore game and nongame animals and fish, the Interior Department's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has announced. The draft version of the statement was published for public comment on June 30, 1978, and was the subject of a public hearing in August.

The statement examines the programs authorized by two public laws — the federal aid in sport fish resotration act and the federal aid in wildlife restoration act. It considers the impacts on populations of big and small game, migratory game birds, sport fish, nongame fish and wildlife, threatened and engangered species and the related impacts on land, air, and water quality, soils and economic conditions. The statement also discusses six alternatives to the current programs, all of which would alter the degree of federal funding or control.

In fiscal year 1978, $87.2 million was made available to finance approved state projects for acquiring or improving suitable habitat, research, and restoration and management of fish and wildlife. These federal funds come from excise taxes on firearms, ammunition, archery equipment, fishing rods and certain other fishing tackle. The funds are apportioned to each state according to its land area and the numbers of hunting and fishing license holders. In addition, a certain portion of funds is distributed on the basis of population, and may be used by the states for hunter education programs.

Projects to be funded are selected by the state, but must be approved by the Fish and Wildlife Service. If approved, the state is reimbursed for up to 75 per cent of the project costs.

Copies of the statement are available at the Regional Director (FA), U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Federal Building, Fort Snelling, Twin Cities, Minnesota 55111.

Boat Licenses Are At Record High In State

As of December 31, 1978, a record 541,202 watercraft were registered in Minnesota according to the Department of Natural Resources.

This figure is up nearly 15,000 from the 1977 total, according to Kim Elverum, DNR boat and water safety coordinator.

Watercraft total is broken down as follows: 417,130 motorboats, 101,322 canoes, 20,810 sailboats and 1,940 rowboats.

Greatest increases in registration occurred in motorboats of 16 to 26 feet in length, and in canoes and sailboats.

"Although national figures will not be available until April," said Elverum, "Minnesota should continue to be among the top five states in the country in total boat registrations."

LHS, NCC Face Rivals

Thief River Falls hockey fans, given the opportunity to watch a much-publicized Greenway-Coleraine team play here Saturday, will be treated to additional hockey features this week when Northland community college and Lincoln high school squads square off with rivals Crookston and Roseau.

Top two hockey teams in the Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) will meet Wednesday in the sports arena when Northland tangles with Crookston at 7:30 p.m. A position among the Section 8 point leaders will be the prize Saturday when Lincoln challenges Roseau at 7:30 p.m.

Crookston is the current MJCAA leader with a 4-0 record following weekend road sweeps over Rochester and Mesabi. Northland is in second place with a 3-1 record following a sweep at home over Hibbing and a split on the road against Rainy River.

"It should be a good game," Northland coach Bob Lundbohm told the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters club. Lundbohm says he has his best squad in his three-year coaching reign and he expects to be an MJCAA title contender. "We've got high hopes," he confirmed. "We'll find out Wednesday where we stand in the league."

Crookston, led by former Mount St. Benedict coach Mick Metzer, has a definite Roseau flavor. Five members of the undefeated 1977-78 Section 8 high school champion Roseau squad are playing for the Trojans: goalie Dean Grindahl, wings Scott Johnson and Jeff Goos and defensemen Dean Byfuglien and Mike Erickson.

"They're a hard-skating, intimidating outfit," warned Lundbohm. "We're going to work on our power play. They've spent a lot of time in the penalty box."

Northland's power play unit — its top forward line and top defensemen — is an all-Thief River Falls fivesome that includes sophomore Gordy Markstrom centering sophomore Mike Malberg and freshman Doug Dallmann, with sophomores Bill Olson and Brad Kosel at the points.

Dallmann is the team's leading scorer with seven goals and six assists for 13 points in six games. Malberg has scored four times and has five assists for nine points and Markstrom, slowed at times by a groin injury, has three goals and four assists for seven points.

A winter quarter transfer student from the University of Wisconsin-Superior, Dallmann is also one of only two Northmen with a plus figure in the plus-minus charts that award pluses (+) to players every time they're on the ice when Northland scores and a minus (-) every time they're on the ice when the opposition scores. Dallmann is a +2. Sophomore defenseman Mitch Dicken is +1.

Northland has not played an MJCAA opponent since Dec. 16, losing to the Roseau Leafs 11-7 and the Bemidji State University junior varsity 13-1 during the conference break.

The Northmen will face Mesabi Friday and Saturday at Virginia to complete what Lundbohm calls "probably the most important week" of the season to date.

Lincoln, meanwhile, travels to Grand Forks Central Tuesday before hosting the Rams. In the midst of the most challenging portion of their 1978-79 schedule, the Prowlers follow the Rams with a trip to Warroad Tues., Jan. 23.

Miscellaneous

+Roseau high school hockey standout Aaron Broten told the Roseau Times-Region last week he plans to attend the University of Minnesota next year where he'll join brother Neal on the Gophers' hockey squad. That's probably the easiest recruit Minnesota coach Herb Brooks will ever have.

+Detroit Lakes high school hockey team has been instructed by the Minnesota State High School League that it must forfeit a recent 3-2 Section 8 win over Mount St. Benedict because a player, Pat Johnson, played in four successive periods (three in the junior varsity game and the first period of the varsity contest). Crookston officials notified the NSHSL on the matter. Detroit Lakes activities director Del Mollberg told the MSHSL that Laker coach Ken Anderson "assures me that it was not an intentional violation, but rather a thoughtless error on his part."

SPRAWLING LINCOLN high school goalie Bill Jury was flat on his back after stopping Greenway-Coleraine center Doug Renollet (6) on a first period breakaway during Saturday's hockey game played in the Thief River Falls sports arena. The Prowlers, behind a 31-save performance by Jury, upset the Raiders 4-3.

Greenway-Coleraine 4-3 Upset Victim At Hands Of Prowlers

Highly-regarded Greenway-Coleraine was supposed to be the feature attraction Saturday, but host Thief River Falls stole the show by posting a stunning 4-3 high school hockey victory over the Iron Range power.

A three-goal outburst in the second period sparked the 6-2 Prowlers past the Raiders who began the week 8-0 and ranked fourth in the state. Greenway, a 7-1 loser to top-ranked Grand Rapids Tuesday and a 9-2 winner over Chisholm Friday, finished a hectic schedule spell that found the Raiders playing five games in nine days with a 9-2 mark.

"We have to be happy with the way we played," said Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "When you win a game like that it really helps you confidence-wise and morale-wise."

A power play goal by Dan Hanson who sent a slap shot from the point past goalie Bill Jury at 5:37 gave Greenway a 1-0 first period lead.

Thief River Falls, after missing several first period scoring opportunities, struck for three second period goals while dominating play.

Jeff Ulrich tied the game 1-1 when he got behind the Greenway defense, ingored a defender breathing down his neck and put a close range backhand past Russ Leppala, a surprise starter in goal ahead of regular Rick Troumbly, just 1:48 into the period.

Scott Sabo, who missed a golden scoring opportunity on a two-on-one rush with Tom Bjorkman moments earlier, put Thief River Falls ahead 2-1 at 6:30 when he beat Leppala with a backhand from a tough angle.

Set up in front on a power play, Dave Geatz made it 3-1 at 9:11.

"We went to sleep that second period," offered Greenway coach Mike Barle. "Thief River's got a nice club. They can really go. They beat us to the puck; they played good position; and they capitalized on their chances. We didn't."

Hanson displayed superb stickhandling to score his second goal just 25 seconds into the second period to pull Greenway to within 3-2. Both teams were skating short-handed at the time, with Hanson making his way through a crowd for a backhand shot that he lifted by Jury.

Wade Hoppe gave Thief River Falls a 4-2 cushion with a low, long range drive at 7:12, but things got hairy after Dale Wright converted a power play rebound into a 4-3 game at 12:35.

Greenway put plenty of pressure on the Prowlers in an attempt to get the equalizer, with Leppala leaving the net for the final 46 seconds. The Raiders swarmed around Jury at the end, with the action stopping for a few minutes while Jury shook off the effects of making a save with his helmet.

"He played a good game," said Grand of his junior netminder who came up with several outstanding stops in his 31-save effort. Leppala turned aside 29 shots.

Lincoln Swimmers Beat Rival Greyhounds 92-74

It took nearly two hours to complete 11 events Friday when keen northwestern Minnesota high school swimming rivals Thief River Falls and Fosston met in the Franklin middle school pool. But according to head coaches John Kopari of the Prowlers and Tom Holland of the Greyhounds, the winner was decided in less than two minutes as a surprise meet-opening victory in the 200-yard medley relay carried Thief River Falls to a decisive 92-74 triumph.

"The first relay is really crucial," said Holland before the start of the meet. "We've got to have a first and third." To accomplish that goal Holland split a sure winner and came up with a second and third, but not that needed first.

The Greyhounds never recovered.

"The first relay won the meet for us," confirmed Kopari who had anticipated needing a one-three finish in the final 400-yard freestyle relay to pull out a narrow victory in front of a large Thief River Falls crowd.

Dan Schoonhoven, Kevin Grochow, Dan Winjum and Jon Pinkerton swam a 1:53.0 for the relay win. Fosston was a breath behind at 1:53.3.

Dave Beito was a double winner for the Prowlers with a 1:58.5 in the 200-yard freestyle and a 5:30.0 in the 500-yard freestyle. Bruce Storhaug took the 100-yard butterfly in 1:01.0, Karl Kuyath won the diving competition with 181.50 points and Dennis Booth, Storhaug, Beito and Kevin Murphy won the 400-yard freestyle relay in 3:39.3.

Eric Rustad and Scott Daniels were double winners for the Greyhounds. Rustad, one of the top swimmers in the state, took the 50-yard freestyle in 22.8 and claimed the 100-yard freestyle in 50.4. Daniels, a freshman, won the 200-yard individual medley in 2:14.0 and captured the 100-yard backstroke in 1:02.7. David Bolme won the 100-yard breaststroke in 1:08.7.

"The kids really came through in some of the events," praised Kopari who had agreed with Holland's premeet prediction of a mere one-point Thief River Falls victory.

A 47-36 winner earlier over Bemidji — the third member of the northwestern Minnesota swimming triumvirate — Thief River Falls is now 2-0 in dual meet competition. The Prowlers trailed both Bemidji and Fosston in the Fosston invitational Jan. 6, and finished second to Bemidji, ahead of Fosston, in the Bemidji triangular Jan. 9.

Thief River Falls was scheduled to host Grand Forks Central and Detroit Lakes today (Monday) at 4 p.m.

DISTANCE ACE Dave Beito of the Lincoln high school swimming team won the 200-yard freestyle and 500-yard freestyle races Friday to lead Thief River Falls to a 92-74 dual meet victory over rival Fosston in the Franklin middle school pool. Beito was photographed en route to his 500 win in 5:30.0.

Strong Rebounding Is Key In 65-36 MCC Win

Out-rebounding the leading rebounding team in the North Border Conference 42-28, Marshall County Central was an easy 65-36 basketball winner at Warroad Friday.

"We played well," pointed out Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "Rebounding told the story. We did a good job blocking out. We were real active."

Marshall County Central expanded a 17-11 first quarter edge into a 39-22 halftime cushion and pulled away 50-31 in the third quarter.

Dan Engen led the way with a 25-point, 11-rebound game. Jim Sethre scored 11 points for the winners. Loren Johnson was the only effective Warroad scorer, finishing with 17 points.

Warroad shot only 29 per cent from the field, hitting just 14 of 49 attempts. Marshall County Central shot 42 per cent by connecting on 24 of 57 shots. The Warriors were 8-for-20 at the free throw line where the Nordics were a profitable 17-for-28.

Marshall County Central plays at Grygla Tuesday and drives to Greenbush Friday. The Nordics are 4-5 for the year.

Warroad, TRF Challenge Rams

Defending Section 8 high school hockey champion Roseau faces a pair of challenges this week when the Rams travel to Warroad Tuesday and visit Thief River Falls Saturday in a pair of key games.

The Warriors, Rams and Prowlers rank one-two-three in the latest Section 8 point standings announced today (Monday) by Don Olson at KTRF radio in Thief River Falls.

Roseau boasts the only unbeaten record at 8-0, but Warroad is 9-0 in the Section 8 points won-lost standings where the Rams are 6-0. The Warriors are 6-2 overall. Thief River Falls, buoyed by a 4-3 upset of Iron Range power Greenway-Coleraine Saturday, is 6-2 for the year, 5-1 in Section 8 point play.

Red Lake Falls players continue to dominate the Section 8 scoring charts, holding down the top three spots. Dennis LaCoursiere has scored nine goals and collected 14 assists for 23 points in seven Section 8 games. Jim Violette is the leading goal-scorer with 15 that go along with six assists for 21 points. Mark Harren is 4-12 for 16 points.

Ed Christian of Warroad and Bob Clausen of Crookston round out the top five scorers with seven goals and eight assists apiece for 15 points.

ALTHOUGH SURROUNDED under the basket, Thief River Falls forward Jeff Osied was still given enough room by East Grand Forks defenders to score two of his 14 points in Friday's high school basketball game played at East Grand Forks. Oseid, "playing his best basketball of the season," according to coach Glen Peters, sparked a second half Thief River Falls rally that wiped out an early 14-0 deficit but came up short in a 59-57 loss to the Green Wave.

A SECOND place finisher behind Fosston's Scott Daniels by a fraction of a second in the 200-yard individual medley, Thief River Falls' Bruce Storhaug is shown swimming the breaststroke leg of the event that also includes the butterfly, backstroke and freestyle. Storhaug later won the 100-yard butterfly as the Prowlers beat the Greyhounds 92-74 before a large crowd in the Franklin middle school pool Friday.

Norsemen Outlast NCC Rally To Earn 73-65 Win

Aided by a pair of technical fouls in the game's final minutes, Mesabi rebuilt a game-long lead that had all but disappeared Saturday and beat Northland 73-65 in a Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) basketball game played in the Northland community college gym.

Paced by the play of 6-6 freshman center Tim Olson who showed why he was an all-state selection at Orr high school last year with a 26-point afternoon that also included a variety of other basketball gems — blocked shots, steals, rebounds, assists, etc., Mesabi never trailed. The Norsemen from Virginia built a 10-point cushion before settling for a 36-30 halftime edge and then produced leads of 12 points in the second half, including a 52-40 margin with 12:47 remaining.

Momentum suddenly swung in Northland's favor, though, as a 10-point burst sliced the difference to 52-50 in a quick 1:15 span. Mike Carriere, Jeff Neelan and Joe Kraska also sank two three throws during that spell, with Kurt Sigl contributing a steal and a lay-up and Vince Parker hitting from long range.

It stayed close — 60-58 with 4:27 left — until Mesabi outscored Northland 12-2 during a 3½-minute span to open a 71-60 gap with just 1:06 on the clock. Kraska and Northland coach Chet Engelman were both slapped with technical fouls during that spell for voicing objections to non-calls by officials Tim Skinner and Roger Gebhart.

The strong Mesabi squad, an 80-58 winner at Crookston Friday night for a weekend sweep against Northwest Division foes, provided plenty of support for Olson as 6-4 forward Kyle Thoreson scored 16 points, 6-2 guard Lyle Martinson 11 and 6-2 guard Tom Kaffine 10. Parker and Neelan scored 10 points apiece for the Northmen whose best play came from 6-6 freshman Tom Jordan.

Northland shot just 35 per cent from the field on a 25-for-71 showing. Mesabi shot 46 per cent on a 31-for-67 effort. Northland made 15 of 22 free throws while Mesabi sank 11 of 23 gift tosses.

It was the MJCAA opener for the Northmen who are 7-5 for the year. Mesabi, the Northeast Division pacesetter, is 9-2. Northland plays rival Crookston Tuesday at 8 p.m. at Crookston before hosting Vermilion Friday, also at 8.

Lincoln Girls Face Sub Region Rivals

Two games against Region 8AA Sub Region 4 rivals await the Lincoln high school girls basketball team this week. The Prowlers are scheduled to play at Bemidji tonight (Monday) and at Crookston Thursday. The busy week will conclude with a game Friday in the Lincoln gym against East Grand Forks Sacred Heart. All three games have 7:30 p.m. starting times.

Bemidji is the current Sub Region 4 leader following one-sided wins over Crookston 62-27 and East Grand Forks 51-23.

Playing without starters Julie Easton, Kelly Storhaug and Roberta Engel, Thief River Falls lost a 56-34 decision to McIntosh-Winger Saturday, dropping the Prowlers' season record to 1-5. Easton suffered a broken finger in a 52-40 loss to Moorhead a week earlier. Storhaug was nursing a sprained ankle and Engel was missed the game because of illness.

McIntosh-Winger jumped out to a 16-6 first quarter lead, remained in front 24-16 at halftime and stretched the difference to 38-24 in the third quarter.

Renee Carlson sank 14 of 16 free throw opportunities and scored 22 points for the host Scots who were 20-for-30 at the free throw line where the Prowlers were 2-for-7. Sue Schimanski added 12 points to the winners' total. Kim McFarland, moved up from the junior varsity squad, led Thief River Falls with 10 points.

Forced to play with just four players for nearly half of the final quarter when three members of its seven-player squad fouled out, the Lincoln junior varsity lost 32-28 for a 4-2 record.

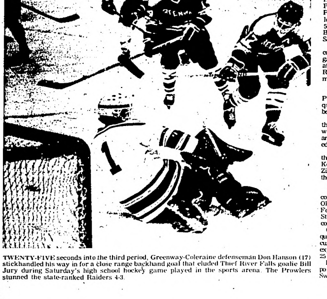
Bears Overcome Scrappy Eagles 72-61 Friday

Underdog Grygla challenged Lake of the Woods in North Border Conference basketball action Friday before losing 72-61 at Baudette.

The Eagles trailed only 17-16 after one quarter and tied things 31-31 at halftime. The heavily favored Bears led only 48-43 at the end of the third quarter.

Randy Larson keyed the Grygla effort with a 26-point night. Richard Nordby scored 15 points and Jim Morrisey added 12. Todd Robinson paced the Bears with 19 points. John Koller and Scott Chapman scored 12 and 11 points, respectively, for the winners who improved their record to 7-3.

Grygla, 3-7, will host Marshall County Central Tuesday and will entertain Warroad Friday.



TWENTY-FIVE seconds into the third period, Greenway-Coleraine defenseman Don Hanson (17) stickhandled his way in for a close range backhand goal that eluded Thief River Falls goalie Bill Jury during Saturday's high school hockey game played in the sports arena. The Prowlers stunned the state-ranked Raiders 4-3.

Strong Bagley Team Will Test Prowlers Tuesday

A veteran Bagley ball club, 8-1 for the year following a big 54-51 victory over previously unbeaten Waubun Friday, will provide strong opposition Tuesday when the Lincoln high school basketball team tries to climb above .500 for the year in a 7:30 p.m. game against the Flyers in the Lincoln gym.

Thief River Falls watched its record slip to 4-4 Friday when the slow-starting Prowlers lost at East Grand Forks 59-57.

Things snowballed on the mistake-prone Prowlers at the start as they fell behind a hot-shooting East Grand Forks squad 14-0 before they even got off their first shot.

East Grand Forks, paced by juniors John Roche and Todd Selk, led 22-8 at the end of the first quarter and stayed in front 39-27 at halftime. Roche scored 20 of his game-high 22 points in the first half, with Selk contributing eight points before intermission and finishing with 14.

"They were shooting well and we played lousy defense," said Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters about the early deficit the Prowlers faced. "Roche and Selk killed us in the first half."

Thief River Falls turned things around in the second half, tying the game 45-45 as the third quarter ended on a Jeff Oseid short jumper following an offensive rebound. Oseid, said Peters, played some of his best basketball ever in the second half.

"In the second half we put more pressure on Roche and Selk," explained Peters. "We played better. If we could put four quarters of basketball together we'd be all right, but we always have that one bad quarter."

Despite the strong comeback, Thief River Falls was never able to wrestle the lead away from East Grand Forks. "If we would have gotten that go-ahead bucket, we would have won," said Peters, who watched his team miss several opportunities to take the lead.

The game was tied 57-57 when Thief River Falls guard Steve Enderlein scored with 18 seconds left. But Selk scored with six seconds on the clock for the win.

Thief River Falls followed the basket with a time-out, but the Prowlers misplayed the inbounds pass and the Green Wave had their second Northwest Athletic Conference win after five season-opening losses.

The East Grand Forks attack also included David Thompson with 11 points and Steve Troyer with 10. Enderlein led the Prowlers with 20 points. Oseid scored 14.

Thief River Fall out-shot East Grand Forks from the field. The Prowlers made 26 of 55 field goal attempts for a 47 per cent figure while the Green Wave connected on 25 of 64 shots for 39 per cent. The Prowlers sank five of 11 free throw tries while the Green Wave sank nine of 13 gift tosses. Thief River Falls finished with a 26-17 rebound advantage, with Todd Young pulling down nine.

East Grand Forks was a 65-62 winner in overtime in the junior varsity game, dropping the Thief River Falls record to 4-4.

Thief River Falls returns to NWAC play Friday at Crookston.

Wrestlers Win First Decision

Five consecutive pins in the middle weights carried the Lincoln high school wrestling team to its first dual meet win of the 1978-79 season Friday, a 48-17 decision over visiting Ada.

It was the initial win for first-year Thief River Falls head coach Jesse Schmike. "It was probably one of our better nights wrestling," admitted Schmike. "The whole team did really well."

Thief River Falls led just 12-11 when the Prowlers began registering pins. Dan Odegaard pinned Blaine Williamson in 3:52 at 134 pounds; Mike Selves stopped Donny Nelson in 2:33 at 140; Mark Williamson stretched Dan Donovan in 3:53 at 147; Troy Lundstrom downed Brent Newton in 1:23 at 157; and Robbie Jorstad put Robert Ford on his back in 5:06 at 169.

That string of pins built the Thief River Falls lead to 42-11. It automatically became 48-11 when Pete Sharpe was awarded a forfeit win at 185, with Ada getting those points back on a Thief River Falls forfeit to Brad Stoltenow at heavyweight.

The two teams also traded forfeits in the lower weights, with Ada's Chris Teal getting one at 107 and Thief River Falls' Clay Sorteberg picking one up at 114.

That left only three other matches. Thief River Falls' Scott Muzzy scored on a reversal and nearfall in the third period for a 6-4 victory over Dean Alexander at 100 pounds and the Prowlers' Tim Ehling produced a third period escape for a 3-2 decision over Bruce Dahlin at 121.

Ada's John Kappes scored nine second period points in a 15-2 drubbing of Cory Nelson at 128.

The victory snapped a six-match losing streak for the Prowlers, but Schmike said he has never been worried about the team's morale. "Our morale has been good all along," he mentioned. "It hasn't gotten too low, which is kind of surprising. The kids are self-motivated."

Thief River Falls will put its winning streak on the line Thursday when the Prowlers host East Grand Forks in a 7:30 p.m. match.

Free Throw Derby Is Won By Mesabi

There were 61 free throws shot Saturday as Mesabi expanded a 33-28 halftime lead into a 76-61 win over Northland Saturday in a women's college basketball game played in Thief River Falls.

Capitalizing on 31 Mesabi fouls, Northland made 23 of 35 free throws. Mesabi sank 18 of 26 gift tosses. Mesabi had the better eye from the field, however, as the Virginia club made 29 of 75 shots for 39 per cent. Northland hit 19 of 66 tries for 29 per cent.

A trio of Mesabi double figure scorers was led by Rosie Leoni's 18 points. Georgine Troska and Joan Engel scored 14 points apiece for Northland and Karen Sparby added 12.

Facing a busy week, the 2-6 Northwomen play at Crookston Tuesday at 6 p.m., host Vermilion Friday at 6 p.m. and entertain Anoka-Ramsey Saturday at 1 p.m.

Sacred Heart, Oklee Squads Beat Plummer

East Grand Forks Sacred Heart and Oklee handed Plummer a pair of weekend Polar Conference basketball losses as the Eagles claimed a 54-50 Friday win and the Bobcats posted a 71-43 Saturday decision.

Plummer, 1-8 for the year, continues a string of road games this weekend, playing at Stephen Friday and visiting Red Lake Falls Saturday for a make-up contest.

Sacred Heart — Plummer

Sacred Heart out-scored Plummer 21-9 in the fourth quarter for a come-from-behind 54-50 victory.

Plummer, trailing 14-12 at the end of the first quarter, went ahead 27-22 at halftime and build a 41-33 third quarter edge.

Craig Pietruszewski paced the Eagles with 19 points while Kerry Dudgeon added 14. John Zimpel collected 18 points for the Cardinals.

Oklee — Plummer

Zak Fore and Jeff Stenberg combined for 41 points as Oklee handled Plummer 71-43. Fore scored 21 points and Stenberg 20, with Dave Olson contributing 10.

Oklee ran up an 18-7 first quarter lead, carried a 29-14 cushion into intermission and expanded the difference to 48-25 in the third quarter.

Greenway 6-3 Winner Over LHS JV Squad

Greenway-Coleraine broke open a 2-1 game in the third period to beat Thief River Falls 6-3 in junior varsity high school hockey Saturday.

Jeff Moser, Dean Dokkin and Chris Simons scored for Thief River Falls, now 4-4 for the year.

Brekke, Ponies Beat Huskies

Steve Brekke scored 18 of his game-high 21 points in the first half to stake Warren to a 36-26 lead and the Ponies went on to beat Goodridge 64-43 in Polar Conference high school basketball action Friday at Goodridge.

Goodridge stayed within six points at the start of the third quarter before being charged with three successive traveling calls that Warren turned into points en route to a 48-35 cushion.

"Turnovers killed us," explained Goodridge coach Rick Nelson. "Otherwise, we didn't play all that bad."

Brekke was joined in double figures by Bob Lubarski with 12 points and Robert Norman with 10. Randy Henrickson led Goodridge with 14 points while Gerry Sunsdahl scored 12 and Jeff Bakken 10.

Warren shot 44 per cent from the field, 27-for-61. Goodridge shot 39 per cent, 19-for-48. The Ponies made 10 of 18 free throws while the Huskies sank five of eight gift tosses. Warren held a 38-27 rebound advantage and Goodridge topped the turnover charts 27-20.

Goodridge will take its 5-5 record to Alvarado Friday.

Introduce Bill To Remove Farm Machinery Tax

State senator Roger Moe (DFL-Ada) introduced recently a bill to exempt farm machinery and farm equipment from the state sales tax. The bill, authored by Moe and Senator Jim Nichols, would also exempt repair parts from the sales tax.

"This legislation, if passed, would exempt any machinery, equipment, repair parts, implements or accessories used for farming from the Minnesota sales tax", Moe stated. Moe said the result of this legislation will help farming families to meet the increased costs of farm operations.

"In 1977 North Dakota lowered its sales tax on farm machinery from four per cent to two per cent. By removing the sales tax completely on purchases and repair of farm equipment, it will give Minnesota businesses a competitive edge and at the same time provide farmers with tax relief," Moe said.

This proposal is just one of many that will be offered to the legislature to assist farm and other working Minnesota families during the coming months of the legislative session, he added.

Aliens Must Report Address This Month

Jay A. Palmer, district director of the immigration and naturalization service, St. Paul, advised recently that the annual Alien Address Report program is again under way.

Aliens have until the end of January to submit their address reports to the government. Forms I-53, for this purpose, may be obtained at any post office or any office of the immigration and naturalization service. After filling it out, place a postage stamp on the reverse side of this card and drop the card in any mail box.

All noncitizens, with few exceptions, are required to report. Those excused from this requirement include diplomats and persons accredited to certain international organizations. Aliens who are minors must also report, but the parent or legal guardian should submit the report for an alien child under the age of fourteen.

Social security number should be shown on the registration card. Aliens and employers are advised that the possession of a social security card does not entitle aliens to work in the United States. Only aliens admitted for permanent residence or certain classes of nonresident aliens authorized to do so by the immigration and naturalization service may take employment. Violators of this restriction are subject to certain penalties.

Rep. Stangeland Reviews Potato, Wheat Shipping

U.S. Representative Arlan Stangeland (R-Minn) said at a Tuesday afternoon press conference in Moorhead that his talks Monday and Tuesday between potato and wheat growers and railway and trucking officials should prove to be a good first-step in communicating problems each faces in moving products to market.

Stangeland arranged the meeting Tuesday in St. Paul between Norman L. Lorentzen, president of Burlington Northern railroad and the leadership of the Red River Valley potato growers and the Minnesota wheat council. A similar meeting was held Monday in Minneapolis between the same two groups and the Minnesota motor transport association.

Stangeland said that no immediate action was promised because there is no easy solution. However, he said he would be in close touch with both groups to make sure they follow up on the meetings. "I don't want them to go home and forget about what has been started."

Lorentzen and the farmers, he said, recognize that it is physically impossible to move a crop in two or three months; even if the railway could, the docks could not unload it, and there would not be ships enough to move it for export. The BN needs to have an even flow throughout the year so boxcars do not stand empty part of the year, he said.

"He recognizes that farmers want to move their products when the price is right, however," he said, adding that in 1976-77, a period when prices were depressed, there was no movement of grain and boxcars stood empty. In contrast, late 1977 and 1978 were years when the BN had one of their biggest grain shipment periods.

In Minnesota and North Dakota, there is more on-farm storage than in any part of the country because grain elevators here were not built to accommodate the kind of production the area has, Stangeland said.

He said he did not believe it is an "unwillingness" on the part of the railroad to acquire more cars. Burlington Northern advised the group of their purchase of 900 covered hoppers in 1978 and have ordered 1,000 more for each of 1979 and 1980.

The BN, he said, is trying to run a business that's economically viable; it does not want to go to the federal government and ask for subsidy," and I agree"

"While everyone recognizes there are no simple solutions, meetings such as this can go a long way to providing some answers," Stangeland said. "The railroad is the cheapest and most energy-efficient method of bulk transport and we will need to stress it in the future," he said.

New Eyes For The Needy Seeks Used Glasses

New Eyes for the Needy has earned the reputation of being one of the most effective sight-saving charities in the world. It has helped many thousands of needy people obtain glasses — here and abroad — and it has never asked for a penny in cash donations.

Since its inception 47 years ago, New Eyes has asked instead for used eyeglasses and precious metal articles such as old watches, jewelry (real, costume and anitque), good or damaged silver and dentures.

The eyeglasses and glittering clutter are sent to New Eyes for the Needy, Inc., Short Hills, New Jersey 07078. Thousands of packages from all over the United States arrive in the neat stucco headquarters every year. There, volunteers, mostly housewives, sort out the glasses, separating those in plastic frames from those in metal frames.

Many of the 250 workers have learned to operate complex optical grading and testing equipment. They help fill specific orders from missions and hosiptals in foreign countries where plastic framed glasses and sunglasses are sent.

The metal framed glasses have their uses, too. Through refining, they yield precious metals that are sold, along with the jewelry, to finance New Eyes funds in over 100 hospitals and health agencies through the United States. The money in these funds buys glasses for people who have nowhere else to turn.

In addition to these funds, arrangements have also been made in 48 states through health and welfare agencies whereby New Eyes pruchases glasses for carefully screened persons, to whom no other private or public funds are available.

But, as public response has grown through the years, so has the volume of requests. Therefore, New Eyes needs more discarded jewelry and eyeglasses to do its job.

Awareness Of Handicapped Is Program Goal

Local coordinators are gearing up for Minnesota handicap awareness week activities to be held throughout the state next May.

Co-sponsoring the week of events with Governor Quie will be Congressman Richard Nolan, the Minnesota state council for the handicapped, the St. Cloud area council for the handicapped and the Tri-County action program in St. Cloud.

Awareness week began in St. Cloud in 1977 as a local activity intended to make the general public personally aware of accessibility barriers to people with disabilities. It turned out to be such a success that last year 16 Minnesota communities held their own activities and, in St. Paul, former Governor Perpich participated by spending a day in a wheelchair.

Hundreds of other participants assumed the role of a handicapped person by wearing blindfolds, special hearing aids, and using wheelchairs, crutches and other devices while going about their regular routine for a day.

"Putting a person in the position of a handicapped person is probably the best way to bring out not only the needs but the abilities of the handicapped population as a whole," said Kathy Wingen, state rally coordinator for awareness week. Now that President Carter has designated awareness week to be a national event next spring, more extensive state participation is expected, she added.

Minnesota is taking a broader-based approach to awareness week this year, according to Michele Gran, who will be coordinating local activities and publicity. "We want to draw attention to all barriers, social as well as architectural," she said. Her ultimate goal is to get "everyone, from kindergarten up" involved in these activities in some way.

Activities planned thus far include a kickoff ceremony by Sister Kenny institute, which will choose Miss Wheelchair Minnesota on May 12. Local events will be held the first three days of the week, and a state-wide rally and banquet in St. Cloud will close the week.

Potato Growers To Apply For Local Diversion

Result of unusually good growing conditions and superior yields of potatoes in the Red River Valley has lead to a depressed market for spuds. Combine this with the increasing shortage of transportation to market and you get a threatening situation to the potato industry in the Red River Valley. Red River Valley Potato Growers association polled its members on the question of applying to the U.S. department of agriculture for a diversion program on red and white variety of potatoes. With the votes in, the potato growers of the Red River Valley are asking, with an overwhelming majority, to apply for diversion funds.

Return of the ballots reflected the controversial nature of the subject. Close to 50 per cent of the membership of the Potato Growers association responded to the poll. With the votes counted, 79.4 per cent of the votes demanded the program while 20.6 per cent voted against the plan.

Executive committee of the Potato Growers association designed the program to include 3 million hundred-weight (cwt.) bags of potatoes. This is broken down to include 1.6 million cwt. of the white variety, 850 thousand cwt. of the red variety and 500 thousand of the russet (including present diversion program). This breakdown was done on a proportation of production basis.

The next step; according to Lloyd Schmidt, executive vice-president of the association is to apply for the program to U.S.D.A. in Washington D.C. "We have already put our case together including our economic justification for the program, then we will go to Washington and make application for the program," Schmidt said. It's late in the shipping season and time is an important factor. Schmidt says, "We don't have much time, we have to get started right away. We can expect it to take 4 to 6 weeks before we will have a decision from U.S.D.A."

U.S. department of agriculture has several mechanisms available to finance a potato diversion program using Section 32 funds derived from U.S. Customs revenues. These funds are marked for use in buying up commodities when over-production threatens to disrupt prices. Funds for the program would not come from tax receipts. Section 32 money is derived from import duties on automobiles, cameras and other imported items. Some 30 per cent of this money is earmarked for commodity purchases through U.S.D.A. Fund contains more than $600 million dollars.

MEASURING DEVICE known as a plenimeter was used during this past summer as a method of determining crop acreage under ASCS program compliance. Measurement with the device from aerial photos has proved extremely accurate and is far less costly than previous on-site measuring. A new plenimeter which operates electronically and provides a digital readout is now used and will further speed up the compliance check.

Field Measuring To Be Done From Air

Success of an experimental crop measurement program in this area of Minnesota as well as several other areas of the state has resulted in overall adoption of the program statewide in 1979, according to Phillip Bergland, executive director of the Pennington county agricultural stabilization and conservation service (ASCS).

The measurement program involves the taking of aerial photographs of farms participating in ASCS price support programs and use of those photos in measuring fields for compliance with acreage restrictions. Previously the field measurement was accomplished by field survey crews which conducted physical measurement with a wheel or chain.

Under the new system of aerial photography, the cost is reduced substantially, the process is accelerated, measurements are more accurate than when done on the farm and more farms can be checked for compliance. Although attempts to cheat on crop acreage have not been a major problem in Pennington county, the aerial survey system should reduce the odds of making such an attempt profitable to almost zero.

During the experimental program in 1978, for instance, nearly 100 of the 750 Pennington county farms participating in the price support program were checked for compliance with acreage restrictions. None of the farms was totally out of compliance, Bergland said, and variations from reported acreage planted were most frequently due to a farmer not having an accurate knowledge of his individual field acreage.

Penalty for over-planting base acreage under the price support program is substantial — one-half of the target price for the restricted crop multiplied by the number of acres over-planted and the yield per acre.

Aerial photography under the experimental program in this area was done through the cooperation of Northern Eagle Airways at the regional airport. About 110 hours of flight time was used for photography in Pennington, Marshall, Red Lake, Roseau, Kittson and Polk counties with about 1,800 photos taken during those flights. Cost averaged out to less than $4.75 per farm, Bergland said.

By comparison, he noted, it would take a man on the ground most of a day to measure two farms at a cost of about $25 per farm.

Other experimental programs in the aerial survey were conducted at St. Cloud, Preston and Worthington,

Wearing the Number 1 racing bib which he earned as Sno Pro driver of the year in 1977-78, Bob Elsner of Team Arctic will be among the favorites for winning the world championship of snowmobiling Sunday at Eagle River, Wis. And Elsner expects to be going all out for the win.

"We're a long way from the starting line yet," Elsner pointed out in a Times interview Tuesday. "There is always something that could happen so that I don't even qualify for the top 10 finalists. But we think we have ironed out some problems we had with our sleds early in the season and things in general look pretty good right now."

Elsner's racing team partner, young Jim Dimmerman, also has his eye on the finals of the world championship. Arctic Enterprises officials who keep a close watch on the racing team are hoping for a world championship for an Arctic racer and Elsner is installed in the favorite's role because of his recent successes. Of six possible first places in his last two Sno Pro outings, Elsner has snared five of them. Dimmerman has also had his sleds performing well.

It has been 10 years since an Arctic racer won the world championship race at Eagle River — a prestigious race which means much in the terms of publicity and promotion. Roger Janssen of Crookston piloted an Arctic Cat to victory in that event. A $12,000 van goes to the winner of the 1979 world championship — certainly a prize worth winning.

This year the race takes on added significance from the public exposure factor since NBC Sports has scheduled filming of the event for a 31-minute segment of its national programming. According to Bill Decker, public relations director for Arctic Enterprises, NBC plans to film all finals in the Saturday and Sunday races and to show recreational snowmobiling as well. And because sponsorship will not be by snowmobile manufacturers, the racing will take on added credibility as a legitimate sports event, Decker said.

"I think snowmobile racing is exciting," Elsner said in a typical offering of understatement. "It offers a lot of entertainment for the spectator. If I'm home on a weekend we're not racing I'll usually go to a Podunk race somewhere to watch. I enjoy it. Some of the stuff they pass off as sporting events on television is ridiculous."

Although the world championship event at Eagle River is only one of a number of racing events which will be held before approximately 30,000 spectators on the two days, it is considered to be the most significant. All drivers who race in it must earn their

Community Education Sponsors 65 Courses

Sixty-five courses in the field of community and adult education are being offered this winter through cooperative efforts of the Thief River Falls public schools, Northland community college and the area vocational - technical institute. Classes are being offered by the sponsoring schools in cooperation with other community agencies.

Terry Lemer, adult education director at the AVTI, and Bill Kottke, dean of instruction at Northland, are in charge of the combined offerings.

"Goal of community education is to bring together available resources of the organizations, agencies and individuals within the area for the purpose of fulfilling the recreational, vocational, social and cultural needs and wants of citizens residing within the area," Kottke said. "This is being done while promoting efficient use of school and community personnel, buildings and equipment."

"Senior citizens can have a particularly good deal," Lemer noted about the course offerings. "Any person 62 years of age or older may attend any community education course without payment of course fees, although they must purchase any necessary books or supplies. Bus transportation for senior citizens or handicapped is available by calling Arlyne Forsberg at Northland, 681-2181.

Courses range from beekeeping to ballet, cabinetry to cosmetology, lip reading to low pressure steam engineering. Length varies from a one-night program to 15 weeks of weekly sessions and cost from $30 to no fee at all.

Complete listings of course offerings were distributed in the Times and Northern Minnesota Shoppers Guide and additional copies are available if needed from the adult education office at the AVTI, Highway One East, Thief River Falls, MN. 56701. Information may also be obtained by calling Terry Lemer at 681-5424 or Bill Kottke at 681-2181.

Registration for classes is not complete until fees have been paid, Lemer and Kottke noted, and registration may be made at the first class session if space allows. No refunds will be made after the first week of class.

A summary of classes which have not yet begun follows, along with the starting date, time, meeting place and fee. Consult the information sheet for course description, length and instructor.

Another Paper Drive Slated In Early March

Another waste paper collection drive will be held in early March due to an increase offered in the price, according to Mrs. Donna Olson, coordinator of the paper collection for St. Bernard's school.

ONE OF THREE Minnesota women selected to participate in the National Education association's leadership training program for women is Edith Etter of Thief River Falls. She will attend the workshop in Cleveland, Ohio, January 19-21. Other women selected are from Rochester and St. Paul and all three were named according to demonstrated leadership ability and with the intention that they will return from the workshop to train an additional 100 women in this state. Mrs. Etter is in her 26th year of teaching, the last 18 in Thief River Falls after teaching in Aurora, Pipestone and Kasota. A second grade teacher at Mark Twain school, she currently serves as president of the Thief River Falls education association and has been president of the Minnesota association of classroom teachers.

Explorer Post Is Chartered

If you are between the ages of 14 and 21 and have always wanted to sit in a police squad car or see how fingerprinting is done, you no longer have to get in trouble to gain a knowledge of police operations. Thief River Falls police officers association has undertaken the sponsorship of an Explorer Scout post in law enforcement.

A survey taken in Lincoln high school last spring indicated that 30 students were interested in law enforcement as a possible career. Working with district executive of the Northern Lights boy scout council, Gordy Przybylski, members of the police officers association began to organize an explorer organization which would give these students an opportunity to gain first hand experience in law enforcement operations.

Exploring is part of the Boy Scouts of America Program but is kept separate from the programs for younger boys. It is a co-ed division for young adults and no previous scouting experience is necessary to join. "We feel it is important that young men and women have an opportunity to explore career interests," stated Przybylski. "The best method is for groups to meet with experts in a particular field."

First meeting between students interested in law enforcement and our local officials was in October of 1978 and since that time an explorer post has been chartered. Elected officers for the post, which presently has about 10 members, were David Richter, president; Doug Brinkman, first vice president; Mark Delage, second vice president; Diane Johnson, secretary; and Kevin Lindbloom, treasurer. Serving as explorer coordinator is Sgt. Irving Swanson with officer Jim Hulteen working as explorer advisor and police chief Ken Froschheiser, assistant police chief Duane Holland and deputy sheriff James Myrah all serving as executive officers.

The members recently undertook a project to distribute snow removal bulletins door to door to raise money for the group and have been given a tour of the law enforcement facilities and an explanation of operations. Through membership in the explorers they will have an opportunity to take part, individually or in small groups in patrol procedure, accident investigation and fingerprint lifting. They may learn self defense tactics, dispatch operations and the handling and use of weapons. Following observation of court procedures they may set up a mock court session. Arrangements can be made to

Denise Lynn Graham And Elwin Dean Ness Are Wed

Miss Denise Lynn Graham and Elwin Dean Ness exchanged marriage vows recently at a two o'clock ceremony at the Bethlehem Lutheran church in Newfolden.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale K. Graham of Newfolden. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Ray Ness, Middle River.

Rev. Hans Floan, assisted by Rev. Donald Fredine, pastor of the First Lutheran church, Middle River, officiated at the ceremony. Sheila Nelson, a friend of the bride, was the organist. She played the traditional wedding marches, and also accompanied Jim Pederson and Deland Elseth, friends of the bride, as they sang, "Colour My World," "For Baby, For Bobbie," "The Lord's Prayer," "Twelfth of Never," and "Evergreen."

For the ceremony, the altar was graced with arrangements of blue and white carnations, rust mums and babies' breath. Dusty blue candles centered the bouquet of white gladioli, accented with blue carnations, that graced the altar. The pews were marked with greenery and babies' breath, tied with white lace bows.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a floor-length gown of white sataglow organza over taffeta. The gown featured a Chantilly lace bodice with sweetheart neckline, shadow sleeves with lace cuffs, and a gracefully flared skirt that extended into a chapel-length train. Her veil of bridal illusion flowed from a Chantilly lace headpiece enhanced by pearls and irridescent sequins. She carried a bouquet of red Samantha roses with white pixie carnations, babies' breath and satin streamers.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was Teri Carlson, Newfolden, a friend. Other attendants were Debbie and Diane Graham, Newfolden, sisters of the bride, and Nancy Thompson, Moorhead, a cousin. All wore dusty blue floor-length gowns styled with rounded necklines and below the elbow-sleeves. Back ties accented the empire waistlines. They carried colonial bouquets of dusty blue carnations, rust mums and white daisies with navy ribbon streamers.

Flower girl was Kara Anderson, Newfolden, a friend of the bride. Her gown, a replica of the bride's, was designed by Rachell Foster. She carried a miniature bouquet, similar to the bride's. Ring bearer was Greg Graham, a brother of the groom. Like the men of the wedding party, he wore a blue Byron tuxedo trimmed with navy blue, a white ruffled shirt and, a carnation boutonniere.

Attending the groom as best man was Mike Carriere, Middle River, a friend. Groomsmen were: Bradley and DelRay Ness, Middle River, brothers of the groom, and Jeff Davidson, Newfolden, a friend. Serving as ushers were Dean Ramsey, Moorhead, a friend of the couple, and Rodney Hammer, Badger, a cousin of the groom.

The mother of the bride was attired in a rust and brown print floor-length gown complimented by a corsage of sweetheart roses and white pixie carnations. A similar corsage accented the pale green floor-length gown worn by the groom's mother.

Honor guests at the ceremony were Marvin Moe, Waukegan, Ill., grandfather of the bride; Mrs. Louise Siver, Zion, Ill., grandmother of the bride; Mrs. Clara Aune, Thief River Falls and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Ness, Middle River, grandparents of the groom.

A reception followed with Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Aune and Mr. and Mrs. Dean Anderson as hosts and hostesses. Roxanne and Valorie Olberg served the punch; Donna Hammer presided at the guest book, and Betty Lou Graff, Jane Erickson and Leah Anderson arranged the gifts.

The serving table was centered with a four-tiered wedding cake, iced in white and decorated with blue flowers and side cupids in frosted hearts. Between the pillars were miniature wedding bells and a Holly Hobby bride and groom. Topping the cake was a wedding bell ornament. At the base, surrounded by ferns and babies' breath, were two square cakes inscribed with the names of the bride and groom.

The cake was cut and served by Vernice Larson and Marilyn Slazider. Florence Hammer and Beverly Erickson poured. Waitresses were Lisa Bush, Lisa Johnson, Lorna Maurstad and Patty Peterson. Kari Larson distributed the groom's cake.

The evening prior to the ceremony, the groom's parents hosted a supper at the First Lutheran church parlors in Middle River.

Arctic Racers Off To World Championship

First, all racers who enter the world championship (approximately 70 to 80 are expected) must run two-lap time trials alone on the half-mile track. Through this process the field is elimiated to the 48 fastest racers. These drivers are placed in elimination heats to determine nine winners and the tenth place in the championship field is filled by the racer who wins a last chance race among those eliminated in the preliminary heats. The championship race itself is for 15 grueling laps on the half-mile track.

Elsner, the oldest and heaviest Sno Pro racer at 35 years of age and 190 pounds, is seriously considering saving himself for the championship race if he is fortunate enough to qualify. He will likely race the 250 and 340 classes of Sno Pro competition but scratch in the 440X class to conserve energy.

"Fifteen laps on that track will be really punishing," Elsner predicts. "It's a pretty good track but by the time they get to the championship there will be at least three or four hundred sleds that have run over it in two race days. The corners will be rough and it will take a lot of endurance to hang on and maintain control for 15 laps."

A construction worker in the off-season who started racing snowmobiles when he was 25 years old, Elsner raced from 1972 to 1975 for Ridgeway Sports in Wisconsin. He turned to Sno Pro racing in 1975. Being installed in the favorite's role for the world championship doesn't bother him at all.

"Everyone is entitled to his own opinion," Elsner laughs. "I still have to drive my own race as best I can and I like to win. I like to win for the prize money and for the drivers of the year points and, of course, for the company. We always want to do the best we can for Arctic; that's what it's all about."

Personal pride involved at all? "Oh, I suppose there is some of that, too," Elsner admits.

While Elsner may be considered an old man in Sno Pro racing, he doesn't have a big edge in experience over Dimmerman who is 10 years his junior. Jim is in his eighth year of racing and has had several shots at the world championship competition but never made the finals. Elsner, on the other hand, has been in the finals half a dozen times but never finished higher than second place.

"I'll need a little luck," Dimmerman said about his chances, admitting that he doesn't like the Eagle River track. He has a personal acquaintanceship with a retaining wall there, and although he says he didn't hit it very hard, it may have left him a bit apprehensive. He intends to race in all classes and all races of Sno Pro competition, even if he should qualify for the world championship. But he notes that "they save the fastest sleds for the worst track conditions". The world championship race is run in the 440 class.

Elsner and Dimmerman agree that winning races is a 50-50 proposition between driver and machine. "The best driver anywhere won't win if he doesn't have a sled capable of competing," Elsner said. "On the other hand, you can give a poor driver the best sled available and he won't win either."

Dimmerman likes to know who he is racing against so he can anticipate moves and reactions on the track. "Most Sno Pro drivers are good drivers," he said, "but there are a few maniacs out there, too. When I'm going into a corner at 90 miles an hour I want to know who is in there with me."

Although tracks throughout the world vary in size from quarter mile to about five-eights of a mile, all are now ice or ice and sawdust tracks for Sno Pro racing. "I don't like small tracks with obstructions," Elsner said. "There's one obstruction at Eagle River but it isn't too bad." Obstructions are generally defined as something to hit upon leaving the race course.

Elsner said he has never had a serious injury while racing although he has crashed three times this season — once at Grand Forks and twice at Alexandria. Both times he was running on quarter mile tracks. "All three times it was because of machine failure," he smiled. "It was never driver error. Right, Decker?" The PR director winced.

Elsner and Dimmerman said their more recent successes on the track and their optimism have resulted from solving some of their early problems with clutching and handling. Improper clutching was causing them to blow drive belts. "When you blow a belt your sled locks up and puts you into a dirty slide," Elsner said. After crashing twice as a result of blown belts at Alexandria, he made 15 laps in the 440X class and managed a third place before blowing another belt just across the finish line.

Team Arctic believes it now has solved some of these "little things". Dimmerman and Elsner blame a slow start on getting their sleds later than their competition. All of the race sleds are hand-built at the Arctic race shop. Most other companies put out their racing units on the assembly line and then make modifications.

Scorpion racers did exceptionally well in the early races on the Sno Pro circuit. "I know the guys they can thank for that," Dimmerman said. "Most of them are working in our shop right now." Scorpion was purchased by Arctic Enterprises last year and Arctic personnel assisted in design and engineering for the Scorpion race units.

Apart from the promotion and publicity which racing provides, the testing of design concepts and engineering changes is a major part of the racing program. "It accelerates the development cycle," Bill Decker said.

"We're test drivers, all right," Elsner said. "But while we're testing, we might must as well be winning."

Aerial Photos Used To Check Crop Acreage

Bergland said. In 1978 the flights were made at 5,000 feet and an observer carried a map to pinpoint land to be photographed. About 20 quarter sections could be photographed per hour. In 1979 it is planned to fly at 8,000 feet and include a full section in each photo. Pennington county could be covered completely in about eight hours.

Photographs taken of the farms are put in a slide projector with a mirror arrangement reflecting the image onto a table surface for measuring. Kathy Fimrite, who succeeded Lorna Johnson as program assistant in charge of production adjustment in the Pennington county office, uses a device called a plenimeter to measure the acreage.

The plenimeter (a new electronic model now in use has a digital readout) is used to follow the outline of the particular fields in question and computes the acreage from the perimeter measurement. Since the slide images are projected on aerial photographs of the farm, alignment of reference points such as roads and buildings is easy and the measurement can be accomplished even if field boundaries have changed.

"Sometimes it seems like government isn't doing much to improve its efficiency and hold down costs," Bergland said. "This is one program where technology and modern methods can combine to do both while severely reducing the opportunity for anyone to take undue advantage of government programs."

Explorer Post Teaches Law Enforcement

work individually with officers or to undertake group projects. Decisions are made by the young adults themselves with the law enforcement personnel on hand to offer whatever assistance is needed.

The group meets twice a month and president David Richter also attends an explorer presidents association (EPA) meeting once a month in Grand Forks. As a result of their membership in the explorer organization the students may also participate in an explorer winter weekend coming up in February which involves winter camping; a ski super activity in Duluth; and the explorer olympics in Fort Collins, Colorado. The local president may attend the national EPA meeting in Washington, D.C. and students may compete for four national scholarships.

The explorer organization is meant to provide experience in six areas which include, in addition to vocational experience, experience in social skills, outdoor activities, service activities, personal fitness and citizenship-related activities. There are 75 explorer organizations in the Northern Lights council with four posts presently operating in our immediate area. They include a medical post in Crookston, a motorcycle post in Twin Valley, and law enforcement posts in Thief River Falls and Fertile. Presently being organized is another medical post and a dental post. Operating budget for these organizations comes from the Northern Lights council (which receives monies from the United Way and sustaining membership) as well as from organizations sponsoring the posts.

In his letter of invitation to students, Sgt. Swanson stated, "Remember, this opportunity is for young adults that care about their future. . .You guide your own program and mingle the fun in as you feel it should be." Anyone interested in finding out more about the newly organized post may contact Sgt. Swanson or post president David Richter.

Milk Marketing Hearing Dates Are Postponed

Public hearings originally set for Jan. 15-16 on rules proposed by the Minnesota department of agriculture to permit farm milk to be marketed on the basis of protein value — component pricing — have been ordered postponed for six months by commissioner Mark Seetin.

"This is a major decision for the nation's fourth leading milk producing state and our dairy industry that is the backbone of Minnesota's agricultural economy. It deserves fullest consideration of all of the facts."

All facts are not yet available, pending completion of an extensive study of component pricing of milk by Dr. Vernal Packard, professor in the food science and nutrition department of the college of agriculture, and extension specialist in dairy products at the university of Minnesota," commissioner Seetin explained.

Dr. Packard advised that his study will be completed and findings made available by this June, annually observed nationally as "Dairy Month."

In addition to the six-month postponement of hearings, the commissioner added a third hearing to provide increased opportunity for participation and comment by Minnesota milk producers, processors and consumers.

New schedule for the public hearings on proposed rules for protein pricing of farm milk:

July 16, room D, Veterans service building (state capitol complex), west 12th st. and Columbus ave., Saint Paul, opening at 10 a.m.;

July 17, Houston county courthouse, 304 south Marshall st., Caledonia, opening at 7 p.m.; and

July 19, Sauk Center city hall, 405 Sinclair Lewis avenue, Sauk Center, opening at 7 p.m.

MCCL To Hold Rally Mon. At State Capitol

Pro-life Minnesotans from across the state will rally at the Capitol in St. Paul at noon Monday in observance of the legalization of abortion by the U.S. supreme court on that date six years ago. They will also be demonstrating support for a human life amendment to overturn the court's decision.

Sponsored by Minnesota Citizens Concerned for Life (MCCL), the rally will include a march around the Capitol, after which participants will gather on the steps to hear from governmental leaders, including Lt. Gov. Lou Wangberg and State Senator Wayne Olhoft (DFL-Herman).

In keeping with the rally theme—"Let Life Rise and Shine in '79"—hundreds of helium filled baloons bearing a pro-life message will be released. Also, a "Pennies for Life" collection will be conducted in which rally-goers will be asked to donate a penny or more for each year they have lived. The funds will be used to further pro-life education in the state.

The rally will be the sixth such gathering sponsored by MCCL. As in past years, busloads of pro-lifers from many outstate as well as metro areas are expected to participate. Many of MCCL's 150 local chapters will also organize similar activities in their communities on January 22. Traditionally chapters have used the occasion to show their concern for life at all its stages by such projects as visiting nursing homes and sending flowers to new mothers.

Leo LaLonde, president of the 19,000-member organization, said the rally is "designed to draw public attention to the importance of abortion and other bio-ethical issues such as euthanasia, human experimentation, forced sterilization and similar threats to the unwanteds of society, which stem from the anti-life philosophy propounded in the Supreme Court's abortion decisions.

"When abortion was legalized we were told that it was needed only for the hard cases, but now we see that over six million unborn babies have died, most of them merely because they were inconvenient to someone," LaLonde said. "Citizens must realize that if some human beings can be destroyed because they are not wanted, none of our lives are safe.

"We will not let this state and nation forget the deaths that have already occurred, and we will not give up until the people of the United States are allowed to enact a human life amendment which will once again protect human life from conception—to natural death," he said.

Hold Hearings On Food Sales In Schools

Assistant secretary of agriculture Carol Tucker Foreman has withdrawn a U.S. department of agriculture (USDA) proposal that would have restricted the sale of candy, soda water, frozen desserts and chewing gum sold in vending machines, a la carte lunch lines or at snack stands in schools until after the last school lunch period.

In making the announcement, Foreman indicated that because of some significant issues raised from the more than 2,100 comments received on the April 1978 proposal, that the USDA will use the public meetings and written comments to help form the basis for a new proposal.

Public meetings will be held on January 30, in Nashville, Tenn., on February 6 in Detroit, Mich.; and on February 13 in Seattle, Wash. They will focus on developing competitive food standards that consider nutrition education, health, eating habits and the local administration of, and impact on, the school food programs.

Competitive foods are any foods sold in competition with the "type A lunch" required in the national school lunch program. Foreman said the three public meetings were scheduled in line with the department's policy of seeking broader public participation in the decision making process of government.

Last year, congress authorized secretary of agriculture Bob Bergland to regulate the sale of foods of limited nutritional value that are offered in competition with the national school lunch and breakfast program. In the comments received on the April proposal, 82 per cent favored the regulation or some variation of it, and 18 per cent opposed the regulation of competitive foods in schools.

Requests to speak at the Nashville meeting should be directed to Edward Hightower, 1100 Spring street, N.W., Atlanta, Ga. 30309, (404) 257-4259; for the Detroit meeting to Frank Johnson, 536 south Clark, room 966, Chicago, Ill., (312) 353-1044; and for the Seattle meeting to Dick Montoya, 550 Kearny street, room 400, San Francisco, Calif., (415) 556-4951.

All three meetings will begin at 9 a.m., and will be held in Nashville at the University of Tennessee center, room 358, 10th and Charlotte avenue; in Detroit at the Henry Ford hospital in the Robin C. Buerki auditorium, 2799 west Grand boulevard; and in Seattle at the Seattle public school district, board meeting room, 815 4th avenue north.

Those who cannot attend but wish to comment may do so by writing Margaret Glavin, SPD, FNS, USDA, Washington, D.C., 20251, by February 15, 1979.

Crookston IRS Office Open For Assistance

Federal income tax help is available at the Crookston IRS office every Friday, according to office manager Orion Thoren. Office is located in the Mercantile Building, 202 S. Main street.

Thoen said people needing help should first check the tax package that came in the mail and try to complete the return as best as possible before coming to the Crookston office. "From our experience, it's quite likely that people can find the answers they need right in the tax instructions. They've been rewritten this year and should be much easier to understand," Thoen said.

Thoen stressed that the IRS assistance is based on the self-help concept. He said people coming to the Crookston office should bring with them necessary information such as the tax form package, all W-2's, plus any interest and dividend statements.

Crookston IRS office is open from 8 a.m. to 4:45 p.m.

Real Spendable Earnings Rise 0.3 Per Cent

Real spendable earnings increased 0.3 per cent during November for full and part-time workers on production or nonsupervisory jobs in the private nonfarm sector of the economy, the U.S. department of labor's bureau of labor statistics reported.

Real spendable earnings for November were calculated by adjusting earnings in current dollars for changes in the consumer price index for urban wage earners and clerical workers (CPI-W). The figures are preliminary.

The real spendable earnings figure represents weekly earnings reduced by social security and federal income taxes applicable to a married worker with three dependents who earned the average amount then deflated by the CPI-W.

From November 1977, real spendable earnings, as calculated in this release, decreased 3.4 per cent. Much of this decline was due to the manner in which the reduced tax liability under the tax reduction and simplification act of 1977 was calculated. The tax reduction became effective June 1, 1977, but applied to the entire year. The wage earner, therefore, realized an increase in earnings for the last seven months of 1977 equal to the full annual tax reduction. In 1978, however, the tax reduction was distributed over the full year. If the 1977 tax cut had been in effect throughout 1977, the November-to-November change in real spendable earnings would have been -1.8 per cent rather than -3.4 per cent.

Real gross average weekly earnings increased 0.4 per cent from October to November after allowance for the usual seasonal variation. A 0.7 per cent increase in average hourly earnings combined with a 0.3 per cent increase in average weekly hours more than offset the 0.5 per cent increase in the CPI-W.

Over the year, real average weekly earnings were down 0.4 per cent. A 0.3 per cent decline in average weekly hours combined with a 8.8 per cent increase in the CPI-W more than offset the 8.7 per cent increase in average hourly earnings. (Before adjustment for the CPI-W and seasonal change, average weekly earnings were $210.15 in November compared with $193.86 a year earlier.)

The hourly earnings index in dollars of constant purchasing power decreased 0.1 per cent from October to November. Compared with a year ago, the index was down 0.6 per cent. The index excludes the effects of overtime in manufacturing and of interindustry shifts, such as the shift of workers between high-wage and low-wage industries.

MEA Head Predicts Tough Negotiations

Negotiations between teachers and Minnesota school boards to set 1979-81 contracts, says president Donald C. Hill of the Minnesota education association (MEA), will be the toughest in years.

And the MEA, Hill adds, is preparing to meet the challenge.

Indicative of teacher intensity is the turnout of more than 900 teacher negotiators from throughout the state for a weekend master contract conference conducted by the MEA — the largest teacher meeting, except for the MEA convention, he said.

They spent an evening and a day learning negotiations techniques and looking for solutions to problems.

"One of the problems we'll have during the next eight months, which will see the toughest negotiations in years," Hill continues, "will be to develop understanding on the part of the public about the problems in education and solutions for them. That's why I feel strongly that all negotiations between teachers and school boards on the local level should be open."

MEA will encourage its teacher negotiators, Hill explains:

+ To settle contracts that at least will compensate teachers for the devasting loss in buying power during the last year;

+ To write class size limitations into local contracts that will protect teachers from management decisions that force teachers to violate state board of education rules and regulations;

+ To secure guaranteed due process for any disciplinary action against a teacher;

+ To get acceptable contracts ratified by school boards and teachers prior to opening of schools in 1979.

Hill, admitting that the idea sounds strange, says one point teachers should negotiate — to reenforce the reduced class size concept — is "contract language to help keep teachers from violating state board of education rules, which have the effect and force of law, by teaching overcrowded classes."

Hill also has strong feelings about low pay scales for teachers. "Compared with other professionals, teachers begin their careers at a lower pay level — and the longer they stay in teaching the further behind they get," he said.

"A teacher who began in 1968 was paid an average of less than $6,000 a year and by 1978 that same teacher — with a master's degree — had reached an average of $15,500. In the meantime, counterparts who graduated from college into the business world in 1968 had reached an average annual salary of $26,600 — more than $11,000 a year ahead of the teacher," Hill said.

"A major reason why starting salaries for teachers are so low is that so many teachers are women. Economic discrimination against women is a way of life in this country. Although teachers get paid on the same salary schedule, whether they're women or men, the entire profession is discriminated against.

"Sex discrimination against the whole profession, while more subtle, is just as devastating as the blatant upward mobility problems for all women in education — kindergarten through graduate school.

"If the majority of teachers weren't women, starting salaries for teachers would be at least $14,000 a year — which is about where other degreed college graduates begin these days," he concluded.

CAR CARE CORNER

Fuel Pumps Can Be 'Fuelish'

One part in your car, often overlooked, but which can affect performance and gasoline savings is the fuel pump! How do you know when your fuel pump is in trouble?

One indication is a sudden drop in gas mileage. Another is dripping gasoline under the car or the strong odor of gasoline under the hood. In addition, a faulty fuel pump, leaking gasoline into the engine's oil lubrication system, can cause serious damage which can be as expensive as total engine block replacement. Both mean wasted gas and money!

Still another, though more obvious, symptom is the car's performance: the car slows down when you're trying to maintain constant speed on a highway, hesitates, cuts out momentarily from "fuel starvation," or stalls completely.

All of these problems can be prevented by changing your fuel pump every 30,000 miles as routine maintenance.

If your car has logged over 30,000 miles, or if you are having any of the symptoms mentioned, it may be time to ask your mechanic to install a brand new or factory rebuilt fuel pump made by Kem Manufacturing Company, the largest manufacturer of new and rebuilt fuel pumps in the country. All internal parts of a factory rebuilt pump are new, and all Kem pumps are factory tested for correct pressure and flow rate.

I GOT THOSE HESITATION BLUES

HESITATION BLUES CAN be caused by fuel pumps.

When you change the fuel pump, replace the gasoline filter too, a small item, usually located in the fuel line or, at the carburetor, that screens out dirt and debris from the fuel tank, and keeps clean gasoline flowing into the engine. Gas filters should be changed every 12,000 miles and should be one of the first items checked whenever there is a fuel delivery problem with the car.

For further information about fuel pumps and gasoline filters, write to Kem Manufacturing Company, P.O. Box 351, Fair Lawn, NJ 07410.

766,000 Vets Placed In Jobs In Fiscal 1978

Federal-state employment service — the job service — placed 766,000 veterans in jobs in fiscal year 1978, a six per cent increase over the previous year, according to assistant secretary of labor Ernest G. Green.

Included in the total were nearly 49,000 disabled veterans, marking a 17 per cent increase over the 42,000 placed in jobs last year.

Green said the over-the-year improvement in placement rates (35 per cent) was accomplished despite a decrease in the number of veterans registering for services at the nationwide network of 2,500 local job service offices.

The number of veterans applying for service in FY 1978 dropped almost 10 per cent — 2,362,000 in 1978 compared to 2,613,000 in the year before.

There was a two per cent drop in the number of disabled veteran applicants — 140,000 in 1978 compared to 143,000 in 1977.

Green said that while the 17 per cent increase in the placement of disabled veterans in jobs could not be clearly identified as due to the work of the disabled veterans outreach program (DVOP) operating out of job service offices, "the higher percentages for this segment certainly indicates that some credit is due the DVOP."

On the basis that the DVOP has proven itself, Green last week announced the continuation of the program after its 18-month existence was due to expire. The program has about 2,000 disabled veterans stationed at job service offices, concentrating on finding and placing jobless disabled veterans.

Veterans counseled by the job service also showed significant improvement. Veterans counseled in 1978 totaled 220,000, a 13 per cent increase over the previous year's 194,000. A total of 25,000 disabled veterans received counseling services, up 32 per cent over the previous year's 19,000.

The 766,000 veterans placed in jobs in 1978 represent veterans of all wars and time periods since World War I.

Minnesotans Prepare For Annual D-Day

Minnesota D-DAY is an impressive and unique phenomenon. "There is no other state in the country that has such a fully cooperative health effort as our D-DAY (Don't Smoke day) in Minnesota," said William F. Carlson, Minnesota Lung association board member and 1978 overall D-DAY chairman.

Minnesota Lung association and the American Cancer society, Minnesota division are sponsors of D-DAY. Volunteers of both these large state health organizations are involved in promoting D-DAY and soliciting the names of Minnesota smokers who wish to try to "quit for good," on D-DAY, January 25.

But other state health agencies are cooperating in the 1979 D-DAY. Among them are the departments of education and health, the Minnesota public health association, Association for Non-Smokers' Rights, and the Minnesota affiliate of the American Heart association. Student groups and a variety of state clubs and organizations are working on the D-DAY project in their communities.

Mr. Carlson said, "It is quite gratifying to know that when it comes to attempting to reduce the Number One cause of unnecessary death in this state, smoking, Minnesotans pull together."

Rep. Stangeland Lists Goals For 1979 Session

Congressman Arlan Stangeland, seventh district of Minnesota, was sworn into his first full term in the U.S. House of Representatives recently by House Speaker Thomas (Tip) O'Neill.

Congressman Stangeland, who was first elected in a special election early in 1977, said "I'm honored to have been chosen by the people of the seventh district as their representative for the next two years. I've worked hard during the last congressional session to serve the people, and I will continue doing so in the future."

There are a number of items of legislation Rep. Stangeland said, he would like to see passed by Congress this session, but he is particularly concerned about legislation dealing with coal trains and the problems they are creating.

"With the increased coal production, forced by the administration's desires to decrease our dependence on oil and natural gas, trains are causing inconveniences to district citizens by blocking roads and halting city activity," he said. "I realize I have mentioned my concern a great deal lately, but the threat of a fatality, due to blocked roads, is real and it worries me."

Inflation is another of his major concerns, and he said "If we are going to reduce, or at least bring inflation under control, we must work to reduce government spending, reduce the federal deficit, and rid the government of fraud and waste."

Stangeland said he believes the meat import act also needs revision in order to help prevent, in the future, losses like those that occurred between 1974-77, estimated at $30 billion. "It doesn't make sense," he said, "to continue with a policy that advocates increases in imports when domestic production is up, and advocates reductions in imports when reductions in domestic production occur." He added the country needs a policy that calls for higher import quotas when domestic production is low, and lower quotas when domestic production is high.

"Small business and local merchants," said Stangeland, "are of major importance to the district's agriculture economy, and I guarantee I will work to provide everything possible to help these people with their businesses." In 1978 the Congressmen was awarded the "Guardian of Small Business" award by the national federation of independent business.

The list of items that need congressional attention is endless, but I hope during this session we will also be able to examine, and hopefully pass, legislation that will improve the tourist trade into the seventh district, and lessen the burden of inheritance taxes," he said.

Mrs. Bert Kron, R.R. 1,
Newfolden, 523-3573

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Odberg and Jill were houseguests at the Bert Krons from Christmas Eve through Wednesday. On Christmas morning the Orland Roppe family joined them at the Parental home for an early breakfast together and following that, gift opening. Dinner guests that day included the Odbergs, Mr. and Mrs. L.A. Meyer of Thief River Falls and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Meyer of Mitchell, South Dakota. The Orland Roppe's had family dinner that day with Orland's relatives in Warren. Late Christmas Eve Mr. and Mrs. Orland Roppe and Nicholas and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Kron and Leanord visited awhile with Mr. and Mrs. L.A. Meyer in Thief River Falls.

Sunday dinner was enjoyed before Christmas Eve at the Van Swanson home at Grygla by Mr. and Mrs. James Jarshaw, Mr. and Mrs. Darryl Jarshaw and Jim Jarshaw. Mrs. Oscar Swanson of Thief River Falls came there later in the afternoon and the group opened gifts together in the early evening.

The family Christmas dinner guests at the home of Mrs. Victor Ranstrom and Vernon included Mr. and Mrs. Denis Dudrey, Denise and Shari of Bloomington, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Molskness, and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Bartousek, Joshua, Benjamin and Luke of Racine, Wisconsin. Later in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Donavon Ranstrom, Todd and Theresa of Bloomington joined the group. On Christmas Eve the same family circle members were at the Clarence Molskness home.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lambert had all of their children and grandchildren with them on Christmas Eve for the traditional lutefisk and lefse supper followed by the gift opeinig. Home were Rick from St. Paul, Caroline from Seattle, Kay from Fargo, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Lambert, Dawn and Jason of Thief River Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Harley Danielson and Michelle of Fargo and Mr. and Mrs. Ron Ueland, Natalie and Jeff of Newfolden. On Tuesday Kay returned to her work at Fargo. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lambert, Rick and Carolyn visited Wednesday afternoon with the Jim Lamberts in Thief River Falls and on Friday they were dinner guests along with Mrs. Ron Ueland and children at Jim Lamberts. Saturday Carolyn left by plane from Fargo to her job in Seattle. Natalie Ueland had stayed with her grandparents after school was out Friday until Christmas Eve and enjoyed helping with holiday preparations.

The deepest sympathy is extended to the Emil Hellquist family on the sudden death of Mr. Hellquist on December 23 at his home. The funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon, December 26 at the Our Saviour's Lutheran church. Also remembered at this time is Edlin and Inga Holten and their brothers and sisters as they grieve the death of their sister Bertha. She died on December 26 at the Odd Fellows home at Northfield and funeral services were held there on Friday. Bertha grew up and attended school at Columbus school in this community and is remembered by many. Sympathy to the Holtens in their bereavement.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Weleski, Jaki and Darrin had Christmas day family dinner and gift opening at the home of Mrs. Irene Weleski at Lancaster. The following Monday until Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Phil Sauer, Peter, Tim and Tammy of Columbia Falls, Mont., were house guests at Dave Weleskis. Mrs. Sauer is Dave's sister. On Tuesday the other brothers and sisters came over for an afternoon of visiting and snowmobiling. Together were those already named, Eddie and Arnold Weleski of Lancaster, Barbara Weleski of Thief River Falls, Chris Pearson of Hallock and Mary Skjerven of Viking.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Johnson and Wayne had Christmas dinner with the Eugene Bruggeman family of St. Hilaire.

Mrs. James Rooker received the sad news that her twin brother, Harley Albaugh of Tuttle, N.D., died suddenly from a heart attack on December 29. Funeral services were held at Sterling, N.D., and burial was made in a family plot where their pioneer grandparents, parents and many other family members have been buried. Sympathy is expressed to Mrs. Rooker and Lynn Albaugh and members of their families.

Karen Hall and the Laidley twins, Kevin and Kent started school on Wednesday in the classes for pre-school children. They will attend each Wednesday of the week.

An enjoyable visit resulted for Mrs. Victor Ranstrom when her cousin and family, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Wahlstrom of Stockholm, Saskatchewan, Canada came last Friday. Vernon Ranstrom and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Molskness were also guests for dinner that day and met the Wahlstroms.

The New Solum 4-H club held their Christmas party last Thursday evening at the Bert Kron home because of the extremely cold weather. Gifts were exchanged and some holiday games played. The potluck holiday food was served and eaten in the candlelit room by the colorful Christmas tree. The January meeting will be on the 17th, at the home of Karen Holmstrom.

Home was the destination of many of the visitors at the Rosewood community during the past two weeks. Many family gatherings were held as a result of this, besides the joyour visiting within the neighborhood. Billy Copeland came to the Art Swenson home the Friday evening before Christmas from his residence in Long Lake where he is employed. He was accompanied by Ramona Rowley from Anoka where she is a student at the Area Technical Institute where she is taking the course on becoming an Automobile Counter Salesperson. She spent Christmas with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gail Rowley. They returned to their respective homes the Tuesday after Christmas.

Sub Region 4 Is Well-Balanced

An unpredictable Region 8AA Sub Region 4 high school basketball tournament is shaping up between northern Minnesota rivals Thief River Falls, Crookston, East Grand Forks and Bemidji.

Scores between the teams have done nothing to clear the post-season playoff picture. Crookston has won twice on the road, knocking off Bemidji 44-43 and Thief River Falls 58-56, but then lost at home to East Grand Forks 57-51. East Grand Forks also owns a 59-57 home court decision over Thief River Falls, a team that took a 48-46 overtime win out of Bemidji.

"It's a well-balanced sub region," understated Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters who will take his Prowlers to Crookston Friday to begin the second round of their 1978-79 Sub Region 4 schedule.

Because of the evenly matched talent, Crookston had been picking up some support as a pre-tournament favorite since the event will be played on the Pirates' court Feb. 20 and Feb. 23. However, since four of the five games matching sub region rivals have been won by visiting teams (including East Grand Forks' victory at Crookston), that home court theory is shot.

Thief River Falls still looks like a good bet to win the Sub Region 4 title won by Bemidji ever since the event began in 1976. The Prowlers carried a 4-4 record into a Tuesday game against a strong Bagley squad, but those four losses were by a combined total of just 11 points. In addition to the two-point losses to Crookston and East Grand Forks, Thief River Falls also suffered a one-point 58-57 season-opening setback at the hands of an undefeated Roseau squad and dropped a 60-54 contest at International Falls.

Six of the final eight regular season Thief River Falls games will be played in the Lincoln gym, and it's an attractive home schedule for fans who will be able to watch recognized powers like Wadena and Warren, along with sub region rivals Bemidji and East Grand Forks.

Wadena, likely the strongest Thief River Falls opponent this winter, will be here Fri., Jan. 26. The Indians are considered a Region 6A championship threat. Warren, a Region 8A favorite, will be featured Tues., Feb. 13.

Those Sub Region 4 contests will be played here Fri., Feb. 2, against Bemidji and Fri., Feb. 9, against East Grand Forks.

Other season-ending home games for the Prowlers will be played Tues., Jan. 23, against Mahnomen and Sat., Feb. 3, against Fertile-Beltrami.

Only road trips during that span for the Prowlers will be made Sat., Jan. 27, to Fergus Falls and Thurs., Feb. 15, to Park Rapids.

Miscellaneous

+Crookston high school basketball coach Marshall Olson watched his Pirates drill Ada 84-55 Friday and told Lori Mateer of the Crookston Times, "Things just went right for us. Everything we did went perfectly. We played absolutely super. We executed the best passing game I've ever seen. If we continue to play like (that), there won't be many teams that will beat us."

+Fergus Falls lost its tenth straight basketball game Saturday, a 56-53 decision to Detroit Lakes. "We made 24 of 74 shots," Fergus Falls coach Ron Larson told Bruce Bakke of the Fergus Falls Journal, "and would you believe we missed 25 shots inside the lane."

Rams Bring 57-Game Winning Streak To TRF

Trying to establish itself as a legitimate Section 8 contender, the Lincoln high school hockey team will challenge a Roseau squad that is already a recognized power Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Roseau boasts an impressive list of credentials: a 9-0 record, a 57-game regular season winning streak, a No. 2 ranking in the Associated Press power poll, first place status in the Section 8 point standings and Aaron Broten.

The Rams extended those winning numbers Tuesday with a 7-5 victory at Warroad. Roseau has not lost a regular season game since Thief River Falls, behind a brilliant 53-save performance by goalie Terry Sullivan and a rally that wiped out a 2-0 deficit, upset the Rams 3-2 early in the 1975-76 season.

In Broten, Roseau has what many think is the best hockey player in the state. But the senior center receives plenty of support from the likes of left winger Glen daMota, a Warroad transfer who led the Rams in scoring going into Tuesday's game with four goals and 12 assists for 16 points, second line center Andy Odegaard and forward-turned-defenseman Mark Huglen. Broten, Odegaard and Huglen all took 14 points to Warroad.

In addition, goalie Jim Pelowski features an outstanding 1.9 goals against average — tops in Section 8.

The Prowlers, impressive Tuesday in a 5-4 road win over Grand Forks Central, return home to face another green-clad power after upsetting Greenway-Coleraine 4-3 last Saturday. The Raiders shared fourth place in the AP ratings with Roseau at the time.

Looking ahead to the Saturday confrontation, Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand said, "I think if we play as well as we have the last two games it should be a very good hockey game."

Heading into the Central contest, senior center Scott Sabo led Thief River Falls scorers with eight goals and three assists for 11 points. Wade Hoppe and Jim Thompson trailed Sabo with eight points apiece on four goals and four assists.

Like Roseau, Thief River Falls features a talented goaltender. The Prowlers' Bill Jury brought a fine 2.3 goals against average into the week, second only to Pelowski in Section 8.

Thief River Falls' trying schedule, which has already included successive games against East Grand Forks, Greenway and Central, continues Tuesday when the Prowlers travel to Warroad. A surprising 3-for-3 during that stretch, Grand mentioned, "Those last three wins really have to be a positive factor for us."

Northwestern Minnesota collegiate rivals Northland and Crookston will clash tonight (Wednesday) in a key Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) hockey game baginning at 7:30 p.m. in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Northland, 3-3 overall, will play defending MJCAA state champion Mesabi Friday at 7:30 p.m. and Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at Virginia.

Mesabi continues to struggle. The Norsemen lost a 6-2 game to Rainy River last Wednesday and fell to Hibbing 6-5 Friday.

"Overall, we're playing well," Mesabi coach Pat Finnegan said after his team's sixth loss in as many games. "But we're having a tough time scoring. Against Rainy River we had about five breakaways and we didn't score on any of them."

Riewer, Erickson Star In Flyers' 80-64 Victory

Figuring the more shots you put up the better chance you have of scoring, Bagley attempted 79 field goals Tuesday and connected on enough of them to beat Thief River Falls 80-64 in a high school basketball game played in the Lincoln gym.

It took Bagley a while to find the range, but that never stopped the visitors from shooting, and once the Flyers zeroed in on the basket they showed the form that has made them 9-1.

Bagley took an unusually high 48 shots in the first half, but connected only 15 times as the Flyers clung to a narrow 33-29 lead.

It was still a close 40-37 game midway through the third quarter when the pace quickened and Bagley, behind sharp-shooting forward Joe Erickson, pulled away 50-39. Erickson erupted for eight points during a sensational two-minute span in which his smooth delivery from outside a Thief River Falls zone rarely touched iron.

Thief River Falls never recovered from the Erickson-led blitz that produced a 56-45 score as the quarter ended.

Erickson, a 6-2 senior, continued the assault with four more points in the first minute of the fourth quarter before leaving the game with 20 points and his team owning a comfortable 60-45 lead.

Jim Nyland, Kyle Hams and Steve Enderlein all scored in a short-lived Thief River Falls rally that lasted less than a minute to narrow the gap to 62-51 with 5:36 remaining. But that flurry ended when Tom Riewer, a 6-2 center, was left open under the basket for rally-deflating lay-up. An outstanding quarterback and pitcher during the fall and spring, Riewer showed he's no less at home on the basketball court with an impressive 26-point night.

"We lost to a good ball club," said Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters whose club fell below .500 at 4-5.

Enderlein led Thief River Falls with a 24-point, 11-rebound performance. Jeff Oseid added 11 points and Jim Nyland 10. Center Todd Young turned in a solid effort that produced eight points and 15 rebounds to receive post-game praise from Peters who also liked the play of Oseid.

"I thought Young and Oseid both played well for us," mentioned Peters who would like to see the Prowlers go to Young more often. "We've got to start going to Young. We've got to have more confidence in him."

Both teams shot 42 per cent from the field where the Flyers were 33-for-79 and the Prowlers were 27-for-65. Bagley sank 14 of 22 free throws but Thief River Falls made just 10 of 24 gift tosses.

"We had a terrible night at the free throw line," pointed out Peters. "It might have been a different ball game if we could have made some of our free throws."

The rebounds were even at 37 apiece. Thief River Falls topped the turnover figures 19-14.

7-2 Prowlers Build 5-1 Lead...

TRF Outlasts Central Rally, 5-4

Impressive in building a 5-1 second period lead, the Lincoln high school hockey team weathered a third period Grand Forks Central rally to earn a 5-4 win over the strong Redskins Tuesday in the Grand Forks arena.

"Our second period was really good. We definitely played our best offensive period of the year," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "In fact, the second half of the first period and the entire second period would have to be rated our best hockey of the year to date."

A Bob Fitzgerald goal at 10:46 gave Thief River Falls a 1-0 first period lead.

Thief River Falls then stung Central for four second period goals. Jim Thompson made it 2-0 at 5:07, but an unassisted Pete Lindgren goal halved that margin to 2-1 at 8:01.

A power play goal by Scott Sabo at 10:44 began a period-ending blitz by the Prowlers that also included a Todd Trickle goal less than a minute later and Thompson's second goal at 13:11.

Central's much-publicized first line stars Steve Palmiscino, Mark Springer and Lindgren made things interesting at the end. Palmiscino scored on a power play at 2:16, Lindgren made it 5-3 at 6:51 and Palmiscino pulled the Redskins within 5-4 at 9:47.

Two game-ending penalties didn't make things any easier for the Prowlers, but goalie Bill Jury came up with another strong game - in kicking out 27 Central shots.

"That's a good win for us," said Grand who relishes a road sweep over Grand Forks area teams that includes earlier 3-1 wins over Grand Forks Red River and East Grand Forks. "We got out of Grand Forks with three wins against three good hockey teams. We're thankful for that."

Grand had post-game praise for the play of Sabo, Jury and Dave Geatz who doubled as a defenseman and a first line wing in place of Tom Bjorkman who missed the game because of illness, as did his two likely replacements, Paul Drees and Scott Wiebolt. In addition, defenseman Brian Ranum played despite a high temperature.

The victory improved Thief River Falls' record to 7-2 which includes a current five-game winning streak.

Nordics Beat Eagles 69-47

Two weeks ago when Marshall County Central and Grygla got together for a North Border Conference game, a high school basketball rarity occurred when neither team attempted a free throw in a 54-40 Newfolden win. There were only eight fouls called that night. Those same two teams met again Tuesday, with the Nordics winning again, 69-47. However, this time there were 48 fouls called, resulting in 55 free throws.

"It was a pretty ragged game," admitted winning coach Ron Ueland whose Nordics evened their season record at 5-5. Grygla fell to 3-8.

Marshall County Central posted quarter leads of 15-11, 27-20 and 52-32.

Kevin Anderson led the Nordics with a 17-point, 14-rebound night to earn plaudits from Ueland who said Anderson "had a real nice game." Ray Kvalvog added 13 points to the Marshall County Central attack. Paul Nordby scored 14 points for Grygla.

Marshall County Central shot well from the field, hitting 29 of 52 tries for 56 per cent. Grygla made 15 of 48 attempts for 31 per cent. The Nordics were 11-for-23 at the free throw line where the Eagles were 17-for-32. The winners owned a huge 46-18 rebound advantage.

Marshall County Central plays at Greenbush Friday. Grygla hosts Warroad the same night.

Diane Fisher scored 14 of her game-high 18 points in the second quarter Monday to stake Plummer to a 22-13 halftime lead that turned into a 30-29 win over Middle River in a girls high school basketball game played at Plummer.

Middle River, ahead 7-6 at the end of the first quarter, used an aggressive man-to-man defense to limit Plummer to just eight second half points — only two in the third quarter when the Skippers pulled to within 24-21.

Betsy Abrahamson scored 15 points for the Skippers.

Plummer, 5-1 for the year, hosts Red Lake Falls Thursday and entertains Alvarado Monday.

Jill Saurdiff scored 12 points for the winners. Coreen Dahl collected 19 points for the Bears.

CUTTING AROUND Bagley's Wade Gray, Thief River Falls guard Steve Enderlein went to the basket in the first half of Tuesday's high school basketball game played here. Enderlein scored 24 points and pulled down 11 rebounds but the Prowlers came out a loser, 80-64.

Bemidji Girls Dominate Second Half, Win 57-32

Bemidji, owning a mere 21-19 halftime lead, out-scored Thief River Falls 36-13 after intermission Monday to run away with a 57-32 girls high school basketball decision.

Center Sharon Hickerson led the Bemidji charge, scoring all 14 of her points in the second half. Forward Michelle Gamble led the Lumberjills, ahead 39-25 at the end of the third quarter, with 15 points. No Thief River Falls scorer reached double figures.

"We didn't play very well in the second half," admitted Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg. "I think if we would have played a good second half it would have been a lot closer."

Thief River Falls shot just 18 per cent from the field, hitting only 11 of 62 shots to lose for the sixth straight time after a season-opening overtime win over Park Rapids.

Another Region 8AA Sub Region 4 test awaits the Prowlers Thursday when they travel to Crookston for a 7:30 p.m. game. Bemidji has stamped itself as the Sub Region 4 leader, adding the one-sided win over Thief River Falls to earlier routs of Crookston 62-27 and East Grand Forks 51-23.

Thief River Falls will host East Grand Forks Sacred Heart Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Bemidji edged the Lincoln junior varsity 29-27. It was the third straight loss for Thief River Falls, now 4-3.

Northmen Win On Free Throws

Northland, after going without a free throw attempt in the first half, sank 17 of 25 free throw opportunities after intermission to take an important 91-87 MJCAA basketball win out of Crookston Tuesday.

Thirteen of the 17 Northland points at the line came in the final six minutes of the game as the Northmen evened their Northwest Division record at 1-1 and pushed their overall mark to 8-5.

"We played well in spots," said Northland coach Chet Engelman who will match his team against Vermilion Friday at 8 p.m. in the Northland gym.

Crookston held on to a slim 41-40 lead at the end of a see-saw first half in which the game was tied on four occasions and the lead changed hands 11 times.

The Trojans remained in front, 63-60, as the game reached the 10-minute mark in the second half. However, freshman forward Mike Carriere scored five points in a seven-point surge that produced a 68-65 Northland lead with 8:09 remaining. The margin reached 86-76 with 3:13 left when the Northmen slowed things down. Crookston made it close at the end by scoring five points in the last 14 seconds.

Tim Rolf, the freshman center who led McIntosh-Winger to a Region 8A championship last winter, poured in 34 points for the Trojans.

Five Northmen reached double figures as Jon Nelson hit 20 points, Keith Charbonneau 18, Scotty Gilbert 11, Vince Parker 10 and Carriere 10.

Both teams scored 74 points from the field where the Northmen made 37 of 78 shots for 47 per cent and the Trojans made 37 of 71 attempts for 52 per cent. Crookston connected on 13 of 28 free throw attempts.

Crookston finished with a 54-44 rebound edge, but Engelman praised the board work of sophomore center Jeff Neelan who grabbed three key defensive rebounds at the end, finishing with eight caroms to share team-high honors in that department with Carriere. "I was very happy with a couple of rebounds that Neelan got," said Engelman.

In addition to their strong second half free throw shooting performance, the Northmen also corrected a turnover problem. After losing the ball 12 times in the first 20 minutes, the Northmen committed only three turnovers in the second half. Crookston lost the ball 27 times.

Weekend of January 13-14 was a good one for the TR-FAHA teams as Thief River Falls won eight of nine games against Fergus Falls.

Only loss was a 4-0 decision in Pee-Wee A play Saturday. However, the hosts bounced back with a 4-3 victory Sunday on goals by Ryan Bakke, Rick Spong, Bob Huot and Scott Johnston for an 8-8 season record.

Squirt A team improved its record to 10-0 by sweeping Fergus Falls 13-3 and 7-4.

Mitch Semanko had the hat trick as the Bantam A team beat Fergus Falls 6-2, Saturday, with Jeff Imgrund repeating the three-goal performance the following day, getting the game-winner at 6:59 of overtime in a 5-4 come-from-behind win that improved Thief River Falls' record to 11-4.

Bantam B team upped its record to 10-0 with 6-3 and 5-0 victories. Rick Engelstad scored five times in the two-game series and goaltender Kerry Wollin earned the shutout in the Sunday contest.

Not to be outdone by their older counterparts, the Squirt B team extended the Thief River Falls dominance over Fergus Falls by winning 4-1 Saturday, breaking open a 1-1 third period game on late goals by John Azure, Brett Haugen and John Thompson. Steve Gillespie scored earlier.

In the only non Thief River Falls - Fergus Falls match-up, the Squirt B team rode the shutout goaltending of Billy Dicken in a 3-0 Sunday victory at Roseau. Dave Winjum, Todd Phelps and Shoan Nelson scored for the winners.

Agassiz Refuge Pays Marshall Co. $18,789.17

U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service announced that 18,789.17 has been paid to Marshall county by the Agassiz national wildlife refuge. Joseph Kotok, refuge manager, presented a check for that amount to county officials on January 11, 1979.

The check covers the annual revenue-sharing payment to Marshall county for land which is administered as part of the national wildlife refuge system. This payment is provided for by the refuge revenue-sharing act of 1964. Cash returns are presented to all counties in which National wildlife refuges are located. The payment is based upon ¾ of 1 per cent of the adjusted original purchase price (adjusted every five years), or 25 per cent of the yearly net refuge receipts, whichever is greater.

Funding for these annual payments is derived from revenues received by the Secretary of the Interior from the sale of products from lands within the national wildlife refuge system. The majority of these revenues are generated from the sale of timber products and oil and gas leases. The law requires that these funds be expended by the county for the benefit of both public schools and roads.

Archery League Begins Season

Thief River archery league began its 1979 season with 56 archers, down from last season's 68 members.

Featuring a new format, the league is divided into a bowhunting league with 11 teams of four members and a target league with four teams of three members.

Criteria for placing an archer in either league is that the bowhunter's league requires archers' equipment to conform to Minnesota state hunting laws, whereas the target league archers may shoot any style equipment. Generally the target archers shoot light arrows, target bows, scope sights and mechanical release aids. Individuals may participate in both leagues.

First week bowhunting scores were as follows: Arctic Cat I 1219, Wasatch Warriors 1107; Game Getters 1175, Junior Giants 1092; Team Arctic 1190, "Z" Archers 1104; Bow Benders 1120, Arctic Archers 1131; Arctic Cat II 1185, Bull Skippers 1123. TG Sporting Goods drew a first week bye.

David Maass Pintails Chosen As Minn. Waterfowl Stamp

Versatility has made David Maass a winner.

Maass, a wildlife artist from Waterville, recently won the 1979 Minnesota waterfowl stamp art contest by departing from his normal style of painting.

The 49-year-old artist is nationally acclaimed for his "large-as-life" paintings of upland game, birds and waterfowl amidst trees and marsh vegetation created in exacting detail.

"I consider myself a landscape artist who puts birds into paintings," explains Maass. "I like to create large paintings of birds such as ruffed grouse and woodcock in heavy woods. But when I create a duck stamp design, I stick to simplicity."

Maass' winning design is a beautiful oil of pintail ducks. The birds loom large in the painting, their light plumage standing out in dramatic contrast against a dark blue sky and golden marsh grasses.

"I tried to paint the birds as large as possible with a minimum of background," he says. "I strived for an eye-catching design that would not be lost once the art was reduced to stamp size."

The 1979 Minnesota migratory waterfowl stamp is the second to feature a Maass creation. In 1977, he was asked by the department of Natural Resources to re-create the official logo of the Minnesota waterfowl association for the state's first waterfowl stamp. Maass had designed the original logo shortly after the association's formation in 1967.

His skill in creating "duck stamp" designs has earned Maass national honors. In 1974 he was named Duck's Unlimited "artist of the year" after winning the prestigious federal "duck stamp" art competition with his colorful portrayal of wood ducks. He has also finished second twice and this year placed third (for the fifth time) among 374 entries in the federal contest.

Maass' studio is in his woodland home overlooking a small lake near Waterville. There, he spends many hours studying, observing, and sketching waterfowl and other wildlife.

Congenial and soft-spoken, Maass is an artist of all seasons and species. One week he may paint mallards dropping into a Mississippi river backwater against a backdrop of brilliant fall colors. The next, he may create a pair of ruffed grouse on a snow-covered bough.

Whether painting grouse or geese, Maass goes to great lengths to protray the habitat accurately for each species. He begins each painting by drawing a "fairly complete" pencil sketch. Next he paints the foliage. Last to come is a bird so lifelike that it appears to have flown to its spot on the canvas.

Maass is considered one of the top game bird artists in the country. His large oil paintings command large prices — from $6,000 to $9,000 per original. Currently, he is two or three years behind on orders.

Maass is still an avid hunter and fisherman. He is a staunch supporter of Duck's Unlimited, the Minnesota waterfowl association, and the waterfowl stamp program.

According to DNR's section of wildlife, the 1977 stamp returned about $400,000 for creating new waterfowl areas on five state wildlife management areas. An additional seven projects enhanced wetlands on 5,321 acres.

The waterfowl stamp is proving popular not only with hunters but with hundreds of persons who may never wade a Minnesota marsh to hunt ducks and geese. Of the 125,000 stamps sold in 1978, over 4,000 were purchased by stamp collectors, artists and conservationists who wanted to contribute toward wetland management.

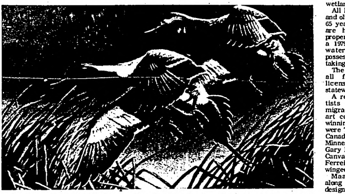
All hunters 18 years of age and older and under the age of 65 years, except people who are hunting on their own property, are required to have a 1979 Minnesota migratory waterfowl stamp in their possession while hunting or taking migratory waterfowl.

The new stamp, along with all fishing and hunting licenses, will go on sale statewide beginning March 1.

A record 68 Minnesota artists entered the 1979 migratory waterfowl stamp art competition. Following winning artist David Maass were Terry Redlin, Hastings, Canada geese; Al Dornisch, Minneapolis, Canada geese; Gary Moss, Brooklyn Center, Canvasback ducks; and Stu Ferreira, Minneapolis, blue-winged teal.

Maass' winning design along with the other top 33 designs entered in the stamp contest are on display at Stephens Art and Frame, Lexington Ave. and County Road E. (Arden Plaza), in Arden Hills. The exhibit continues through Feburary 10.

Rules for the 1980 art contest are now availabe from the DNR's Bureau of Information and Education, Box 46, 658 Cedar Street, St. Paul, MN 55155.



AN OIL painting featuring pintail ducks, done by David Maass, has been selected winner in the 1979 Minnesota waterfowl stamp art contest. All hunters 18 years of age and older and under the age of 65, except people who are hunting on their own property, are required to have a 1979 Minnesota migratory waterfowl stamp in their possession while hunting waterfowl.

List Race Drivers . . .

1979 I-500 Snowmobile Race To Start Monday

Ninety Minnesotans are registered as of January 15 for the 14th annual International 500 snowmobile race departing Winnipeg, Manitoba Monday. They head a field of 121 entrants in this cross-country snowmobile classic which first began in Winnipeg in January 1966 when a modest field of 57 made the first 500-plus mile venture via snowmobile to Saint Paul.

Nine states and the province of Manitoba are thus far represented in the race. In addition to Minnesota and Manitoba, drivers are coming in from Alaska, Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, North Dakota, South Dakota, Washington and Wyoming.

The four-day race crosses the Canadian-Minnesota border on highway 59, follows 59 through Lancaster and Lake Bronson to Thief River Falls, the first overnight stop. The next morning's route continues on highway 59 to highway 2 near Bagley and then to Bemidji, the second overnight stop, via highway 2. Leaving Bemidji, the route follows highway 71 through Itasca state park, Park Rapids, Menahga and Wadena. At Wadena, the route follows highway 29 to Alexandria, the third night's stop. On the fourth and final day, drivers swing north of Sauk Centre through Holdingford, Zimmerman and Anoka county to White Bear Lake.

Norm Cruse, Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce; Hank Lindsey, Bemidji Chamber of Commerce; Jim Clayton, Alexandria Chamber of Commerce; and Dick Haugen of Arrowwood Lodge are coordinating arrangements along the race route with Winter Carnival officials for each day's finish and subsequent start.

The Saint Paul area finish will be on White Bear Lake just east of highway 61, entering the lake from Whitaker avenue. The first snowmobiles are expected to arrive at White Bear Lake between 12:30 and 1 p.m.

In observing the light number of driver registrations this year as compared to recent years, race vice president Gene VanGuilder and race director Ivan Weiss noted that John Deere has just four entries in the race. No new competition machine was produced by John Deere for 1979 340cc stock racing. Polaris heads the field with 68 entries, Arctic Cat is next at 30, and Kawasaki, Ski Doo and Scorpion divide up the balance. A field under 150 starters appears likely, although applications are open to race time.

An additional hour of limited general maintenance has been added to the race as of the past week in response to driver concern over making it the full distance with just a daily 30-minute safety maintenance. No I-500 has ever been run with such previous limitations. Given ideal snow conditions and moderate driving, race officials saw it as practical, but drivers want the full-scale push all the way. The additional hour will be outdoors on the Bemidji Lake ice only, without power tool assist.

"That will definitely limit maintenance possibilities, but assist where seriously worn or broken parts may be mended to keep the push on to Saint Paul," Weiss noted.

Although $45,000 in awards and trophys was planned for 225 entrants, that amount will be reduced in proportion to the final count of drivers entered in the race. A narrowed field of 150 drivers would result in a total purse of $29,700, with $7,920 going to first place.

Brian Nelson of Spicer, who rode an Arctic Cat, is the defending race champion.

DWIGHT SYVERSON operates the slide projector used by the Pennington county agricultural stabilization and conservation service (ASCS) as part of its field measuring program. The service photographs participating farms and uses the photographs for field measurement instead of on-site measuring. The projector above uses a mirror device to reflect the aerial photo slides to a table surface for measuring. Time and cost saving are both results of the program.

Moe Bill To Back Gasohol Production

State Senator Roger Moe, (DFL-Ada) announced recently that he will co-author legislation designed to encourage the production and sale of gasohol in Minnesota. Bill would repeal the state gasoline tax on gasohol while insuring that those savings will be passed on to the consumer in the form of lower retail prices.

"Intent of this legislation is to encourage the production of gasohol by repealing the nine cents per gallon state tax and also to encourage consumer use by cutting the retail cost of the blend", Moe stated from his Capitol office.

"Repeal of the state tax will complement the repeal of the four cents per gallon federal tax on gasohol which took effect at the beginning of the year."

Gasohol, which is a blend of gasoline and alcohol distilled from Minnesota-produced agricultural products, currently sells for slightly more than conventional fuels, but with the repeal of the state and federal tax, pump prices for the product are expected to fall to levels competitive with regular gasoline. "This kind of incentive will encourage the continued use of gasohol by Minnesota consumers," Moe stated. "It will also encourage the use of our own state's agricultural products to produce the fuel."

IRS Will Make Computations On Tax Forms

Taxpayers who use Form 1040A this year can make filing their tax return easier by having the internal revenue service figure the tax.

Any taxpayer who files Form 1040 A can have the IRS figure the tax by completing the form to the line that says, "If you want IRS to figure your tax, please stop here and sign below."

This service is also offered to many Form 1040 filers. Qualifications for having the IRS calculate the tax on Form 1040 are listed in the tax instructions mailed by the IRS.

IRS will also compute the earned income credit and the tax credit for the elderly for those requesting assistance. After calculating the tax, the IRS will either send a refund check or a bill for any taxes due.

IRS reminds taxpayers to file by April 16, 1979, and to be sure to sign the return. Both spouses must sign a joint return, even if only one had income.
